Deficit Kills U. S. Tax Cut for 5 Years

CULT LINKED IN BOY'S MURDER

Today

He Sells Umbrellas.
Why Not New Money?
Wives Too Unselfish.
Another Wall St. Stagger.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

IN YESTERDAY'S heavy rain on Broadway, opposite a big department store in New York, a man was selling an umbrella to a woman for fifty cents.

His hat and coat were dripping wet, he held no umbrella above his head, for he needed both hands in selling. He opens the umbrella, shuts it violently, shakes it, shows his lady customer the little spring that releases the catch, the strong ribs, the excellent covering, assures her, reassures her, tells her that probably in all her life, she never will have a better umbrella bargain. All this in broken English.

She buys, pays, goes away, and the same earnest attention is concentrated on the next customer. You grow tired merely watching that man work so hard.

Some day he will have a store of his own, a successful one, with money in the bank, and those that are too lazy to do as well, on their own account, will say:

"What a shame to let these foreigners come in and make so much money."

The example in salesmanship and energy shown by this sidewalk peddler of umbrellas is worth more to this country than all the money he will ever make.

WITH ten thousand million dollars of financing ahead of him, in the next few months, you need not envy Secretary Morgenthau's job.

Following tradition, the government, presumably, will borrow its own home-made money from its own financial institutions and insist on paying interest. It will be necessary, presumably, to sell new bonds and refinance old bonds to the amount of all those billions.

IT COULD be done simply by issuing nice, new good government currency, paying no interest, instead of issuing bonds and paying interest.

The government's signature and its promise to pay on a piece of green paper without interest would be as good as its promise to pay on a piece of yellow paper with interest. Better, in fact, for paying no interest would make the government's liability less and its credit better.

The divine command in Deuteronomy, twenty-third chapter, nineteenth verse, reads "Thou shalt not lend upon usury to thy brother."

And that word "usury" means interest of any kind at any percentage.

The same chapter says: "Unto a stranger thou mayest lend upon usury."

But we are not strangers in the United States, and when the government needs one or ten billions, it could print the money, pay its bills, call in its bonds, pay for them, and not let itself be disturbed by the pitiful cry "Inflation."

Any government that hasn't sufficient strength of character to keep from going to ruin through inflation would go to ruin anyhow.

And as for ten billion dollars, that the government will spend, that amounts to nothing. This nation has an income of ninety billions a year in good times. Putting out ten billions to help bring back those good times is a wise investment.

MARY PICKFORD says the world's wives have been too unselfish.

"There ought to be a school where women are taught to be reasonably selfish."

It is true that wives and mothers have been pathetically unselfish, from the beginning of time, but that has been fortunate for their children, their husbands and the human race.

The unselfishness of women has set a good example that the world has always needed. It has rebuked the selfishness of men and gradually civilized the children.

UNSELFISHNESS has been a protection to the wives in China.

The natives like their tea almost boiling hot. Unselfish wives let the husbands have the tea while it is really hot and drink their share later when it has grown cold. And as a result, Chinese husbands have many cases of cancer of the stomach, Chinese wives very few.

Excessively hot drinks set up an irritation that, like any other constant irritation of the mucous membrane, is apt to produce cancer.

THE BUDGET outlined by President Roosevelt, with the possible necessity of government financing to the tune of one thousand million dollars a month average throughout 1934, "staggers Wall street."

Since 1929 Wall street should have become used to staggering. This latest stagger seems unnecessary.

A "street" that "without a flicker" can issue more than sixty million shares in one small power company with nothing in particular back of it, and blandly watch the public lose sixty million times twenty dollars, in one case of stock watering, ought not to stagger because the government puts out a comparatively small amount of money to be spent usefully.

IN THE West, "where men are men," and sympathetic, a prisoner sentenced to death was allowed by the Governor "half a pint of the best whisky" to prepare his nerves for the noose.

At Sing Sing, N. Y., Joseph Willis, 24, tells Warden Lawes he would like "a few drinks of repeal liquor" before he sits down in the electric chair next Thursday. Warden Lawes says "No." The country may be wet, but Sing Sing is dry.

MRS. ANNA MARIE M'GUIRE...DOGS PREFERRED, HER CHARGE

ASKS DIVORCE OVER DOGS

Her husband gives his dogs a good home, but refuses to provide for her, Anna Marie McGuire, 5857 Douglas street, asserts in a petition on file in Common Pleas Court, asking alimony from Franklin Morton McGuire, Beechwood boulevard, whom she is suing for divorce.

They were married at Cumberland, Md., September 25, 1933, and McGuire, the petition says, spent $1,000 in 10 days on a honeymoon trip. On their return he obtained living quarters at the William Penn Hotel.

Mrs. McGuire says she was forced to enter a hospital for treatment and later her husband told her she would have to return to her parents.

McGuire keeps dogs at his home, the petition says, adding:

"Your petitioner has heard him (McGuire) say that it costs him in excess of $100 a month to keep the dogs."

New Murder Trial For Grandmother

FRANKLINTON, La., Jan. 6.—(AP.)—Mrs. Allie Mae Purvis, 38-year-old grandmother, recently convicted for the murder of her husband, yesterday escaped death on the gallows when she was granted a new trial, immediately pleaded guilty and was sentenced to life imprisonment.

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—Mrs. E. A. Guggenheim, on a leisurely four-months' air tour of South America, arrived yesterday in a private speed plane piloted by Russell W. Thaw. She announced they would take off today for Lima, Peru.

Two-Score 'Small Fry' Netted in Police Campaign

With the overlords of the rackets apparently safely under cover, police made ready today to continue their drive on the little fellows of the underworld.

Raids last night and early today caught more than two score alleged violators of the law, including numbers writers, traffickers in moonshine, petty gamblers ad women who haunt the streets.

Those arrested in lottery and gambling raids on the Hill were released with small fines by Magistrate Charles McCall in Center Avenue Police Court this morning. He commented:

"These men are not the higher-ups. They are just trying to make a living."

The State Revenue Department showed an interest in cases involving alleged use of fake liquor stamps.

U. S. DEFICIT RETARDS TAX CUT

Republican Senator Sees No Relief in Two Decades

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—The $7,300,000,000 deficit, piled up by President Roosevelt's emergency relief program, has postponed reduction of federal taxes for five to ten years, congressional leaders agreed today.

Representative Doughton (Dem.), of North Carolina, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, which has jurisdiction over tax legislation, said:

"I don't think there will be any tax reduction for at least five years, except to repeal some particularly obnoxious tax and substitute something else in its place."

DICKINSON BLAST

Senator Dickinson (Rep.), of Iowa, member of the Senate Appropriations Committee, declared:

"The Roosevelt administration has created so terrific a deficit, it has wiped out all chance of lightening the federal tax burden for the next 10 years. Indeed, the taxpayers will be lucky to get federal relief in 20 years."

The President revealed he plans to use $1,233,462,000 during the current fiscal year—which ends June 30—for service of the public debt. He will increase this sum to $1,352,998,000 during the next fiscal year. These sums will be but slightly more than the public debt services of recent Republican administrations.

RECORDS STUDIED

A study of Treasury records since the war revealed it has been a slow and tedious process to pay off the public debt. In the 11 flush years of the Wilson, Harding, Coolidge, Hoover administrations—from August 31, 1919, when the public debt reached its wartime peak of $26,596,701,000, until June 30, 1930—$9,300,000,000 was stricken from the debt.

This included $4,907,000,000, applied from regular revenues through sinking funds, $3,460,000,000 from the Treasury surpluses and $933,000,000 by diverting funds from the Treasury's general balance. The largest surplus, used for this purpose, was $635,000,000 in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1927.

What to Spend, How to Get It? Chief Issues Before Congress

By RICHARD WASHBURN CHILD
Noted Author and Ambassador to Italy Under Presidents Harding and Coolidge.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.

CONGRESS has opened!

With all the ceremony aside, the thought is left that this old world has learned that legislative bodies have little important functions except for two.

One is to appropriate money—that is, to find the money first.

The second is to delegate its powers to an administrative officer—such as a president, a premier or other executive.

All the other functions have not affected this old world for much good or ill. If one does not believe this, let him ask his neighbors to name a piece of legislation which has turned the current of our national life or which has made a real social or economic change in the growth or development of the United States.

PROHIBITION did it! For great damage.

The Federal Reserve Act did it and the anti-immigration acts did it.

What else? The anti-trust law? What else?

We are driven, whether we like it or not, to the conclusion that it is in raising and spending money on administration or in giving powers to the executive that every parliamentary body does more than make empty gestures and exhibit mere "government by talk."

Therefore, one can look at this Congress with a shrewd eye of an old and somewhat disillusioned world and ask two questions:

ONE: What further powers will this Congress give to the Executive?

TWO: What money is to be appropriated and how is it to be raised?

As to the first there is little chance that any further powers will be asked or given to the President. His indication as to making the NRA permanent will, we are told, be met by lurid and powerful objections from laborers and consumers; the whole business from the little fellow's point of view looks too much like an organization of "big business"—too much like something which the "interests" can take over.

THERE has been much talk about the new power given to organized labor by the NRA. That power is not very real. The organization has been one of industry itself; it gives forth only the odor of management, of capitalism. It is a machine which if not controlled by the workers will be controlled by the employers. It is simply "too tremendous."

So it appears that below all the fanfare of oratory and adulation in the opening of Congress that the real questions before our legislative body are what to spend and how to raise it.

Admit at once and finally that we are willing to go into the red, that we are willing to tap our resources, to mortgage our future, in order to go through a natural and normal recovery period which cannot be hastened by any magician's magic. We must feed the hungry and clothe the cold.

That is our job. We have the assets and we have the will. No presidential or congressional oratory will help either or add to them.

THEREFORE, the big question remaining is "Where is the money coming from?"

Income taxes?

The more you assess creativeness the less creativeness you get. There is a point in every nation's perplexities when taxes on income defeat themselves.

Today, when the country has listened to the whango of the opening of Congress, the wise citizen will say to himself:

"If we are going to raise the money, let us be careful not to try to sell too many bonds lest we ruin our credit.

"Let us not pile on income taxes which will defeat their own purpose.

"Let us instead devise a means to raise the money in a way, first, to be easily collectible; secondly, to be painless; thirdly, to avoid the absurdity of the various separate states' enacting legislation to tax the assets we want to tax by diverse and competitive and uneconomic devices of retail sales taxes."

What we want now is a national manufacturers' sales tax.

It may raise prices. So far the President's program of commodity price raising has not raised prices. It may hit the consumer a light tap, but not comparable to the wallop, direct or indirect, which he gets from income taxes.

What we want now is painless income and the manufacturers' sales tax is the way out.

POLICE HOLD GIRL AND PARENTS

Blood Sacrifice Theory Now Advanced by Puzzled Sleuths

International News Service.

DETROIT, Jan. 6.—The theory that 17-year-old Charles Bertle, Central High School student whose nude, trussed body was found in his home, may have been slain as the blood sacrifice of some strange cult, was advanced by puzzled detectives today.

The boy had been tortured and strangled—by two or more slayers, police believe—and his nude body trussed across a piano bench in the living room of his home. His mother found him when she returned home last night.

The position of the body, as if bound on an altar, and the complete absence of any clues to a murder motive led police to advance the cult-slaying theory.

Police were holding his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Bertle, and a young women whose name they refused to divulge. Mrs. Bertle is a Christian Science practitioner.

Coroner Edmund J. Knobloch advanced jealousy as a possible motive. He said he had learned that the murdered boy had made some enemies among other high school students. Doubt was cast on this theory when friends of the youth told detectives he seldom went out with girls, and had few girl friends.

Police believe the murder occurred about 3:45 p. m. yesterday, when the youth returned from school. A watch on his wrist had stopped at that time.

The house showed no evidence of a struggle.

The 'mystery woman," said to be an attractive girl, was taken into custody when she appeared at the Bertle home just as police were conducting their examination of the house.

WIFE MURDERED BY ATTACKER

DETROIT, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—Believed to have been slain in an attempted attack and then thrown from an automobile, the body of Mrs. Virginia Gibson, 33, was found today on a highway just west of the city limits.

The body had been run over possibly two or three times, Deputy Coroner Foster Knoblock said.

Frank Przkop, passing motorist who discovered it, said he saw the car ahead of him pass over the body, and investigators said the slayer probably placed it on the highway so that death might be ascribed to an accident.

Evidence of a struggle was found in the mud beside the road 75 feet from where the body was found. Numerous footprints were discovered and a woman's purse and scarf were found.

Mrs. Gibson, whose wrist watch had stopped at 12:20 a. m., was the wife of Gordon Gibson, an interior decorator. He said his wife had left their hotel at 6 o'clock last night to go to a theater while he did some work. They had been married five years.

Mrs. Massie Reno-Bound For Divorce

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—Mrs. Thalia Massie, victim of attack committed by five native halfcastes in Honolulu in 1931, was packing today to leave tomorrow for Reno, Nev., to obtain a divorce from her husband, Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, of Winchester, Ky. She said:

"The divorce is being obtained at the insistence of Lieut, Massie. I am personally reluctant to take such a step because I am opposed to divorce."

She said the divorce proceedings "are in no way connected with the Honolulu trial of April, 1932." She will return here and get a job.

Byrd Vessel Heads Out of Danger Area

ABOARD ADMIRAL BYRD'S FLAGSHIP EN ROUTE TO LITTLE AMERICA, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—(Via Mackay Radio)—Fearing further delay in this region might jeopardize the entire program, Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd today had the flagship of his Antarctic expedition heading out of the lake in the ice pack where she had lain since Monday.

Further explorations in this region, the admiral decided, might increase the risk of the ship in the ice pack.

Cigaret Fires Bed, Hotel Guest Burned

His bed set afire, according to police, by a cigaret, William Stewart, 45, a guest at the Florence Hotel, Third avenue and Smithfield street, was seriously burned today. He was taken to Allegheny General Hospital.

The fire was confined to Stewart's room on the fourth floor. Damage was slight. Traffic was impeded by fire fighting equipment.

MAGEE 'MAYOR?' M'NAIR ROARS

Mayor William N. McNair passed the Civil Service Commission room today and saw two score men taking examinations for jobs as laborers.

Smilingly, he interrupted:

"I'll give you an examination. How many miles to the moon?"

Getting no answer, he said:

"You have all failed on the first question. You can't dig a ditch if you don't know how far it is to the moon."

Then one fellow asked:

"You tell us how far?"

The Mayor answered:

"I don't know, either."

But he asked another:

"If you keep on digging, how many miles will you have to go to get to China?"

Someone chirped:

"Who wants to get to China?"

The Mayor disregarded this, and asked another:

"Well, maybe you can tell me who is Mayor?"

A young man in the front row said:

"Magee."

McNair howled and waved his hands and held his sides laughing. And left for his own office, greeting job-seekers en route.

Magda Keeps Gun, Fears Assassins

LONDON, Jan. 6.—(INS.)—Living in constant fear of assassins, Mme. Magda Lupescu sleeps with an ivory-handled pistol, the gift of King Carol, tucked under her pillow, the Daily Mail said today in a dispatch from Vienna.

Carol's sweetheart, according to the Mail, has steadfastly refused to heed his plea that she flee to Italy for safety, although it was stated she might go to her Transylvanian residence.

McNair Wants Driver to Run Jitney

Accepts Ride With Reporter, Urges Magee Stories

Plans to Lock Door Of Office and Get Down to Work

Mayor William N. McNair is locking the doors of his office today and is going to work, he said.

And in a ride to the Homeopathic Hospital to see his old single tax friend, Francis W. Maguire, he suggested several equations and discoursed with his newspaperman chauffeur on a variety of matters.

For example, the Mayor wanted to know why the newspapers didn't play up William A. (Billy) Magee.

Why the Philadelphia Company, or some one there, didn't pay Maguire's hospital bill?

Why Ulm, the city-given chauffeur, shouldn't run a jitney to Highland Park and make himself a few dollars extra?

McNair, awaited by newspapermen in front of his North Sheridan avenue home since shortly after 7 a. m., didn't emerge until nearly 10 o'clock.

He started to walk to a street car, but a reporter offered him a ride. To which McNair replied:

"Say, you'll get me in wrong. I'm supposed to be the street car riding Mayor. You know I have two cars (one his own and one the city's).

But he bought a paper and hopped in, continuing:

"Say, what would be wrong if Ulm was to run a jitney to Highland Park and make a few extra dollars for himself? He's a nice fellow."

"I don't think the Public Service Commission would stop him, do you?

"And if they looked him up, Papale (newly appointed magistrate) would let him go. Don't you think so?"

The Mayor scanned the morning paper, and ruminated aloud:

"Council wouldn't let me take

Sullivan, Mellon On Miami Law Force

City Detective William M. Sullivan and former Police Inspector Harry J. Mellon, representing the police department of the city of Pittsburgh, have arrived in Miami, Fla., to join Greater Miami's "Foreign Legion" to aid Miami police in keeping the area clear of criminals.

More are to come from other cities, including Los Angeles, Atlantic City, Baltimore, New York, Chicago, Washington, Cleveland, St. Louis, Buffalo, Boston and Philadelphia.

Father Cox in Capital Alone, 'Army' Working

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—Two years ago today the jobless army, numbering thousands of unemployed men from Western Pennsylvania, marched through the streets of Washington in a demonstration before the capitol.

Commemorating the event the Rev. James R. Cox, who headed the column of marchers in 1931, is visiting the scenes of his memorable activities.

When he brought his thousands to the national capital there were unemployed men on nearly every important street corner.

Today he declared he found all men working, and the veterans of his "army" had jobs back home. He said:

"Two years ago my followers were looked upon as dangerous men and I was classed as a radical who had set out to embarass the government and stir up trouble.

"How times have changed. President Roosevelt has more than met all our demands. He has given jobs to millions and is paying them with government funds. Prohibition has been repealed.

"Two men who were with me on that march—Henry Ellenbogen and Matt Dunn—are now serving honorably in Congress. In the light of what has happened in these two years I now regard myself as a conservative."

AUDIT, BUDGET EXPECTED TO HALT M'NAIR COMEDY

BUSINESS SEEN AS BALKING LOBBY FUN

Malone Out, Ministers Support Adair for Safety Post

The audit, the budget and the appointment of a Director of Public Safety whom Council will approve were expected to prevent Mayor William Nissley McNair from providing accustomed amusement for his public today.

The audit is that proposed for every city department and bureau in an effort to discover past abuses and future remedies. The tremendous cost of such an enterprise may forbid its execution.

The budget will be reopened, probably next week, in an effort to prune from it some $2,000,000. Mrs. R. Templeton Smith, the Mayor's budget adviser, is understood to be armed with recommendations saving more than $1,000,000 of that amount.

MALONE DEFINITELY OUT

James F. Malone's being a name that will not appear before Council for approval as Director of Public Safety — approval being considered impossible—other nominations are in order.

Again the ministers appear in the picture—this time without the Rev. Dr. George W. Shelton, pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church.

Dr. Shelton is out of the picture because the present nominee of the preachers—Assistant District Attorney Earl T. Adair—is on District Attorney Andrew T. Park's staff and Shelton is said to feel that the naming of Adair would be too much tinged with organization politics.

The proposal of Adair comes with Malone apparently beyond consideration, a majority of Council—including the four Democratic Councilmen — having pledged themselves against Malone's confirmation.

COMES OUT FOR ETHICS

Contrary to impressions in some quarters, McNair will not name Malone superintendent of police and acting director of safety—thus getting around the necessity of councilmanic approval.

That, of course, is from McNair—McNair being a changeable gentleman—and is subject to change.

McNair says that naming Malone superintendent would not be ethical and he is for ethics. He says he'll take no circuitous course.

When the time comes, he will send a name to Council, and, if Council rejects it, he'll send another name.

Included among ministers advocating Adair are the Rev. Dr. George A. Long, of the Homewood United Presbyterian Church; the Rev. Dr. Schuyler Garth, of the Christ Methodist Episcopal Church, and the Rev. Samuel M. Laing, of the Second United Presbyterian Church, North Side.

Adair has taken part in a number of political prosecutions, including that of James Routley, former chief clerk of the County Commissioners, charged with using county gasoline for his own purposes, which resulted in a conviction.

Adair is cited as an independent, of unimpeachable reputation and a former law partner of the late Rody Marshall, famed criminal attorney.

Other names mentioned include those of George E. Evans, who withdrew as a Democratic candidate for Council in favor of William A. Magee, and Fred W. Weir, superintendent of Spang, Chalfant & Co.'s Etna works.

COST MAY BALK AUDIT

As for the audit, recollection of the enormous cost to the county of an audit by Main & Co. is likely to block advocates of the procedure.

M. C. Conick, of Main & Co., who has been advising Mrs. Smith on the budget, drew $75 a day for his work on the county audit. The audit itself cost in the neighborhood of $200,000 and was branded a "racket" by County Controller Robert G. Woodside.

It is understood that City Controller James P. Kerr would seriously object to an expenditure like that of the county.

It would be necessary for Council to pass on the audit idea in that the money could not be obtained without action by Council. The ordinance providing for the audit is now being drawn up it is said. And there might be another stumbling block to the measure, with the city as short of cash as it is today and barely able to meet its payrolls.

The audit idea, it is said, has many a stormy path to cross before it becomes fact, and sheer lack of money may prevent its inception.

BUDGET CUT BIG TASK

As for the budget, the Mayor is going to be busy on that for many an hour if it is to be reduced by $2,000,000 to balance with expected income.

a cut in salary. Why should I get twice as much they they do—and they do all the work. My job isn't hard. If I was handling some law papers, that would worry me more than my job. Yesterday I looked over a lot of papers and signed some about feed for horses, trowels and the like.

"You know, I'm not going to see any one today. I'm going to close the doors of my office and go to work."

Then, he broke in again:

"Say, why don't the newspapers give Billie Magee some publicity? I'll give him mine."

He was asked:

"Your job?"

"No, my publicity. I'll turn my publicity over to him tomorrow, if he wants it. Why don't you take a picture of him drinking coffee or something?"

And he broke off again, then resumed:

"I was just thinking of poor Maguire. Why doesn't the Philadelphia Company or someone pay his hospital bill? Didn't someone there pay Ainey's? (The late Public Service Commissioner W. B. D. Ainey). Why don't you go and see them about it?"

And that brought him to the hospital door. He sped up to see Maguire, stayed a brief moment—long enough to find that Maguire felt fine, was being treated wonderfully, and wanted to get out.

Then McNair tripped down the steps and into a limousine with plates "200"—which was the number former Mayor C. H. Kline had. It was the Mayor's city car. And he sped off to the City-Hall and to work, with Ulm at the wheel.

NO MORE JAIL FOR 'S. P.'S'

The suspicious person charge on which many persons have been sent to the workhouse by city magistrates for years will not be used during the regime of Mayor William Nissley McNair.

That was announced by Magistrate Ralph E. Smith, who was designated yesterday to speak for the administration after magistrates conferred on the subject with the Mayor.

Arrests on the charge will continue, Smith said, but convictions must be on definite charges.

The conference followed a drive by several groups, including the American Civil Liberties Union, for abolition of the charge.

NEGRO SLATED FOR LAW JOB

A Negro assistant city solicitor—the first ever to be made a member of the official family of Pittsburgh—was expected to be named today by City Solicitor Cornelius D. Scully.

He will succeed Attorney Suzanne S. Beatty, whose resignation was expected today.

Rumor had it that Attorney Wilbur Stewart, active in the McNair campaign after the primaries, would be named.

The selection of a Negro for the office would be fulfilling a campaign pledge of Mayor McNair.

Other changes in the Scully department yesterday included the firing of Benjamin L. Steinberg as assistant solicitor and his replacement by Attorney Austin L. Staley, who ran for County Court on the Democratic ticket.

LEHMAN RAPS LAGUARDIA

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 6.—(AP.)—Gov. Lehman awaited today a reply from Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia, of New York, whose proposed "fiscal dictatorship" was attacked by the Governor last night as a move toward power such as "no man in this country has ever asked for or received."

"Unbelieveable," was Mayor's only comment when he was handed the Governor's letter in New York.

Mayor La Guardia has declared he needs broad powers adequate to reduce the city's expenditures. Gov. Lehman wrote the Mayor that he and the Board of Estimate both have sufficient power under the existing charter.

seized by Capt. John H. Schnurr and a squad of police last night in a raid on a well-equipped whisky cutting plant on the third floor of 2216 Forbes street.

More than a dozen persons were arrested in "numbers" raids.

The raid on the Forbes street cutting plant was the largest since repeal of prohibition. Fake whisky labels, spurious revenue stamps and large quantities of alcohol were included in the seizure. Mollie Goltsman, 60, and her son, Frank Goltsman, 30, were taken in last night's raid, police said. They were held for court charged with violating the state liquor control act. W. H. Beachy, representative of the State Revenue Department, took a transcript of the testimony.

Searching the raided place, Capt. Schnurr found an inter-communicating telephone from the store on the first floor to the alleged whisky cutting plant. The labels seized were of a dozen well-known brands, Schnurr said.

HILL LOTTERY RAIDS

Thirteen men were arrested in lottery raids in the Hill. Those arrested, according to police, were Ben Maretsky, 23, at 2435 Center avenue; Euce Brunner, 49, and a visitor, at 2522 Webster avenue; Lewell Dunson, 33, of 110 Fullerton street, at Wylie avenue and Fullerton street; Robert Marberry, 29, and two visitors, at 2435 Wylie avenue, and Cain Triplett, 40, and fiye visitors, at 2205 Center avenue. Those named were fined $10 each or 30 days in jail by Magistrate McCall. The visitors were assessed $2 each.

City Detectives George Brubach and Andrew Carcerie arrested Irwin Bliaman, 32, of 2321 Eldridge street, in his automobile at Diamond and Market streets, last night, after finding lottery slips and books in his possession, they said. He was charged with operating a lottery. He was held over in Central Police Court.

Max Rudick, 45, of 531 Junilla street, was arrested on a charge of violating the state liquor law following the seizure of a small quantity of moonshine at 1513 Wylie avenue, police reported. He was fined $25 or 30 days in jail by Magistrate McCall.

OONEY' CONFISCATED

Raiding an alleged speakeasy at 910 Webster avenue, police seized 34 pints of moonshine and arrested 13 men, they said. Joseph Larkins, alleged proprietor, was charged with violating the state liquor laws. Twelve men were charged with visiting a disorderly house. Larkins was fined $10 and the visitors were discharged by Magistrate Ralph E. Smith in Central Police Court.

The suspicious actions of Vernon Brown, Negro, of 1721 Bedford avenue, as he was leaving 1423 Colwell street early today resulted in the arrest of Brown and Mrs. Lillian Kaufman on charges of violating the state liquor laws, according to police. Mrs. Kaufman was fined $25 at the hearing; Brown was discharged.

"Numbers" books were reported seized in a raid by Lieut. Albert Jones at 532 Sixth avenue. George Karabetsos, 40, of 304 Fernando street, was arrested.

Across the river in Old Allegheny police were likewise active. They reported the arrest of Betty Wilson, 24, of Federal street, on a morality charge; and June Conley, 30, of Western avenue, and Ada Hess, 22, of West Montgomery avenue, charged with violating a city ordinance.

M'NAIR LEAVES HILL CLEANUP TO PEOPLE

Heckled, Mayor to Keep Hands Off Drive, He Tells Audience

While police were raiding a whisky-cutting plant just a few blocks away, Mayor William N. McNair last night told 1,000 vice-protesting residents of the Hill district to "clean up all you want to—I'll keep out of your way."

The Mayor gave the word as the high spot of a stormy session of the Senior Council Forum in the Irene Kaufmann Settlement auditorium, 1835 Center avenue, at which a cosmopolitan audience shoved the "single tax" into second place for a showdown on the "clean up" issue.

BOOSTS OWN DISTRICT

McNair parried at first with the audience:

"I've never been in a poolroom. There are none where I live—in Highland Park. Why don't you move out to our place? There are on speakeasies I know of in Highland Park. Why here?"

Then he launched into his pet topic, the "single tax." But the question of "clean up" rose again with insistence. The Mayor came straight to the point:

"They say I promised a lot in my campaign. I don't remember that. All I remember is that I'll just keep out of your road. Clean up all you want to. If Council will ever let me have a Director of Public Safety I'll make him do the same thing—sit down and keep quiet. The Superintendent of Police, too."

Later, when the subject was brought up for the third time—this time by Sidney Teller, director of the settlement, the Mayor declared:

"It's up to you, Mr. Teller. You have the job. If you have any trouble, don't come to me—I've enough trouble. Go to the department head. If you have any trouble there, tell me—and there'll be a good Democrat in his place."

ASKS 'NUMBER' PLEDGE

Still later:

"They couldn't run the gambling houses if people didn't patronize them. How many of you will give your pledge tonight that you won't buy any numbers tomorrow? . . . But, I am going to stop the man who goes in and takes his split—the man who profits by it."

The people's $1,400,000 unemployment relief bonds are somewhat of a thorn in his side, McNair revealed, in a discussion of unemployment. He said:

"All I can do in my job is to try to get money for the city and sit on the lid. (Later explained as sitting around signing papers). Because the town's busted—you know that. When I went in there wasn't a cent in the city treasury. I've got to sign a lot of bonds Monday. I don't know whether I ought to or not. I don't know whether or not it would be going beyond the city's bonding resources."

Driver Exonerated In Coasting Death

A. L. Leech, of 1241 Western avenue, driver for the Nevin Bus Company, was exonerated by a Coroner's jury today in connection with the death of George Schimmel, 17, who died December 28 in the Valley Hospital, Sewickley.

Schimmel, a farm laborer of Haysville, Pa., was killed when a sled on which he was coasting struck Leech's bus.

M'NAIR SCHNITZ FEAST TUESDAY

No city employe has to eat it, but Mayor William N. McNair is going to sample Pittsburgh's version of that famous eastern Pennsylvania dish of schnitz and knepps at a banquet Tuesday evening in McCann's dining room.

In charge of the baquet and preparation of the main course will be Mrs. Albert C. Storch, of 639 Birmingham avenue, and Mrs. Edward J. Rohrbacker, of 324 Cederhurst avenue.

Both women hail from the eastern end of the state and know their schnitz and knepps, according to the Mayor's secretary, Percy Williams.

Williams said no invitations will be issued, no speeches will be made, and the affair will be limited to 60 persons. The Mayor's cabinet and the town's Democratic leaders are expected to be on hand to watch the Mayor devour his schnitz and knepps.

The Mayor late yesterday announced no city employe is compelled to eat the concoction. He explained:

"When we had it at home my brother ate fried eggs."

DYERS FIGHTING WAGE CUT

A mass meeting of the Cleaners and Dyers' Union has been called for tomorrow afternoon to protest a wage cut which union officials say has been announced by a spokesman for the employers. The meeting will be held in the Irene Kaufmann Settlement.

The union's executive secretary, Frank A. Nuzzo, declares the wage cut is in violation of the recently signed contract that ended a strike here. He said the employers base their action on reduction of cleaning prices to 70 cents from 85, effective a week ago.

A meeting of the union officials and employers is scheduled for Monday night in the offices of William Mooney in the Investment Building.

Bill Asks Guarantee On Home Loan Bonds

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—Representative Boland, Pennsylvania, introduced yesterday a bill to provide for guaranteeing the principal of bonds issued by the Home Owners' Loan Corporation.

WEIR PLEDGES NRA SUPPORT IN SPEECH

Steel Firm Head Still For Company Unions Over National

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—Pledging his "unqualified support to the President's recovery program," Ernest T. Weir, chairman of the National Steel Corporation, last night said that coupled with this pledge he also has "considerable faith in, and an abiding respect for much of the old deal."

Weir, who recently engaged in a controversy with Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator, over the election by Weirton Steel Company employes of collective bargaining representatives, declared that "new or old deal, we must have a reasonable assurance that it will be a square deal." He said:

"I have firmly supported the National Recovvery Act. I believe in its principles; but I differ with the National Labor Board in its efforts to force national unions upon employers. My differences were and still are solely with the National Labor Board."

OPPOSES NATIONAL UNIONS

Speaking before the American Academy of Political and Social Science, Weir said the Weirton Company, of which he is chairman, had voluntarily assumed a new responsibility and pledged that there will never be a general wage reduction in the company until the question is submitted to and approved by the elected representatives of the employes. Weirton is a subsidiary of National Steel. He added:

"It seems apparent to me that our chances of avoiding labor disturbances are much greater if the management is dealing with its own employes, instead of dealing with paid union organizers, who may have a direct financial interest in keeping trouble brewing. I have no quarrel with organized labor, but I have a decided opinion regarding the perception and sincerity of many of the labor leaders of today.

"Many of us believe that employe organizations are of more value to workers than national unions. We are all seeking to achieve the same end, that is, improvement of workers and working conditions, and because many of us do believe that this can be accomplished better without the commercialized national unions we are sometimes severely criticized. The newspapers have construed my opinions in that respect as a challenge to the National Recovery Act."

DEBATE FRICK MINE RULING

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—The National Labor Board ended its second day of arbitration in the dispute of the H. C. Frick Coke Company of Pittsburgh, and the elected representatives of its employes without reaching a decision.

Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator, yesterday told the Labor Board, however, it was his recollection that under the terms of the agreement reached with the President last October, the captive mine owners agreed to contract with whoever their employes elected.

The Labor Board, which took the dispute under advisement after a four-hour closed hearing Thursday, discussed it at intervals yesterday, but officials said that possibly no decision would be reached until after the hearing of similar cases on Monday.

Gen. Johnson's "recollection" of the President's agreement was in direct conflict with a statement made at Thursday's hearing by Nathan I. Miller, former Governor of New York and counsel for the United States Steel Corporation, of which the Frick Company is subsidiary.

Chairman Wagner, of the Labor Board, announced an election of employe representatives, supervised by the board, would be held at the Searight mine, Fayette County, Pennsylvania, a captive mine of the Republic Steel Company.

Miners on Strike Here for Protest

A committee of six miners representing strikers at two subsidiary mines of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation at Johnstown was in Pittsburgh todayt o lay grievances before the Regional Labor Board under the NRA code authority.

Refusal of the Bethlehem corporation to recognize their demands of employe representation and recognition of the United Mine Workers of America provided the basis for the complaints. The committee consisted of three each from each of the two mines on strike.

'Rail Riding' Murmurs In Baldwin Deadlock

Another "organization" meeting of the Baldwin Township Commissioners failed to organize the body again last night.

Twice previously the commissioners had met to elect a chairman, but the four old members voted for the old chairman, William E. Armstrong, and the four new members for Peter Kuenzig.

Last night the four old members failed to appear, their failure vexing about 200 taxpayers who packed the meeting rooms upon the invitation of the Taxpayers' League of the township.

The result was another deadlock, because the four new Councilmen did not make a quorum.

Was the crowd angry? They talked about bringing the old Councilmen to the meeting even if on rails, but cooler heads prevailed.

Meanwhile, according to the ruling of the solicitor, Armstrong is chairman until another is elected.

John McGinnis, one of the new commissioners, announced organization meetings would be attempted Monday and Wednesday evenings. A law was cited which gives Quarter Sessions Court authority to appoint new commissioners upon petition of 10 taxpayers in event the elected members fail to attend meetings within 10 days after the first of the year.

Pay Refund Delinquents Draw Board's Censure

The County Commissioners have had their say on defaulters in the 1933 pay refund promised by county officials. Two-thirds of the say was uncomplimentary. Commissioner C. C. McGovern declared:

"I can't make a statement condemning the thing, as I'd probably be censured for my language."

Commissioner W. D. Mansfield said he thought the public should be informed who performed the patriotic duty of helping out the county finances last year. More than $15,000 was refunded, as against a promised $25,000.

But Commissioner C. M. Barr contended the county had no right in the first place to take the money and that states of contributors could collect any time.

Four members of the board of registration have made no payments and the five members of the board of viewers have made only two. Prothonotary John Vogt is seven months behind, Recorder S. D. Foster six months behind and Jail Physician C. J. Ellis six months behind, according to the records.

PILOTLESS PLANE MISSES HOUSES IN EAST END CRASH

TWO WORKMEN AT GARAGE INJURED

Brother and Sister, Autoist Escape In Smashup

George Yeschke, 20, of 717 Shawnee street, student pilot, is a member of the Caterpillar Club today.

He "bailed out" of his three-seater biplane above the East End late yesterday, alighting on the top of a Center avenue trolley pole. And his pilotless ship sailed free, barely missing houses and apartments, then caromed off the roof of a house and crashed on the sidewalk at Baum boulevard and Liberty avenue.

Yeschke received slight contusions on the right thigh, and broken glass injured several workmen in the Autocar building when the plane cracked up.

But Yeschke can thank a fellow student pilot from Bettis Field for his life. John Malinowsci asked him to take some cloud pictures, and then insisted that he wear—for the first time in his flying experience—a parachute.

NEVER WORE PARACHUTE

Pilot Bob Trader asked Yeschke if he had ever used a parachute before, and when told he hadn't, showed him how to pull the ring to release the folds.

Trader said an experienced pilot probably could have made Schenley Oval and landed safely.

Two children across Liberty avenue and a motorist were the only persons near the spot when the plane crashed.

Tommy Cummings, 13, and Junie Cummings, 5, on their way to a store, saw the crash and raced to their home, 5305 Baum boulevard. The motorist spun his car off the boulevard on two wheels.

Glass from windows in the Autocar Company garage, broken by fragments from the wing of the plane, cut George Bassel, of 6419 Marchand street, and C. C. Crozier, both workmen at the garage. They were treated at Homeopathic Hospital.

ATTORNEY OWNED PLANE

Attorney Cyrus A. Davis, owner of the plane, said that Yeschke made his solo flight last summer. He said:

"I don't know why he jumped. The ship was in first class shape."

It was the same ship, Davis said, by which he flew, with Mrs. George Huey, to address the Bonus Army encamped in the National Capital in 1932. And from it, also, Harold (Red) Miller, East Pittsburgh stunt man, jumped to his death at a fireman's carnival in Pitcairn last August. His parachute failed to open.

DEBATE RESPONSIBILITY

Aviators today were debating whether Yeschke, as a student pilot, exceeded the restrictions placed on such a flier. Hal Bazley, county airport manager, declared it was his belief that a student pilot could not fly beyond gliding distance of the field at which he is registered. The distance is estimated, he said, at a mile at a thousand feet. Airmen said the ceiling yesterday was 1,000 feet.

Yeschke is a son of Mrs. Pauline Yeschke. He has four brothers.

Inspector C. D. Doak, of the Department of Commerce, said that he had viewed the scene of the crash but did not discuss the accident with Yeschke.

WIFE CHARGES KNIFE CHASE

Her husband chased her with a butcher knife, Margaret E. Painter, 1862 Noble street, Sharpsburg, told Judge Harry H. Rowand in asking a divorce from James E. Painter. The court inquired:

"Were you afraid of him?"

She replied:

"I should say I was."

She testified her husband brought intoxicated men and women to her home.

Divorce suits were filed by Alice Horm against Richard Horm, Ernestine Urbach against Andrew P. Urbach, Roosevelt Preston against Alpha Preston, William W. Niedermeyer against Marie Niedermeyer, Willard R. Patrick against Maud R. Patrick, Regis J. Rusch against Dorothy R. Rusch, Fred S. Bowman against Estella Bowman and by Selma Weitzner against Sam H. 12,000 TO GET CWA PAY HERE

The latest Civil Works payroll for Allegheny County lists 12,000 employes, according to the CWA controller's office. Payrolls turned in Thursday and totaled last night show that that number will receive checks for work during the past week.

No CWA employes in the city will be paid today since their wages for the week of December 28 were distributed Wednesday. The mid-week payment manifests increasing efficiency in the paymaster's office. Wages previously had been delayed two weeks.

Payoffs in the county will begin today and continue as the paymaster visits projects in the various townships and boroughs.

Having traced the deaths of two workers at the Pitt Cathedral to lack of safety precautions, A. P. Huckenstein, CWA deputy director of safety, is speeding plans to eliminate hazards from all projects. Huckenstein said many men are working in trenches that are in danger of caving in. Other prevalent causes of accidents are mushroomed tools, failure to wear goggles for eye protection and indiscriminate blasting, he said.

'Joker' Sought After Fake Shooting Call

Someone in Brookline with a "twisted" sense of humor kept police busy last night hunting a man who "had shot his wife in Wolford street and was defying arrest." The same individual is blamed for other wild chases, including sending scores of unemployed men into the snow in the hunt of a welfare society which had asked for 50 men and girls and women to apply to mysterius family for employment.

Youth Held Charged With Carrying Gun

Frank Laslo, 20, of 1326 Colwell street, in whose possession City Detective Walter Monaghan reported finding a loaded revolver and 20 rounds of ammunition, was held in Central Police Station today on a charge of violating the firearms act. Laslo was arrested at Colwell and Stevenson streets last night.

Attorney Must Pay To Support Daughter

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—It was decreed in Superior Court yesterday that George Haldorn, 84, former corporation lawyer, must pay $45 a month for the maintenance of his 20-year-old daughter, Georgine Haldorn, actress.

Haldorn was cited into court by his former wife, Margaret Haldorn, former chorus girl, who asked that an award of $65 a month be made for her daughter's benefit.

Baltimore Gets Back First Key Manuscript

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—The earliest authentic manuscript of "The Star Spangled Banner," penned by Francis Scott Key in Baltimore nearly 120 years ago, is going back to that city for permanent enshrinement, purchased by funds from the estate of the man to whom it belonged.

The single sheet of time-yellowed paper on which Key [illegible] the national anthem in 1814 was bought for $24,000 at an auction room yesterday by Dr. A. S. W. Rosenbach, who announced later its new owner was the Walters Art Gallery.

The manuscript was the property of the estate of the late Henry Walters, of Baltimore, chairman of the board of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad, who died in 1931. He willed his entire art collection, together with the large gallery, to the City of Baltimore. He also left 25 per cent of the estate in trust for maintenance of the gallery. Thus the [illegible] of the gallery, in purchasing the manuscript, paid for it from funds bequeathed by Walters.

AUTO MISHAPS FATAL TO TWO

Thomas Hoban, 60, of 3726 Liberty avenue, brother of former Police Lieutenant James Hoban, was killed last night when struck by an automobile near his home. He was dead on arrival at West Penn Hospital.

Police reported arresting Dominic Valente, 50, of 2222 Penn avenue, as the driver of the car. Valente is the head of the Produce Motor Service Company, Inc., which has the city towing concession in the Lawrenceville police district.

Mrs. Lena Cancilliere, 72, a widow, of 1411 Fulton street, North Side, died from internal injuries after being struck by an automobile driven, police said, by John G. Crowley, 24, of 2017 Beaver avenue, at Liverpool and Fulton streets, last night.

Struck by an automobile at Soffel street and Southern avenue, Mt. Washington, last night, Mrs. Louise Rosa, 65, of 12 Soffel street, suffered a fractured skull and crushed chest. She was taken to Mercy Hospital. Police said the automobile was driven by Raymond Phillips, 18, of 25 Ralston place, Mt. Lebanon.

Doctor Kills Wife, Self; Jealousy Seen

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 6.—(INS.)—Jealousy was the motive that prompted Dr. Glenn T. Logsdon, 40, weight reducing specialist, to shoot and kill his pretty estranged wife, Mrs. Rosella Logsdon, 26, and then commit suicide by swallowing poison, police announced today.

Customers of Mrs. Logsdon's beauty shop, where the tragedy occurred, were thrown into a panic.

Weather Conditions.

High pressure is centered over the Middle Atlantic Coast states and there is another high centered over the North Pacific Coast states, while low pressure stretches across the middle of the country, with centers of disturbance over the West Gulf Coast and over Western Ontario. This distribution of pressure is causing cloudy weather over most of the country east of the Rocky Mountains and it is raining over a large area in the southern states, and snowing in the northern plains. It is somewhat colder than yesterday over the Ohio Valley states and over the far West, but there are no low temperatures on the map, even in the Canadian Northwest, which would indicate that relatively mild weather will prevail over this section during the next several days.

River Conditions.

There is some rise in the Monongahela River, while the Allegheny and the Ohio rivers continue to fall. Stage at Franklin is 5.0 feet; Lock No. 7 (Mon.), 17.2; Pittsburgh, 15.6; Dam No. 4, 12.5; No. 6, 14.0; No. 10, 14.9, and No. 12, 16.4. The dams are down. The Allegheny and the Ohio rivers will continue to fall. The Monongahela will be falling by this afternoon.

PASTOR TELLS OF THREATS

International News Service.

PIGGOTT, Ark., Jan. 6.—How repeated threats were made against his life in the church feud that shook the Jonesboro Baptist Tabernacle was related from the witness stand by the Rev. Dale Crowley, on trial for the murder of an aged janitor at the temple.

Final arguments were to begin today in the trial.

Testifying as the last defense witness, Crowley painted a vivid picture of the rivalry between two church factions that finally resulted in the shooting affray that cost the life of John MacMurdo, 68.

The pastor told of the shooting with tears streaming down his cheeks. He said MacMurdo had threatened to kill him unless he vacated the pastorate to his rival evangelist, the Rev. Joe Jeffers.

BOY RE-CAUGHT AS MOTHER DIES

The youth who fled Morganza to kneel at his dying mother's bedside is back in the reformatory today. His mother is dead.

What Joe Nazdon, 16, described as an "inner urge" to see his mother prompted him to escape from Morganza, where he had been sent for incorrigibility, he told authorities.

At his home, 363 Third street, Rankin, detectives thought they would find him, and they did—beside his mother, Mrs. Michael Nazdon, dying of pneumonia.

They let Joe stay with his mother until the end, and with his mother's funeral service still ringing in his ears, they returned him to the institution last night.

NRA IS growing a full set of teeth. The Frick Coke Company of Pittsburgh is ordered to negotiate a labor contract at once, with officials of the United Mine Workers of America, abandoning its stubborn anti-union policy. That is "government going into business" in earnest.

The Frick employers say:

"We don't want to discuss labor matters with Lewis, head of the coal miners."

The government says:

"You MUST meet and discuss with him."

YESTERDAY GERMANY began the policy of "sterilizing those unfit to perpetuate their kind." The first case is that of a man fifty-four years old, convicted of "contributing to the delinquency of a minor."

On that basis, probably eighty per cent of the famous conquerors, rulers and generals of olden days would have been sterilized, much to their surprise.

TWO CHUMS WIN ABLE YOUTH TESTS

High Awards Go to Homestead High School Boys

Two high school chums who've always believed in doing things together, smiled happily yesterday when they heard that they had been awarded first and second places in the December, 1933, Exceptionally Able Youths tests.

David Halliday, of Homestead High School, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Halliday, of 212 West Seventh avenue, Homestead, took first place in the examinations. David, who is 17 and a native of England, has rather unusual interests for a high school senior. His hobbies center around astronomy, radio and the Egyptian language.

His study of the Egyptian tongue has been purely informal, carried on in his own home. In school his activities are confined to debating and the city editorship of the high school paper. He plans to enter either Pitt or Tech in the fall to study mathematics.

Nick Cikoski, David's runner-up and close friend, is also 17 and a senior in the Homestead High School. His ambition is to enter Tech in the fall to gain a thorough knowledge of military engineering and military science, and sometime in the very near future he'd like to do a lot of traveling.

Just as two boys took first and second place, two girls came third and fourth on the award list, Ruth St. John, of 4108 Siebert street, and Genevieve Porch, of 543 Orchard avenue, Bellevue. They both are interested in teaching.

Eighty-eight students from 19 high schools took the tests given last month by the Civic Club of Allegheny County. Of these 88, 22 indicated the ability to do college work equal to the highest 5 per cent of college freshmen, according to the tests, which covered scholastic, mental and study efficiency fields.

SENATE SPEEDS RUM TAX VOTE

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—Senate leaders today planned to expedite action on the liquor tax bill which was approved overwhelmingly by the House yesterday.

Acceptance of the increase from $1.10 to $2 a gallon in the tax on whisky and other liquors was forecast as the Senate Finance Committee prepared to act on the measure, and try to have the Senate vote on it next week. Each day's delay is costing the government $750,000 in taxes.

The fight in the House for both a higher and a lower tax on whisky was expected to be renewed, with Senator Borah (Rep.), of Idaho, slated to lead a movement to raise the tax to $4 or $5 a gallon.

Widespread complaints of the poor quality of liquor may also result in demands for provisions to protect the consumer.

Under an amendment placed in the bill by the House at the request of the Treasury, stamps showing the payment of tax must be placed upon all containers. This requirement would be an additional protection to the public against the purchase of bootleg liquor.

A concession to beer and wine drinkers was made when the House extended the $5 a barrel tax on 3.2 per cent to cover all beers. The present tax on beers of greater alcoholic strength is $6 a barrel.

Man Found Injured, Companion Arrested

Suffering from a head injury, William Baxter, 30, of Twenty-second street and Liberty avenue, was found in Spring alley early today. A companion, Joseph Barlkin, 29, of Hawthorne avenue, was arrested. Baxter was taken to St. Francis Hospital.

Elopement 'Plot' Laid To Fay by Rudy

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—Charges that Fay Webb Vallee, wife of Rudy Vallee, radio crooner, was about to sail today on a tramp steamer with another man when Rudy found out about it have been hurled in court here by the crooner's lawyer.

Fighting Fay's attempts to restrain Rudy from getting a Mexican divorce, the lawyer said yesterday:

"Rudy Vallee has enough evidence to divorce his wife in any state in the union, including New York.

"She is not the wronged wife.

"When we obtained this evidence she was ready to run off with her admirer on a tramp steamer. Rudy has treated her exceptionally well in giving her a $90,000 home in California and alimony of $100 a week. But this admirer told her if she were a smart girl she would get $400 worth of dresses a week from Vallee."

DEPRESSION SEEN AS BLESSING BY CHURCH COUNCIL

UNITY AND GAIN IN MEMBERS RESULT

HARRISBURG, Jan. 6.—Launching an ambitious "religious recovery" program, the Pennsylvania Council of Churches feels that the depression was a "blessing" because it will help strengthen church unity and bring more members into churches.

William L. Mudge, executive secretary:

"The depression showed that economy and combinations to prevent overlapping were healthy for industry and banking, and we are coming to the belief now that they are healthy for religion.

"Of course, it takes time to break down traditions that are centuries old."

Mudge expressed the view that mergers to eliminate unnecessary churches will help greatly to strengthen religion. He pointed out that one church, with one pastor, often can serve a community better than three or four smaller churches and several pastors.

And the effect of such mergers, he said, will be to knit the people closer together in their church work.

The council, which holds its annual convention in Harrisburg January 29 and 30, has a five-point program to accomplish its "religious recovery" objective:

1. Comity—Create goodwill and strengethen the church structure by eliminating overlapping and waste.

2. Christian Education—Stress the responsibility of parents to rear their children as good Christians.

3. Social Service—Fight the return of the saloon and endeavor to keep consumption of liquor at a minimum; endeavor to keep politics out of liquor; strive for wholesome motion pictures lacking in sex and gangster themes; seek to reduce the amount of salacious literature available to the public.

4—Create goodwill and promote world peace through universal reduction of armaments.

5—World-wide evangelism—undertake an energetic campaign to find out what has become of lapsed church members, seek out the "unsaved" and bring them back into the fold.

The Pennsylvania council has 2,800,000 members, which Mudge said is three-quarters of the state's Protestant population. He said this figure should be multiplied by three to include the children in Protestant families, making a total of 8,400,000.

The Story of David -:- CHAPTER X -:- Told in Pictures by Dan Smith

So David left Samuel at Naioth, and went and told Saul's son, Jonathan, who loved him, all that Saul had done to him, and they arranged a signal by which David should know whether to return or go on his way. The next day Saul missed David at his table when the new moon was come, and when Jonathan said he had let David go to see his brothers in Bethlehem, Saul's anger was kindled against Jonathan, and he cast a javelin against him to smite him.

So Jonathan went out with his bow and took with him a little lad to bring back his arrows; and as the lad ran Jonathan shouted "Is not the arrow beyond thee?" And this was the signal to David that he must flee.

But when Jonathan had sent the lad back to the city, he joined David and they wept together, and Jonathan said, "Go in peace." Then David departed thence to the cave of Abdullam, and there all his own brethren came to him.

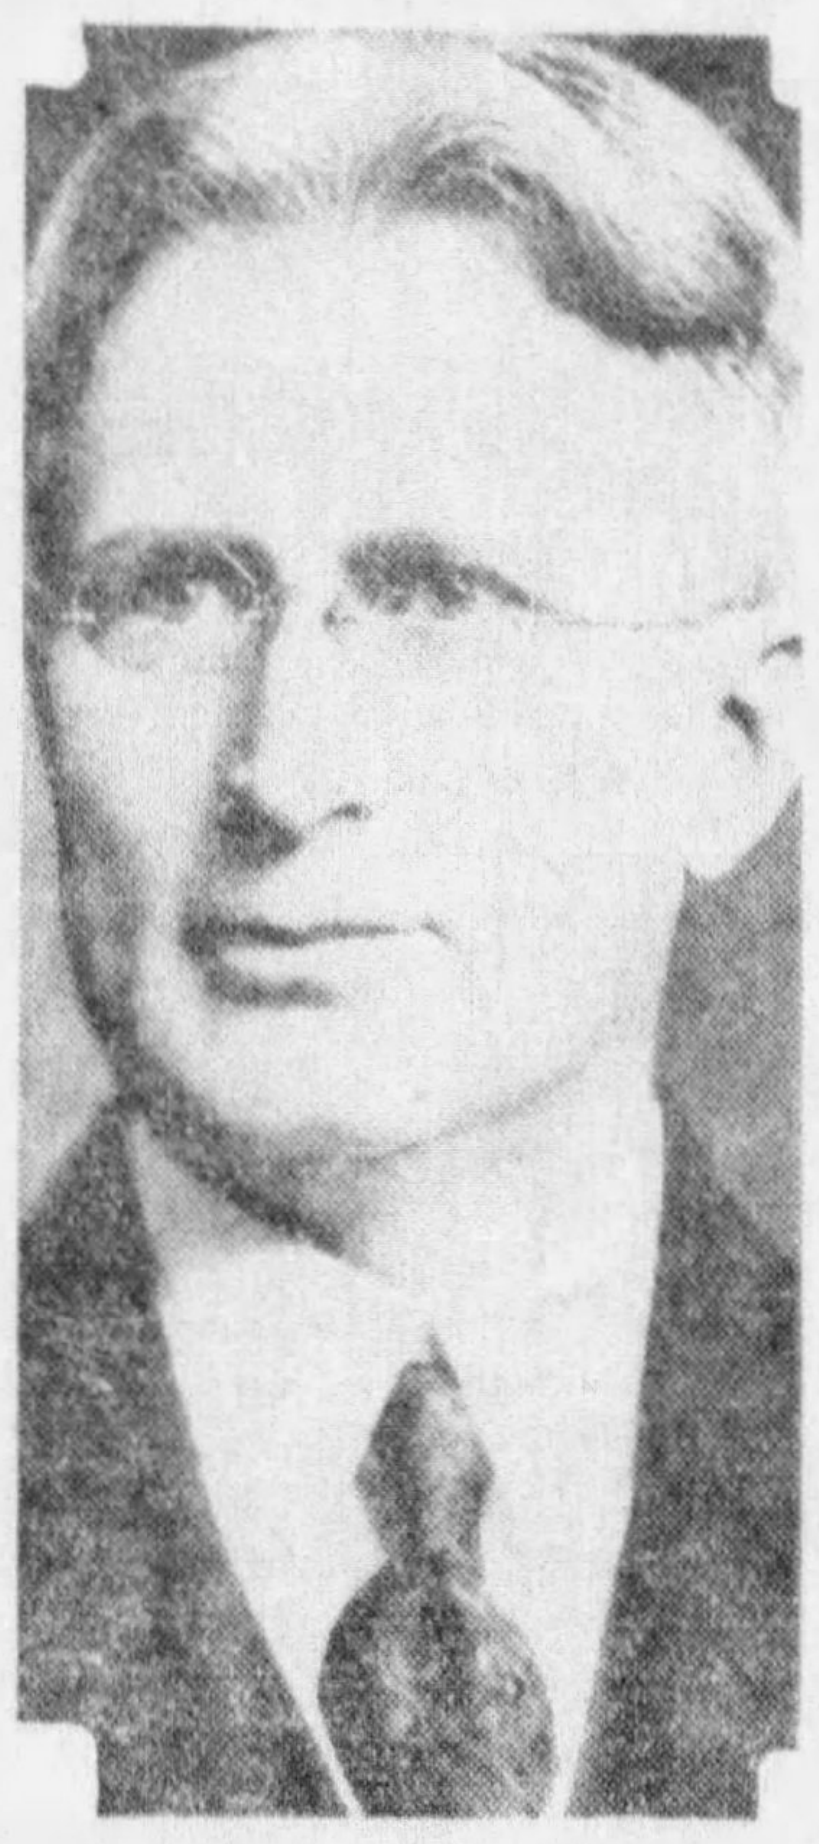
Bishop Preaching



BISHOP J. S. STAMM

Dr. Stamm, Kansas City, who will preach the anniversary sermon at First Evangelical Church.

ERIE MAN DIES IN ICY BAY

ERIE, Pa., Jan. 6.—(AP.)—One man was drowned and another saved after a struggle of an hour and a half in the ice-covered waters of Erie Bay yesterday.

Joseph Webenhoefer, 55, is believed to have suffered a heart attack and fallen from the east slip at the foot of State street, hurtling through the thin ice and drowning. Coast guards recovered the body.

John Kaintz, 42, fell through thin ice 300 yards from shore while fishing with four companions and was rescued by four other men, police say, after the four companions fled.

Diety to Be Topic Of Science Church

"God" will be the subject of the lesson-sermon to be read tomorrow in all Christian Science churches. The golden text will be: "O Lord of hosts, God of Israel, that dwellest between the cherubims, Thou art the God, even Thou alone of all the kingdoms of the earth; Thou hast made heaven and earth."

NOON SERVICES AT TRINITY

Beginning Monday, and continuing through February 9, a new series on Interdenominational noonday services will be held in Trinity Cathedral. These services will begin at 12:30 noon and last 20 minutes. Each clergyman preaches daily from Monday through Friday, and develops his theme from different angles day by day.

The preacher who begins the series is the Rev. Dr. David Lang, of Shady Avenue Presbyterian Church. Dr. Lang has taken for his general topic—"The Face of Christ." On Monday he will speak on "The Face of Enlightenment;" Tuesday, "The Face of Courage;" Wednesday, "The Face of Resignation;" Thursday, "The Face of Anguish;" and on Friday, "The Face of Self-restraint."

Other clergymen in this Noonday series, are the Rev. Drs. J. W. Hawley, of the First Methodist Protestant Church; Norman C. Milliron, First Evangelical Church; Karl A. Stein, Grace Reformed Church; and the Rev. Charles S. Dayton, Sandusky Street Baptist Church.

Opening Series

THE REV. DR. DAVID LANG

Dr. Lang, Shady Avenue Presbyterian's pastor, first speaker in the Trinity Cathedral series.

KERR'S HYMN IN NEW BOOK

The Rev. Dr. Hugh Thomson Kerr, of Shadyside Presbyterian Church, and former moderator of the Presbyterian General Assembly, is now known also as a hymn writer.

Dr. Kerr's hymn, "God the Father," is included in the new hymnal prepared by the Rev. Dr. William C. Covert, general secretary of the Presbyterian Board of Christian Education, for use throughout the United States.

Copies are also being placed on ships of the Navy and Merchant Marine along with the Presbyterian Book of Common Worship.

Popular Song Title Given to Sermon

Using the title of one of the popular songs of the day for his sermon theme, the Rev. Dr. Clausen will preach on Sunday night at the First Baptist Church on "Did You Ever See a Dream Walking?"

His morning sermon on "The Great Experiment" will mark the beginning of a series dealing with the memorable sayings of Jesus.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S 'PEP' MEETING

Baptist Young People are sponsoring a "pep" meeting in the Cardinal room of the William Penn Hotel tomorrow at 3 p. m. This meeting marks the opening of the finance and registration campaign for the coming national convention of Baptist Young People.

The principal speaker will be the Rev. Charles S. Dayton, of the Sandusky Street Baptist Church, adult councellor of the Baptist Young Peoples' Division.

The convention committee has been busy for two years paving the way for this convention which is expected to bring from 5,000 to 8,000 Baptist youth from the United States and Canada to Pittsburgh this summer.

This event which is the forty-third anniversary convention of the Baptist Young Peoples' Union of America, will hold its sessions on July 4 to 8 inclusive.

Baptist Women's Rally on Thursday

The winter rally of the Woman's Union of the Pittsburgh Baptist Association will be held in the East End Baptist Church Thursday.

ANNIVERSARIES TO BE MARKED BY CHURCHES

Two Pittsburgh churches will observe anniversaries tomorrow.

The congregation of the First Evangelical Church, Center avenue and Graham street, the Rev. Dr. N. C. Milliron, pastor, is observing the ninetieth anniversary of its founding with special services beginning tomorrow morning, when Bishop J. S. Stamm, of Kansas City, Mo., will deliver the anniversary sermon.

In the afternoon Bishop Stamm will address a men's mass meeting at First Church under the auspices of the Pittsburgh District Albright Brotherhood. An evangelical fellowship meeting, in which the other churches of the denomination will participate, will be held tomorrow evening, when the principal address will be given by Bishop Stamm.

On Wednesday evening a congregational dinner will be held in the church dining room.

The anniversary services will close on Sunday, January 14, when Bishop J. F. Dunlap, of Cleveland, will deliver the morning sermon.

Dr. Milliron has served the congregation for 11 years.

The First Evangelical Church was started in 1843, when the Rev. Levi Eberhardt, was sent by the Missionary Society to organize a church in Pittsburgh. He began his work with street preaching in Union avenue, North Side, and a short time later had organized a group who met for worship in the old court house, in Market street.

The forty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the Shady Avenue Presbyterian Church and the hundredth anniversay of the establishment of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church its predecessor, will be observed in the church next week. The Rev. Dr. David Lang pastor, has arranged for a program for the week.

Tomorrow morning the pastor will preach on "The Face of Enlightenment," and in the evening three phases of the subject "Our Presbyterian Heritage" will be discussed.

RIPLEY, TRADE, MARK -:- Arctic Tragedy Dramatized -:- ON RADIO

Sun-Telegraph Cartoonist Broadcasts

Strange facts from all corners of the world are brought to NBC-WCAE listeners as a regular feature of B. A. Rolfe's Saturday night dancing parties, beginning tonight at 10.

Ripley, appearing on the programs in person, dramatizes his "Believe-It-or-Not" oddities during each broadcast.

* * *

Trade and Mark, those irrepressible purveyors of popular melodies, assume their familiar roles in a new series of programs beginning over CBS-WJAS tonight at 8:45.

They are accompanied by Nat Shilkret and his orchestra.

* * *

ARCTIC TRAGEDY

A dramatic description of the balloon flight toward the North Pole, in which Salomon Andree and his two companions perished, is heard over NBC-WCAE tonight at 9.

The expedition left for the Pole in 1897. The bodies and Andree's diary were found in 1930.

* * *

Arlene Jackson, petite personality songbird, returns to an NBC-WCAE network this afternoon at 5:45.

* * *

New 1934 cars are described over NBC-WCAE this evening at 8, when an NBC announcer broadcasts from the floor of the New York Automobile Show.

* * *

QUAKER BAND

Two selections from "Hansel and Gretel" are played by the Philadelphia Symphony as their Saturday night broadcast over CBS-WJAS at 9.

* * *

Eddie Duchin's orchestra at 7:30, and the National Barn Dance at 11, are two of several bright spots on KDKA tonight.

* * *

The regular Byrd Expedition broadcast is scheduled over CBS-WJAS at 10.

* * *

WWSW carries a play-by-play description of the Duquesne-Valparaiso basketball game tonight at 8:15.

* * *

The mighty roar of Niagara Falls is heard over your loudspeaker tonight at 9:30, as a feature of the D'Anna band concert.

* * *

Capt. Al Williams, Navy air ace, spins an interesting yarn about planes and pilots over NBC-KDKA tonight at 6:45.

Local Highlights On WJAS Tonight

Jimmy Molinaro's orchestra returns for another 15 minutes of dinner music on WJAS at 6:15.

If you enjoy old tunes, try the Barnyard Frolics at 8.

The Chicago sponsors of Amos 'n' Andy are making a great secret of their experiments with the A. & A. nightly routine, which introduces a specialty by Dean Fitzer, the organist.

* * *

NO SECRET

Amos 'n' Andy, in New York, make no secret of the change.

The sponsors, they tell all comers, are merely shortening the ballyhoo and enlivening the period with popular tunes.

The time of the A. & A. dialog remains unchanged.

Globe-Trotting

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

If one of these days you pass the City-County Building and hear emanating from one of the upstairs windows, "Boola, boola, rough house Harvard; boola, boola, Eli Yale," it will signify that the Mayor's cabinet is in session. Southard Hay and Leslie M. Johnston were classmates at New Haven. Harmar Denny claims the same alma mater.

Southard Hay, the new director of the Department of Welfare, will appear on the Globe Trotter noon broadcast at an early date to tell us what is needed and what he expects to do in his important post.

* * *

Mrs. James N. Dill, McKeesport, didn't need the Culbertsons to advise her what to do with a hand that was dealt her New Years night. It held 13 hearts. She bid a grand slam, and although her husband-partner suffered a little bit during the bidding he had no complaint to make after the hand played out.

Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Deloxier were the opponents.

That's the way to start the New Year off right.

F. L. K., a Charleroi Globe Trotter, reports that the other night before Justice of the Peace Smith, of Charleroi, two left-handed burgesses took the oath of office. They were S. L. Woodward, Charleroi, and Dr. A. S. Sickman, North Charleroi. After the oath was administered they both signed left-handed. According to F. L. K., if you appear before them they sentence you right-handed.

Get that for a doctor's name—Sickman. I'll have to tell that to Ripley.

* * *

Mrs. M. D., Finleyville—That information about imprisoning an unemployed son for failure to support is not correct. It has not been the practice of Judge Kennedy to do that in Allegheny County.

* * *

G. A. S., North Side—To place your name on the welfare list so that you are eligible for CWA employment, go to the Emergency Relief office in the City-County Building, first floor.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Jan. 6.
To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Will Rogers

This country runs to the figure 10. There has been many who has had to say, "Mister, can you spare a dime," but President Roosevelt is the first man in the history of the world who looked a nation right in the face and said, "Mister, can you spare ten billion dollars?"

Well, Congress and the American people considered it such a compliment to be asked for that much that they really like it. Yours, WILL.

Besides his son he leaves his wife, Mrs. Bridget McLean; three other sons, Paul, Raymond and Charles McLean, and two daughters, Mrs. Mildred Davis and Mrs. Grace Budner.

CHINESE REBEL FORCES BEATEN

SHANGHAI, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—The 56th Division of Nationalist government infantry was reported in dispatches from Foochow today to have captured Yenping from Fukien province rebels.

Earlier, Nationalist government sources had announced that Nanking troops were attacking the rebel forces in Fukien along a wide front.

Yenping is considered the gateway to Foochow, capital of the province and center of the anti-Nationalist government movement in the region.

Nationalist soldiers were said to have taken over Shahsien, 30 miles southwest of Yenping, and Pingnan, 30 miles northeast of Kutien.

John D., Cold Better, Starts South Again

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—(Universal.)—John D. Rockefeller, Sr., who has been confined to his Pocantico Hills estate because of a severe cold, is improved and plans to start his annual winter trip to his Florida estate within two weeks, it was learned today.

Europe Playing 'I Spy'; Getting Arrested Is Cinch

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

Europe is still playing the childhood game of "I spy."

Every day they grab a tourist with a dollar kodak who thinks there is a beautiful view ahead.

The old country is the hothouse of suspicion and the incubator of rumor. Europe is as nervous as a cat in a flooded kitchen. It trusts a stranger as far as you can throw gravy with a fork.

You can get arrested as easily as looking through cellophane. If you smile they know you are opposed to the policy of the country.

It's a good time to stay home and see America first. This is one nation where a picture of your boy friend in the Navy ain't treason.

BOGGS & BUHL

RECIPES FOR 'HOME AFFAIRS' GIVEN

Menus Have Appeal For Guests Who Like Good Food

In today's prize list Prudence Penny gives the company-minded housewife a number of recipes which are just the thing for impromptu entertaining, yet can be utilized in preparing the daily meals by the less festive-minded housewives.

Almost every recipe, from Mrs. W. Colburn's chocolate and orange cake to Mrs. Joseph Nucci's winter way of making spiced cider jelly, is quickly usable in taking care of guests who appreciate good food.

Don't be selfish with your favorite recipes. Send them to Prudence Penny, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, so other women may use them as successfully as you have. If the judges choose yours as among the best received you will be awarded a first prize of $5 or one of the 10 $1 prizes distributed daily. No cumbersome rules are attached to the contest, only one thing to remember—no recipes will be returned.

One egg white (beaten)

Cream butter. Add sugar gradually. Cream well. Add yolks and grated orange. Sift flour and baking powder. Add alternately with milk. Add beaten egg white.

Divide as evenly as possible this batter. Add to one-half two squares of melted chocolate. Put light-colored batter in bottom of pan and chocolate colored on top.

ICING

Three cups powdered sugar.
Three tablespoons of butter.
Three tablespoons of orange juice.
Pulp and granted rind of one orange.

Beat well and add the beaten white of one egg. Beat well and spread on cake. Sprinkle grated chocolate on top of iced cake.

Ten $1 Prize Winners

MRS. ELLA PIPPER,
821 Parkman road N. W., Warren, O.
FRANKFRITTERS

One pound frankfurters.
Two tablespoons table mustard.
Two eggs.
One-half cup milk.
Two tablespoons butter or substitute.
One cup flour.
One teaspoon baking powder.
One-half teaspoon salt.
Shortening for deep frying.

Unlink frankfurters. Prick well. Cook gently in boiling water 10 minutes. Drain. Cool. Slit frankfurters enough to spread mustard inside. Fold together again. Then prepare batter: Beat eggs, add milk and butter or substitute. Add sifted dry ingredients. Beat well. Dip frankfurters into batter. Fill sauce pan or deep skillet two-thirds full of fat. Heat until a bread cube browns in 60 seconds. Fry frankfurters until brown. Drain on soft paper. Serve plain or with tomato sauce.

MISS IDA COSTELLO,
6133 Aurelia street.
SWEET POTATO WAFFLES

Four tablespoons fat.
One tablespoon sugar.
Three-fourths cup flour.
One egg.
One cup milk.
One cup mashed sweet potato.
Two tespoons baking powder.
Salt.
Cayenne.
Nutmeg.

Mix the fat and sugar to a cream, stir in the well-beaten egg yolk, the potato, milk and seasonings, and beat well until smooth. Fold in the stiffly beaten egg white. Bake in a heated waffle iron until golden brown. Serve dusted with sugar and cinnamon. As an accompaniment to roast duck or turkey they are delicious.

MRS. J. W. WILKES,
507 Bellevue terrace, Bellevue.
MUSHROOM SANDWICHES

One pound mushrooms.
One teaspoon salt.
One-fourth teaspoon pepper.
One and one-half cup very thick white sauce.
Three or four tablespoons mayonnaise.

Grind or chop finely the mushrooms which have been scrubbed with a stiff brush. Cook in as little water as possible for 10 minutes in a covered pan. When cool mix with the white sauce and mayonnaise. Spread on white bread or graham bread.

MRS. M. C. LIGGETT,
248 North avenue, Wahington, Pa.
SAVORY TOMATOES

Put a can of tomatoes in an iron skillet. Add lump of butter, salt, peper and several onions chopped fine. Cook slowly for an hour or until very thick, stirring frequently. Delicious with roast pork or chops.

MRS. WILLIAM J. SHELDON,
Hawthorne road, Millvale.
GOLDEN CORN CAKE

One cup cornmeal.
One cup wheat flour.
Five teaspoons baking powder.
Three-fourths teaspoon salt.
One cup milk.
One egg.
Two tablespoons melted butter.

Mix and sift dry ingredients, add well beaten egg, milk and butter; bake in shallow buttered pan in hot oven 20 minutes. Serves six.

MRS. A. KOWALSKI,
241 Forty-third street.
GREEN BEAN STEW

One and one-half pounds green beans.
One pound ground meat, beef and pork.
One large onion.
Two large potatoes.

Cut green beans in small pieces, wash and cook in water until little more than tender. Mix ground meat with chopped onion, a little soaked bread and an egg and season to suit taste. (The egg can be omitted.) Form into balls, making the amount about 10 or 12. Put in with beans and also the potatoes cut in pieces. When potatoes and meat are cooked which requires 20 to 30 minutes, make a tablespoon of flour brown and add to the mixture. This makes a large dish for four people.

MRS. D. WATTS,
7514 Calumet street, Swissvale.
ORNAMENTAL FISH SALAD

Separate salmon or any other cold cooked fish into several equal parts and arrange each part on crisp lettuce leaves with a little space between each. Fill in these spaces with hard boiled eggs, cut in quarters; olives from which the stones have carefully been removed, filets of anchovies and the smaller pickled gherkins. Arrange these in mounds and pour around each section a mayonnaise dressing. Put in the refrigerator until very cold. Add a touch of bright color by dotting with lumps of currant jelly.

MISS BETTY PEASE,
5030 Clarum avenue, West View.
CHANTILLY POTATOES

Two cups hot mashed potatoes.
One-fourth cup hot milk.
Two tablespoons butter.
One-half cup chopped ham.
One-half cup whipping cream.
One cup grated American cheese.
Salt, pepper, paprika.

Thoroughly mix the potatoes, milk, butter and seasonings to taste. Pile on a glass baking dish and sprinkle chopped ham over it. Whip the cream, add the cheese and seasonings. Spread over the ham, place in a hot oven of 450 degrees and bake from 10 to 15 minutes.

MRS. LETTIE MAHAN,
505 Amberson avenue.
DEVILED TONGUE SALAD

One cup diced cooked tongue or veal.
One-half cup chopped celery.
One-half cup diced fresh tomato.
One cup grated Swiss cheese.
One tablespoon lemon juice.
One-third cup mayonnaise.
One-half teaspoon Worcestershire sauce.
Salt, pepper.
Lettuce.

Combine all ingredients, using salt and pepper to taste. Serve very cold on crisp lettuce or use as a sandwich filling.

MRS. JOSEPH NUCCI,
617 South Braddock avenue.
SPICED CIDER JELLY

Two and one-half cups sweet cider.
One teaspoon whole cloves.
One inch piece stick cinnamon.
Five cups sugar.
Two tablespoons lemon juice.
Two-thirds cup liquid pectin.

Boil cider and spices five minutes. Strain. Add sugar and lemon juice and boil briskly. Then add the liquid pectin and pour into sterilized glasses. Cover with hot paraffin

WANT TO LOOK YOUNG?

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound as a substitute for calomel to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are gentle in their action, yet always effective. They help bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c, 30c, 60c.

THROAT RAW?

FIVE minutes after you rub on soothing, warming Musterole, a raw, burning throat should feel much easier and free of irritation! Relief generally follows, if the application is continued once an hour for five hours.

Musterole gets such marvelous results because it's NOT just a salve. It's a "counter-irritant"—easing, warming, stimulating and penetrating—quick and helpful in drawing out pain and infection.

Used by millions for 25 years, Musterole is pure, clean, safe and easy to use. Recommended by many doctors and nurses. All druggists. In three strengths: Regular Strength, Children's (mild), and Extra Strong.

The next holiday will be Valentine's day, always celebrated. Usually at Valentine time there are innumerable small entertainments, but seldom a big one.

But there's to be a big one and an amusing one this year . . . the drama department of the Twentieth Century Club will have its annual Mardi gras on St. Valentine's eve—February 13, of course.

The party will be a costume affair, as always, and a Valentine celebration in the bargain. Arranging the Mardi gras, always held in the clubhouse, are Mrs. Frank A. Evans, Jr., as chairman, and Mrs. H. Allen Machesney, as vice chairman.

Members at Work On Garbs for Weeks

For weeks ahead of time, most of the members must be working on their costumes. They are always remarkably good. Impersonations of big names in the news are always particularly well done.

The Shapiro string quartet will have its second concert of the season tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the Hotel Schenley.

Dr. Thomas Stockham Baker, president of Carnegie Institute of Technology, is in New York for a few days. He's stopping at the Blackstone.

Art Society Meet At Hoffman Concert

The Art Society had a grand get-together last night at Carnegie Music Hall—all in honor of Josef Hoffman. And there were hundreds there to greet him in addition to the faithful Art Society subscribers.

During the intermission, the marble-pillared foyer of Carnegie Music Hall—the only one in Pittsburgh large enough so one can stroll about comfortably—the audience promenaded, stopped to chat with friends, and smoked.

Quite the most unusual gown I saw was that worn by post-deb Betty Kennedy. The skirt was of black crepe with the back of the dress of pebbly crepe, styled like a man's vest. In the front the bodice was of the white crepe and of the black material, ending in a point at the decolletage.

Turned-back Cuff At Shoulder—Not Wrist

And the white crepe fitted sleeves of the gown had a little turned back cuff of black at the dropped-shoulder line—not at the wrist. With Betty was her mother, Mrs. John J. Kennedy, in sapphire blue bagheera.

From Greensburg was pretty Stella Coulter. She wore a snapdragon-yellow taffeta dress with tiers of deep ruffles on the skirt and an evening wrap of brown velvet.

Rosamond Fitch's gown, worn with a brief, long-sleeved jacket, was of interesting material—a fine, diagonally ribbed silk in a coral shade. I saw her chatting with Mary Rust in an old-blue velvet dinner dress and Alice Rust in a printed green chiffon.

Satin and Velvet Favored for Gowns

Mrs. W. Eugene Gary was there, wearing deep blue satin, Elizabeth Jenkins in coral satin, Katharine MacCloskey, Mrs. John E. Nelson and her daughter, Peggy, Mrs. John W. Lawrence, in black velvet, Mrs. Henry Clay Adams, in black satin, Mrs. F. I. Merick.

The David McCargoes, back from their wedding trip, were there. Mrs. McCargo, the former Gretchen Bickford, wore a black velvet fitted gown having a deep cape of ermine, fitting high at the neckline, and rippling over the shoulders to form brief sleeves.

Mrs. J. Hanson Rose in red crepe was there, Miss Eleanor Grier, Miss Marjorie Gethoefer, Mrs. Jacob S. Payton, Mrs. George H. Flinn, Mrs. A. P. Brill, Mary Philput and her mother, Mrs. Anna F. Philput, the Alexander Kostellows, William R. Shulgold and Henry Harris.

Miss Hazel Hochberg's Betrothal Announced

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Hochberg, of Verona, have made known the engagement of their daughter, Miss Hazel Hochberg, to A. Bash Cleland, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Cleland, of Verona.

Formal announcement was made at a party in the Hochberg home recently for 10 guests. The table was decorated in yellow and white.

Miss Jenny Agnes Bobby To Wed G. O. Wessenauer

Mr. and Mrs. John Bobby, of Sewickley, recently announced the betrothal of their daughter, Miss Jenny Agnes Bobby, to Gabriel Otto Wessenauer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gabriel Wessenauer, also of Sewickley.

Julius L. Silvermans Home From Honeymoon

Mr. and Mrs. Julius L. Silverman are at home in the Morrowfield Hotel, having just returned from New England, where they spent their honeymoon. Mrs. Silverman is the former Miss Sedelle Zeider.

Miss Alma G. Mirth To Marry R. L. Freed

Announcement was made recently of the betrothal of Miss Alma G. Mirth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mirth, of McKees Rocks, to Russell L. Freed, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Freed, of McKees Rocks.

Nazareth Shrine Show And Dance January 15

A minstrel show and dance will be held the evening of January 16 in the Hillsdale Avenue School, Dormont, by Nazareth Shrine, No. 15, White Shrine of Jerusalem.

Wilkinsburg Girl Weds Doctor

A bride of Saturday, December 30 was Miss Ethel Mildred McCormick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James M. McCormick, of Eastwood road, Wilkinsburg, when she married Dr. Harland deVere Hotham, Jr., son of Dr. H. deV. Hotham, of Saltsburg.

The Rev. A. M. Doake, of Beaver Falls, who is an uncle of the bride, solemnized the marriage at 4:30 o'clock in the McCormick home before a mantle banked with crotons and ferns.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of eggshell satin and carried white roses showered with lilies of the valley. The bridegroom's sister, Miss Stella Mae Hotham, was the maid of honor and wore peach crepe and carried an arm boquet of spring flowers. Serving as best man was a brother of the bride, William H. McCormick.

After a motor trip Dr. and Mrs. Hotham, Jr., will be at home in Freeport. Dr. Hotham is a graduate of the University of Pittsbugh Medical School.

Bridgeville Woman's Club Decorative Plan Unique

A unique decorative scheme in which the room will be arranged as a calendar will mark the twenty-third birthday party of the Bridgeville Woman's Club Tuesday in the clubhouse.

The past presidents of the organization will serve as hostesses and Sidney Teller, resident director of the Irene Kaufmann Settlement, will be the speaker. His subject is "Fellowship."

Miss Kathryn V. Kinsley To Wed M. Mahoney

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Kinsley, of Washington road, Mt. Lebanon, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Kathryn Virginia Kinsley, to Malcolm Mahoney, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Mahoney, of New Haven, Conn.

The suit on the gangway is green Grenfel cloth, wool-lined, and fastened by zippers at calf and hip. The center figure shows an inclined Grenfel windbreaker with patch pockets, knit collar and cuffs, zipper closing, and an adjustable waistline, over Grenfel slacks.

Above, the figure at the left wears a double breasted wool-lined jacket in rusty brown Grenfel cloth, and matching slacks. That at the right wears a suede windbreaker with zipper closed breast pockets, and deep ribbed waistband and cuffs. Slacks complete the suit.

WOMEN WHO HAVE yet to take their first airplane trip will be that surprised to learn that about 650 of their sisters already have pilots' licenses! That's news, but by no means the grand total of it, as there are loads of flying schools turning out further pilots every day.

* * *

LIKE EVERYTHING else that women undertake, there is fashion mixed up with flying. The sketches above show four suits for fair pilots okayed by no less a person than Amelia Earhart herself. What Miss Earhart calls airworthy is good enough for any other flier, and those who have seen or met this intrepid woman know that she is a very well-dressed person on top of her other, more spectacular talents.

* * *

TO A RABBIT IN THE AIR, it would seem that clothes which are of light weight but warm because they are wind resisting, make the perfect flier's choice. The Grenfel cloth (so-called after the great Grenfel of the Labrador Mission) weighs about five ounces to the yard, and it takes days of immersion, more or less, to make it absorb water. Wind, naturally, can beat its head off against this fabric, and never get into the interstices.

International Secretary, B.P.W., to Be Feted by Wilkinsburg Club

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Miss Dorothy Heneker, of Geneva, Switzerland, executive secretary of the International Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, is in America at the present time and has planned to give the first 10 days of February to visiting with Pennsylvania clubs. Wilkinsburg B. P. W. will give a dinner in her honor on Tuesday, February 6, at the Penn-Lincoln Hotel, entertaining all the Business and Professional Women Clubs in the third district.

The Pittsburgh Club will defer its regular meeting in order to attend in a body. This club, by the way, is anticipating a visit from the state president, Miss Susan Rhodes, of Columbia, a few days later.

Another event on the Wilkinsburg club calendar is January 23 when a pageant depicting the century's leading American women will be presented. The January meeting on Tuesday night will be addressed by Fred G. Loscamp, Jr., who is to speak on "Banking Reforms and the New Banking Code."

Society Whoops It Up in Land of Winter Sun

By DOROTHY ROE

Universal Service.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla.,—The boys and the girls are whooping it up in this land of the winter sun. Now that the new deal and the New Year have been welcomed with a simultaneous bang, men and women who have worried along for four years with only a couple of limousines and a paltry staff of half a dozen servants are putting on "glad rags and going places."

Capitalists who have suffered from the ticker tape jitters since 1929 have decided to lay aside their striped trousers and morning coats and relax in grand manner on Florida's sands. The good old gambling instinct finds an outlet at Tropical Park, where the country's best stables are represented this year, and after dark there are the greyhound races, where a $2 bet last week brought a plunging debutante $835 in winnings.

The smart thing these Miami nights is to board a trusty speedboat at the Causeway and go swishing out to sea a couple of miles to where a floating casino makes a mazda bonfire on the ocean waves. Evening frocks may suffer slightly from the spray, but such minor drawbacks are forgotten in the excitement of the goal.

Resort fashionables in gay evening gowns and impeccable dinner clothes glide dreamily across the dance floor to the music of a moaning orchestra.

The clink of cocktail shakers makes a minor chord in the melody, which has as its basic rhythm the whir of roulette wheels in another room, the silky slap-slap of poker chips. It's the newest fad of the resort colony.

William B. Leeds and his yacht Luana are figuring prominently in the winter whirl. Dinner parties aboard the yacht are attended by the smartest of the resort contingent, and afterward there are speedboat trips to various fashionable stay-up-late places.

Mrs. Hugh Parker Pickering, the former Charlotte Milburn, New York deb, wears a yellow sweat shirt for tennis and lunches in shorts and swim suit in the accepted resort custom.

Hardy Albright, the Hollywooder, will exhibit his famous wire-haired fox terrier, Punch Drunk, at a kennel club show this week.

Bookfellows' Bulletin Schedules Recital

The bulletin of the Bookfellows' Library Guild, which is a regularly issued publication now, schedules a poetry recital program for Tuesday evening in the Downtown Y. M. C. A. under Mrs. May T. Neff's chairmanship, the president, Mrs. Marie Tello Phillips, having left for her home in Miami Beach, Fla. The bulletins quote passages from poems written by members.

Two Events on January Schedule of Town Club

A card party today in Mrs. S. D. Myers' home, Sharpsburg, and the monthly meeting on Tuesday in Miss Helen DeLong's home, South avenue, Wilkinsburg, are the Town Club's two January events.

County W.C.T.U. to Hold Board Meeting Tuesday

An executive meeting of the Allegheny County Women's Christian Temperance Union will be held Tuesday at 1:30 o'clock in the Downtown Young Men's Christian Association.

'Butlers' Ball' to Be Staged in Gotham

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—Society has amused itself in the past with beer parties, scavenger parties, treasure hunts and masquerade balls, but next week it turns to something new in the New York social category—a butlers' ball.

Sponsoring the affair, which has had highly successful stagings in London but never before in New York, are Mrs. Marshall Field, British-born wife of the young scion of the Chicago family, and Mrs. Audrey Coates, of London. It will be patterned after the same ball which is the yearly talk of London.

Proceeds of the ball are for the benefit of the Hospital Family Welfare Social Service. The affair is primarily for butlers, but includes chauffeurs, gardners, tradesmen, valets, maids and all members of the ordinary staff of New York's big households.

Members of Mrs. Field's committee include Mrs. Ogden Phipps, Mrs. Henry Gray, Mrs. Charles Morgan, Mrs. Bradford Norman, Mrs. Philip Weld, Mrs. Charles Lawrence and Mrs. A. Charles Schwartz.

Elder, the Field butler, heads the executive committee, assisted by James Haslam, the Field chauffeur; Edward Grove, butler for Mrs. Leonard K. Elmhirst, the former Dorothy Payne Whitney; Richard Weatherall, butler for Mrs. Winthrop W. Aldrich, and several other butlers and tradesmen.

27th Ward Club Will Install on Monday

At Monday's meeting of the Women's Community Association of the Twenty-seventh Ward in the John Morrow School, officers will be installed.

They are: Mrs. Harman Peter, president; Mrs. H. Kohler and Mrs. E. J. Krah, vice presidents; Mrs. Joseph Weber and Mrs. George Webb, secretaries, and Mrs. John Walker and Mrs. T. G. Rehlin, treasurers.

A playlet under the auspices of the auditing and civic committees will be presented by the young people of the Brighton Road Presbyterian Church.

Crafton Women to Tell About Favorite Books

In response to roll call at Monday's meeting of the literature department, Crafton Woman's Club, each woman will tell what book she has enjoyed most and why. The meeting, taking place in Mrs. W. C. Bowman's home, Oregon avenue, will be featured by a review of "Inheritance," by Phyllis Bentley.

University Card Group Luncheon on Monday

The monthly luncheon of the card group of the Women's Association, University of Pittsburgh, is dated for Monday in the College Club, North Craig street. Hostesses are Mrs. R. D. Wyckoff, Mrs Paul D. Foote and Mrs. E. J Bateman.

Gelston Court, Amaranth, Giving Party Monday

TELL IT TO ELSIE -:- -:- Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day -:- -:- By ELSIE ROBINSON

It Isn't Hard to Escape Prison of Loneliness

The boarding house blues—ever have 'em?

Helen has. Night after night she sits alone—envying the other girls—her heart giving a sick wrench every time the phone rings, thinking "maybe it's for me," but knowing always that it isn't—for there's nobody to call.

Not in all the big city one single, eager friend!

How come? Is there something wrong with Helen? Isn't she young, pretty, good-natured, anxious to please?

She is all of these.

But she's afraid of folks!

And she's sure she never can fit in.

Symptoms like that—you've seen them before, haven't you? Felt them, maybe. And is there a cure for them? Read Helen's letter. Then let's see.

Dear Miss Robinson:

I am so wretched that I don't know how I can go on living. Will you please help me? I need it so!

I am 26 and I work in an office downtown, but I just can't seem to make any friends. And, I am simply dying of loneliness! I live in a boarding house. I know the people there to speak to, but I can't seem to get really friendly with them. Most of them are about my own age, and they seem to have such good times.

How I envy them! I wish I could be gay and have fascinating dates like they have. Every time the phone rings I feel more desolate, pretending to myself that it will be for me, but knowing all the while it won't.

I guess I am just a sap. I feel so unnecessary I could just die (I know no one would miss such a poor stick as I). But these people seem so assured, so self-sufficient, that I am actually afraid to try to make friends with them, no matter how much I long to.

AFRAID OF PEOPLE

Every once in a while I make up my mind that I am going to try to be one of them, and then I get scared. I don't mean that they slight me or snub me. They are all nice to me. But I have no part in their lives. They never ask me to join them when they go out to a dance or a show. They just don't realize I am human, I guess. And I can't seem to push myself.

I am going to go crazy if life continues to drag along like this. I am not bad looking. I've even been told I was pretty, but it seems to be no use.

Please, please help me! How can I get over being afraid of people? How can I be like other girls? HELEN.

How can you get over being afraid of folks?

By stopping thinking of them as "folks."

By stopping thinking of yourself as "different."

These "self-sufficient, popular" girls whom you envy, who seem to belong to another world—actually, they're all just Helens! They've known the same loneliness and envy, the same wistfulness and fear. They, too, thought they were "different" and shut-out. And they, too, could be sunk in gloom, just as you are, if they'd let themselves.

NOT DIFFERENT

But they snapped out of it!

They took a chance with themselves and other people.

They "wanted to come out," so they reached out—and found a friendly hand. Perhaps not a very handsome hand at first, but it was a chance. And so, little by little, they freed themselves from the prison of their own sad selves.

For that's what's holding you, sissy. Not the unfriendliness of other people—but Helen's own frightened self, and Helen's own conceit. For, even though it makes us miserable, there's a sort of kick to thinking we're so "different" that we can never fit in with other people.

But we're not, Helen. We're all-of-a-piece. Everybody's a little bewildered. Everyone wants comforting.

Give it, and you'll get, little girl. Stop thinking of your own need, and think of the other fellow—and suddenly you'll be out of those boarding house blues.

Contract Bridge :- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

The Perfect Hand

Bridge players love to speculate upon the perfect hand—that is, a hand containing all the cards of a suit or a hand containing some such holding as

♠AKQJ ♡AKQ ◇AKQ ♣AKQ

The mathematicians tell us that the chance of any player having a hand of this type is one in, roughly, 635,000 millions. Certainly a person who is fortunate enough to secure a solid suit of 13 spades in a regularly played rubber and with regularly dealt cards has had something happen to him that is out of the ordinary. Many authorities contend that so improbable is such an occurrence that it actually never happens.

However, from Rochester, N. Y., comes the story of a rubber game, played November 4, 1933, in which Mr. William J. Carnahan held all 13 spades and eventually played the hand at a Grand Slam in spades. The story is authenticated by a affidavit signed by Mr. R. M. Hall, Mrs. William Bromley, Mrs. F. L. Shannon, Mr. W. J. Carnahan, Miss Norma L. Brice, Mr. Mark S. Stanbro, Mr. D. A. Brice, Miss Florence E. Stanbro, Miss Margaret C. Carnahan, Miss Alberta Hal, Mrs. William G. Bromley and Mr. F. L. Shannon, and attested by Mr. John H. Gray, notary public.

It will be noted that this hand differs from any of the standard perfect hands in that the other distributions, while naturally freakish, as all were void of a suit, did not permit the opponents to take any defensive steps whatever because the partner of the player with 13 spades held the remaining Aces as well as the greatest honor content. The affidavit recites that the cards were shuffled by South and cut by North and that East was the Dealer. Here is the unusual hand:

East, Dealer.

East and West vulnerable; part-score 60.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
2♠ (1)	Pass	6♣ (2)	Pass
7♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

(1) Of course, Mr. Carnahan was perfectly safe in making the bid of two spades as he was playing the Culbertson System, in which an Opening bid of two is Forcing, regardless of the score.

(2) This was not the best response theoretically. The bid should have been merely three clubs, but no doubt West, having a partner strong enough to open with a Forcing bid of two, was unwilling to take the slightest risk of the hand's being played at less than a Slam contract.

The Nervous Child

By LISA GRENELLE

Are "nerves" a necessary curse of this machine-made age, and an especially potent curse of certain families, handed down from father to son?

"Little Lucy is such a nervous child!"

"Of course; look at her mother."

How often we have all heard dialogs like that.

But, unless diseased or allowed to grow wild, nerves are not a curse. They are a gift, given us as protection against our enemies, against all manner of danger, as a force with which to meet any emergency when extra speed and strength are required.

The child born with "nerves" therefore is not the inferior child, but always the superior; lucky in having an added sensitivity; lucky in having also another faculty—the child with the greater potentialities. But nervous energy is also a force, and like all forces—fire and love for instance—if not held well in hand it can turn from a benefactor into the most deadly of foes; it can turn and destroy its possessor.

Without this nervous energy, which forced man out to achievement and experiment beyond his immediate physical needs, there would have been no progress. Men would have been content to go on living in caves, going out to kill only when hungry. But having more nervous energy than the lower animals, man ventured forth not only for food and a mate, but to explore, to invent, to experiment and to conquer.

Just as the most valuable and carefully bred horse is a nervous horse, the child born of talented, superior parents has a high degree of nervous energy—a dangerous gift, which must be watched and controlled from the beginning. And it is up to his parents to determine whether they will let him grow into a neurotic, or into a man equipped to travel farther and jump higher than his brother.

Take care of your child's nerves.

Never raise your voice to a nervous child. Don't stimulate or excite him. He will do that himself. Reassure him. And if he needs punishment, send him off to his own room, not to a dark closet. Send him to bed if you like—sure not only to prove an excellent punishment but to do him real good. But never strike him. Never yell at him. And never, never frighten him, either by stories of "bugaboos" or threats of policemen.

For the nervous child is imaginative and subject to fear. He is always supersensitive, especially to sound, to any physical sensation, to all external as well as internal stimuli.

Remember that the sensitive and impressionable "nervous child" may grow up into a charming, talented woman, a brilliant, successful man, or into a hopeless neurotic.

'ANYBODY ELSE BUT ME—MYSELF' -o- -o- Drawn by Nell Brinkley

"Anybody else but ME!" However ungrammatical, that's the slogan, the theme song that haunts the dreams of half the girls in this side of the world today. I don't know about the other half over the ocean. Our half is full of girls who worship, who imitate, who spend restless and "heigh-ho-such-is-life" hours mooning over other girls. Other famous girls, whose business it is to dress for, be glamorous for, act for, almost live for a public.

Poor Jill; so pretty a girl in herself, so sweet and beloved by her admiring family and the train of boy pals; she lives in a state of complete unheaval in regard to her own personal appearance and manners. She is lovely in herself, and cannot allow herself to be herself. Always before her is this glittering parade of personalities of the screen, all the way from Lily Damita to Mary Pickford, to unsettle her girlish soul, to scatter her sense of values, stir her ambitions into a seething, rainbow-colored volcano.

One day it is Marion Davies—her fleece of golden hair, impertinent nose and careless manner of carrying beautiful clothes as though they were nothing at all, just so a fellow has a good laugh. Thinks Jill: "I will be a madcap." And for a few days her family suffer silently under an amazing barrage of high good humor and high jinks. Follow swiftly, to last for a few exciting days, infatuations for Marlene —(Mahrlanah)—with the trousers and the bright, haunting eyes, the lacquered feathers, the bird's wing eyebrows and the deep voice; Greta, the incomparable, with her graceful walk, her big coats and swinging golden-brown hair, her sudden laugh and her hermit habits, her beautiful forehead and mouth, her melancholy air; Joan Crawford, with the wide shoulders, big mouth with fine teeth, hedgerows for eyelashes; Norma Shearer, elegant, wholesome, delicate, very modern, sleek of hair and makeup; Constance Bennett, haughty, silkenly blonde, thin as a reed, dressed like a countess; on and on and on—the procession is endless, and there are enough lovely screen twinklers to last Jill until her own golden hair fades and she no longer cares.

These are only a few of the disturbers of Jill and her pals.

The family marvel at the different Jills they see and wonder when the real one will come to the surface again and how a fond parent can help the skin-changing along.

"Anybody but ME is who I'd like to be!" is really what is the matter with Jill, and she will recover from that! NELL BRINKLEY.

Given in Marriage -:- A Sequel to Heart of a Wife

Madge Returns Bottle, Emptied of Acid Contents.

Mechanically I did as Lillian directed—mounted the chair again and put the bottle Avis had secreted back into its hiding place, but minus its contents, which would have eaten away the fabric of the bridesmaid's gown she so strenuously objected to wearing.

But my brain was not working mechanically. It was busy framing a query, which I put to Lillian as soon as I had drawn back into its place the trap door in the bathroom ceiling.

"Why Jim?" I asked. "I'm simply eaten up with curiosity."

KATIE PLEASED

"Tell him to get up in the attic above here as quickly as the Lord will let him," she said, "draw this trap door into perfect alignment again, and then pile something so heavy on top of it that it will be impossible to move it from below. Tell him to move the bottle carefully to one side. Some day you may want to use it in holy blackmail of that young woman.

"Tell him also to knock lightly three times upon the door when he gets it safe. And hurry! I'll not move from here until you get back."

"You won't have to wait long," I promised her, as I skimmed out of the bathroom and down the back stairs to the kitchen. I put my finger on my lips as I entered, and Katie choked back the exclamation of "Oh, Missis Graham!" with which she invariably greets me. She followed my beckoning hand to the farthest corner of the kitchen, and there I put my lips to her ear.

"Be just as slow as you can about serving Miss Avis, until I come back," I said. "I want to keep her in the dining room for the next few minutes."

Katie's eyes were suddenly bright with excitement, and I knew she was visualizing herself as a "deteckatiff" according to the correspondence course she had taken when in the thrall of the cinema.

"Don't worry!" she whispered. "I feex."

DOOR MADE FAST

"I know you will," I whispered back. "Now, I want Jim for a few minutes. Where is he?"

"He went out to barn a minute. Eeef you go oudt keetchen door and along path, you meet heem cooming back."

I followed her suggestion, found Jim within a few steps of the door, and told him what I wanted. He listened attentively, and then moved abruptly away.

"It'll be all fixed in less than five minutes," he said.

I went back almost as hurriedly, finding, as I expected, that Lillian had locked the bathroom door. I gave the signal knock we always use, and she opened the door at once.

"I think Jim is already up there," I whispered, and the next instant gripped her arm as we heard footfalls above us.

Jim made short work of his task. Watching from below, we saw the trap door slip into place and then heard the sound of heavy objects being drawn across the attic floor. In less than five minutes he gave three short knocks, as Lillian had requested, then we heard his footsteps die away into silence.

Lillian grabbed me around the waist, swung me into a dance step, then, releasing me, snapped her fingers derisively in the direction of the door.

"That for you, my darling Avis!" she apostrophized. "I don't hope you break your neck when you try to move that trap door, but I wouldn't weep if you sprained your ankle. And the beauty of it all is that you won't know whether the door has a lock that has accidentally slipped into place, or whether we've found out your little scheme and thwarted it. You'll be doing some tall guessing this evening. Perhaps it will occupy your alleged mind so you won't be able to think up so many devilish tricks."

SWEETHEARTS APPEAR

"You're an optimist," I told her as we unlocked the door and made our way, undiscovered, back to the kitchen. There Katie greeted us with a ludicrously important air of mystery.

"I make me tings so slow," she whispered, "dot Mees Avis she getting awful impatient. But I no gif her noddings more till you coom back, no matter vot she say."

"That was splendid, Katie," I told her warmly, with a reassuring little pat upon the shoulder. "You may serve her now as fast as you like."

"I'll skip along into the living room," Lillian said, "so we won't be coming in together."

I sent an appreciative glance after her, for I knew that she was giving me the opportunity to summon Noel and Mary from their hiding place without the embarrassment of a second spectator. But I was saved the trouble of calling them, for no sooner had Lillian disappeared than Mary and Noel emerged from Katie's breakfast nook.

"Well, Aunt Madge," Mary said pertly. "I suppose there's no use dodging the blonde menace any longer. Here's probably where I lose my man, but you'll see I'm game. If you'll lead the way, I'll follow and welcome her prettily."

CREWEL EMBROIDERY PATTERN 569

This Embroidery Is Easy to Do

Crewel embroidery has been a popular form of needlework for many generations. English in origin, its decorative forms have endeared themselves to the needlewoman of every race. Adapted from some old crewel embroideries, these motifs are especially fitted for pillow and footstool, though they could be used equally effectively on scarfs or cloths. They lend themselves to the effective use of a variety of colors which in crewel yarns are always lovely soft colors. Though the type of embroidery is historic, the stitches are all the simple ones familiar even to the beginner in needlework. It is their effective placing that gives the work its beauty.

Pattern 569 comes to you with a transfer pattern of a 15-inch motif and one motif 8x11 inches, a color chart, detailed directions, illustrations of the stitches and yardage requirements for making a variety of articles.

Send 10 cents for this pattern to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

"Cures" Are Very Often Harmful.

"Hyperhidrosis" is a big word and difficult to pronounce. It would seem to best apply to some horrible disease. In reality it means nothing more than "excessive perspiration." That common complaint is often the cause of much personal embarrassment.

Dr. Copeland

There are many causes of excessive perspiration. It may be the result of some glandular disturbance, as in what doctors call "Grave's disease." In this there is an increase in the glandular secretion of the thyroid gland in the neck. In addition to increased and excessive perspiration, the sufferer complains of palpitation of the heart, trembling, nervousness and loss of weight.

Excessive perspiration is often seen in tuberculosis. In this affliction the hyperhidrosis is usually greater at night. This has given rise to the expression "night sweats." Both in summer and winter the sufferer is drenched in excessive perspiration at night.

There are many other disturbances of the human body that lead to increased perspiration. For example, in malaria excessive perspiration may come and go, or appear at periodic intervals. Many cases of hyperhidrosis have been traced to neglected or unsuspected malaria.

Bear in mind that hyperhidrosis has often been reported in cases of disease, injury or tumor of the brain, and other serious ailments. It is for this reason that I believe excessive perspiration should never be neglected. It is nature's warning and should never be overlooked.

I frequently receive requests as to how excessive perspiration can be combatted. It is true there are many drugs that inhibit the secretion of sweat, but their value is limited to certain cases. Real benefit is obtained only when the underlying cause is discovered and corrected.

This can be determined only by a complete physical examination. It is often advisable to have the urine, as well as the blood, examined. Occasionally valuable information can be obtained by the X-ray.

Do not resort to patent medicines or remedies that guarantee control of excessive perspiration. Avoid all medicines unless they are prescribed for you by the doctor who has examined you. Harmful results too frequently occur from unwise use of certain so-called "cures."

Answers to Health Queries

M. E. W. Q.—I am 16, 5 feet 5 inches tall, what should I weigh?

A—You should weigh about 124 pounds. This is about the average weight for one of this age and height as determined by examination of a large number of persons. A few pounds above or below the average is a matter of little or no significance.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Singing-and-Dancing

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—Please tell me if it is proper for a young man or girl to sing while he or she is dancing?

2—What should a young girl say to a man when he thanks her for the dance? Last week I read in your column that a girl should never say "You're welcome." J.

1—Singing or humming while one is dancing may not be exactly "proper," but I don't think that we should be too hard on these lyric souls who "can't help it." But their lyric "expression" should never be loud!

2—I'm sure that you will agree that "You're welcome" is a pointless and awkward reply to make to "Thank you" for a dance. Analyze it and you see that the girl is taking for granted that the delight of the dance was the man's only, and that she is being too-queenly in her response. What she should say is something that indicates that she too enjoyed the dance . . . "That was a delightful dance, Bob," or "I so much enjoyed that dance," or "It was delightful."

Wedding Plans

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—I am to be married at 4 o'clock on a Saturday afternoon very soon at church. I have asked my younger brother, aged 14, to act as a courtesy usher, and I am wondering whether it would be correct for him to lead the ushers in the march to the altar?

2—Also, what are the duties of the head usher? I intend to have four ushers, besides the younger brother I speak of above. Will it be correct for the ushers to offer their arms to all ladies when directing them or ushering them to their places, whether accompanied by a gentleman or not?

3—Is it possible for the doors of the church, that is, the center aisle, where the bride enters, to be closed after her entrance, in order that there will be no confusion after her entry N.

1—I have never seen this done, and I don't at all like the idea. If your 14-year-old brother is tall, why not have him as one of the four ushers? If he isn't very tall, then your fiance might consider having six ushers and invite, to walk with your brother, one of his friends (one of your fiance's friends, I mean), who is not tall, to walk with your brother.

2—The head usher makes arrangements with the other ushers as to their duties in receiving the guests, and it is he who usually is given the honor of escorting down the aisle the mother and father of the groom, and the mother of the bride.

Yes, the ushers offer their arms to women guests. If a woman is accompanied by a man, the woman takes the usher's arm, and the man walks a step or two behind them.

3—It is the custom to do this. No guest is supposed to be seated after the processional starts up the aisle.

The Private Papers of a Reporter

The gay goings-on along the Grandest Canyon, brisk as they are, somehow do not tempt me these two and three-o'clock-in-the-yawnings—nor have they the same fascination that I get from thumbing the buttons and gadgets on my new toy . . . It is a radio—fully equipped with short wave magic—and I go from Australia to London, Paris, Calcutta, Buenos Aires or Hazleton, Pa., with the turn of a knob or dial . . . If I want Hongkong or any spot on the globe (if it is on the air, of course) I merely contact it . . . Then, too, there are the police calls from any city—such as Omaha, Paterson, N. J., Miami, and so forth—and if I like—I can tune in on the chatter swapped by the amateur radio operators throughout the world—and chuckle at their boyish enthusiasm—as they beg of the stranger who has answered their call—to tell them how good or bad the reception is, etc . . . It is all new stuff to me, and, as a result, I have a diverting time of it.

Then, too, when I weary of the New York orchestras—I switch over to the Cocoanut Grove in Los Angeles—or to Tom Gerun's crew at San Francisco—or to Denver, and so on . . . It was amusing the other 2 a. m., frinstance . . . There was I searching for a West Coast orchestra—fed up with my favorites in New York—and I heard the KFI announcer in Los Angeles say: "And don't forget to listen tomorrow—we will have three big bands—and, get this! All the way from New York!" . . . There was I hungry for California rhythms and there was he thrilled at the thought of getting New York! . . . But that isn't what I started out to paragraph . . . None of these features are as exciting or beard-lifting or spellbinding to me—as tuning in on the breathless chatter swapped between field operators from Camden, Newark, Amarillo, Tex.; Glendale, Cal., etc., and their airplane pilots! . . . If you saw "Night Flight," the movie, you'll understand.

The other night before a snowflake fell in New York—I heard of the approaching storm . . . As the pilots were told to come down . . . But a few nights previous—came the big thrills . . . One pilot said that things looked risky—his visibility was not good—he asked for advice . . . "Take the ship through!" was the bark of the field manager, as he turned him off . . . Another pilot was complaining because he hadn't seen a beacon for miles . . . "Oh, all right," he was told, "don't be a baby" . . . "Okay," was the meek reply . . . Then I tuned in on a plane flying somewhere in the West—I didn't hear the location . . . He was in trouble and didn't even suspect it . . . I heard this: "Now don't get excited," said the voice, "and take it easy—don't be a sissy—you've lost your heels" . . . "Okay," was the indifferent reply! . . . Imagine that! . . . He's merely lost his feet! But he mustn't be a sissy about it . . . And imagine my breathlessness the night of the fierce storm—when I heard orders to all pilots to come down at once—because of danger—which Jimmy Wedell ignored en route with that baby.

Vera Van wonders why I have never been called "Little Boy Pepys"—which F. P. A. once said St. John Ervine called me—but only F. P. A. could have created that nifty . . . I have a complaint about him, by the way . . . A former Purdue professor on English and mathematics memos: "Can it be possible that F. P. A., in trying to pin a fault in diction on the N. A. Teachers of Speech, made an error on his own? What about his first sentence? Doesn't he shove an adverbial modifier on top of a substantive? The phrasing is hardly grammatical Hoyle" . . Uh-huh . . . And tee-hee . . . As if I'd know . . . What the devil is an adverbial modifier or even a substantive?

Apropos of Mayor La Guardia—I like his attitude toward newspapermen . . He summoned the City Hall men the other day and this is what he said . . . "I'm not afraid of newspapermen, but I respect them . . . I've had more publicity—good and bad—especially bad—than almost any other man in public life. But I've managed to survive it fairly well. If you just print the truth about me—that's all I ask!"

As a result, ladies and gentlemen—our next Mayor is better liked than any other locally public official. He's on the level with the boys, who really will serve as his historians . . . It reminds me of what Jimmy Walker once said in his wise way: "I know better than to fight with a newspaperman—he goes to press too often."

You hear the silliest items about some Hollywoodenheads, but the Fox studio music department has standing orders from one of the directors that in the title melody of his movies there must be a cymbal crash when his name is flashed on the screen . . . Raymond Cannon, a former Fox director, who has turned Buddhist, used to insist that he get a round of applause when he walked on to the set. His ass't led the cheering! . . . I like the humility of Lew Ayres (of the movies) on subjects outside the movie profession . . . Ayres, who is a rabid astronomical fan, has a complete observatory and a fine library about the stars. His ideal and idol is Prof. Albert Einstein.

When Ayres had the opportunity to meet the author of relativity, and pose with him in a public photo, he fussed for hours, combing his hair, tying his cravat and changing his suit three times . . . He was that nervous and excited . . . I just saw the photo . . . It reveals Einstein, his hair shooting off in all directions, his collar askew, and a benevolent smile under his unkempt lip spinach . . . but the sartorially perfect actor stands with his mouth adroop like a kid seeing his first circus.

It's a hard paragraph—but I heard it get a semi-titter and a moan . . . A famous politician, 72 years of age, had threatened a columnist for saying he would marry a famous woman . . . Seven months later he married her . . . "I wouldn't mess with that old man," said one listener, even if he is 72. I understand he is tough and can hit." . . . "Yeah?" said another, "what's he gonna hit him with—a shroud?" . . . A radio poll reveals several household favorites such as the Boswells, Kate Smith, Durante, etc., as "unpopular" . . . This is amusing to one on the list—who long since discovered that popularity polls do not interest sponsors. They are interested only in how much the sales of their products increase from radio exploitation . . . And one who is listed as "unpopular" had his contract renewed for 40 weeks (instead of 13), because last year the sales increased 11 per cent . . . Under the NRA we have a code for almost everything in connection with hours . . . I submit that some bankers' hours be from two to ten—years!

'Son of Kong' At Warner

By MARGARET RUSSELL

King Kong's incredible offspring is starring at the Warner this week in "Son of Kong," a fast-moving, spectacular melodrama of action, thrills and horrors, with Robert Armstrong and Helen Mack. Unlike many other "horror" pictures, "Son of Kong" is directed with good-natured consideration for "the willing suspension of disbelief."

Whereas in "Frankenstein," "Dracula," "The Invisible Man," "White Zombie" and "Dr. Jekyl and Mr. Hyde," the monsters took themselves seriously and demanded the proper amount of frozen fear from those at their mercy, little Kong is a friendly, whimsical fellow, of a mere 15 or 20 feet in height, who has a sense of humor and a funny way of scratching his enormous head.

The picture begins where "King Kong" left off. Robert Armstrong faces the monstrous consequences of the captive ape king's destructive power. With countless property damage suits and a grand jury indictment at his heels, he makes a getaway on a tramp steamer. Drifting into a far-off port, he is annexed by a homeless girl.

The intrepid pair, looking for treasure on the ex-King Kong's island haunt, stumble on little Kong, who has got himself stuck in a mud puddle (quick-sand to you). In gratitude (can't you make believe?) the playful youngster constitutes himself an ever-ready aid in time of hunger or trouble, even unwittingly disclosing the treasure, by gum!

You can believe the gods were angry, then, or you can think it just happened—the earthquake that shook the island paradise, just as our hero reached for the "jools."

Our hero and his little playmate climb higher and higher as the island is submerged, until at last the mountain, on which is little Kong, is submerged too, all but his great arm, sticking out of the roaring sea like an evolutionary symbol of apehood.

Amos 'n' Andy step into the ranks this week to compete with Micky Mouse and Popeye, best loved heroes of animated cartoons, in "The Rasslin' Match," synchronized with the real voices of the famous radio pair. In Fox Movietone News, there are shots of the California flood, of Columbia University's gridiron victory in the West, and of President Roosevelt addressing Congress.

Oakie, Haley In Penn's Musical

By MICHAEL SHAW

"Sitting Pretty," which opened at the Penn yesterday, is another one about Hollywood.

This time it's a couple of songwriters, played by Jack Oakie and Jack Haley, who hitch-hike to movieland, go through the usual struggles and complications, and fade out happily after a spectacular musical number.

Ginger Rogers and Thelma Todd provide the feminine interest, Thelma in a siren's part, and Gregory Ratoff is as excellent a dialectician as ever.

Gordon and Revel have given "Sitting Pretty" more than its quota of song hits. "Good Morning, Glory," "You're Such a Comfort to Me," and "Did You Ever See a Dream Walking?" are a few of them.

The last tune, which occupies the airways almost continuously these nights, is accompanied on the screen by a fan dance, but instead of just one Sally Rand we find scores of Hollywood cuties waving a fortune in ostrich plumes. They wear almost as little as Sally, too, and at one place it looked as if the Pennsylvania censors had intervened.

The stars do what they can with the material. Oakie is his usual self, Haley is appealing as the young lyric-writer just up from the shipping department, and Ginger Rogers, slim and lovely, sings in her own inimitable style.

The Charley Chase comedy may be recommended. The Hearst Metrotone News, a Grantland Rice Sportlight, and one of the popular series of "Screen Souvenirs" complete the bill.

Sleuth Wins In Davis

By MARY SHINE

Gangster warfare and racketeering have certainly lined the pockets of scenario writers, so many movies and plays have there been centering about such individuals. "Shadows of Sing Sing" is another such, appearing on the Davis screen.

The sweet young sister of a dangerous racketeer and the son of a member of the police bureau of identification fall in love. Their marriage is once prevented by the girl's brother.

The gangster is murdered, and the whole thing is engineered by a member of his mob to fasten suspicion on our brawny young hero.

There is much ado about finding the murderer, with members of the dead criminal's mob also on a still hunt, one among them who gets his clues from Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar." Just as the grand jury is ready to indict the innocent man for first-degree murder, there is a surprise scene in the courtroom and the murderer is revealed.

Mary Brian is the winsome girl in the case, Bruce Cabot her fiance, and Grant Mitchell the father.

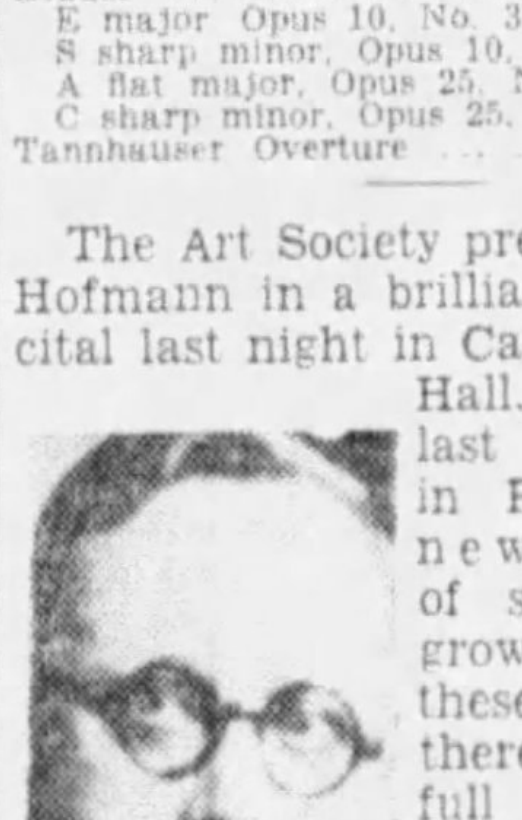
The Art Society presented Josef Hofmann in a brilliant piano recital last night in Carnegie Music Hall. Since his last appearance in Pittsburgh a new generation of students has grown up and these were all there; it was a full house and we were repaid for our enthusiasm.



Mr. Lissfelt

Pianists no longer build programs of such dimensions as Hofmann played. For musicians it was a boon, for seekers of mere entertainment perhaps too big a dose of the grand style in piano music and in piano playing.

There were notes which fell by the wayside as with Hofmann's master Rubinstein; there were muddy passages, and there were thunderings which might have been tempered to lovelier quality. But there were breadth of declamation and subtlety of nuance that bespeak the master musician and pianist. He has often toyed with tone as if in meditation. But not last night—he was speaking to the heavens.

In the fine Mendelssohn Fugue he made its architecture clear as a blueprint. The Beethoven was, I believe, the masterpriece of the evening, for there with skillful pedaling and with his marvelous sense for contrast Hofmann avoided all bombast and recreated a work of stupendous dignity.

The Schumann Fantasy was conceived in simpler style than might have been expected and did not suffer thereby. In the four etudes of Chopin one could remain astonished at the daring speed but could hardly be impressed otherwise. The "Tannhaeuser" Overture used to be a tour de force before we knew Horowitz. Now with Hofmann it remains an overladen paraphrase, a good show piece but no longer orchestral.

In his encores Hofmann played his old favorites which every audience is bound to applaud—the D Flat Nocturne of Chopin, the Rubinstein arrangement of Beethoven's march from the "Ruins of Athens," and the Chopin "Minute Waltz," arranged in thirds as Rosenthal used to play it.

Tales From Hollywood

AMBASSADOR HOTEL, LOS ANGELES, Cal.—I met the man on one of the better motion picture lots the other afternoon. He's an actor, and has been for some years. Like so many others, he would be a greater star than he is—if it hadn't been for a certain woman.

That woman was his wife. He had been deeply in love with her. It was one of those ideal marriages until the ideal turned to a misdeal. They battled. They separated. They became reconciled. They parted again. And on and on and on.

That romance, if I may be permitted to call it such, became the talk of Hollywood and the gossip columns. If you think hard, you'll remember the case—and you'll remember that the man's career was harmed by it. Kidding notoriety harms far more than it helps.

Well, all that happened in the past. The actor is completely divorced now, and he is back on the road to better things. I hadn't intended to talk to him about his ex-wife, but he brought the subject up himself.

"I'm the happiest guy in the world now, Mark," he confided. "I never realized how unbearable that woman really was. Thank goodness, it's finally all over."

I nodded. It never hurts to agree with a happy guy.

"That's fine," I said. "But you don't have to tell me that you're happy. I can see it in your work. You've done a couple of swell jobs in your last two pictures."

He grinned. "How can I help it?" he went on. "I've finally realized what the word 'peace' means I've finally realized that there are things in this world besides petty jealousies and nagging and arguments.

"Mark, you don't know how completely satisfied I am these days. Sometimes I think I'm in heaven. I have my own little home in Beverly Hills. I go there when I please. I leave when I please. Nobody is around to tell me what I can or cannot do.

"The nagging is a thing of the past. If I want to bring my dog into the house, that's exactly what I do. When I want company, I throw a little party for my friends. And when I want to be alone, I can sit at ease in my pajamas and listen in the quiet to my heart's content. There's nothing like it, Mark. Sometimes I feel that I'm just about the luckiest man in the world."

A few more words, and I told him I had to be running along. "Good luck, kid," I said. "I'm glad for your sake."

He hesitated for a moment as we shook hands. Then he leaned closer.

"I guess I can tell you something else," he whispered. "There's another reason why I'm so happy. I've found a new girl and I'm getting married again next month." . . .

A VERY talented young actress was brought here from New York a short while ago to enact on the screen the same role that she had played on the Broadway stage. The film version was almost the same as the stage production, and the young lady's lines were virtually the same as she had been reciting for many months during the Broadway run.

She had one particular line that had always been the biggest laugh in the show. The laugh arrived in the middle of the line. And the actress had always been compelled to wait while the audiences laughed for a minute or so. Naturally, when she delivered the same line for the screen version, she paused a few seconds in the laugh spot.

The Director was highly incensed. What, he demanded to know, was the idea of the pause in the middle of a line?

The actress explained very carefully. It was the funniest line in the show, she pointed out, and she had always been compelled to pause while delivering it on the stage. The director waved an imperious hand.

"You will read the line right through," he ordered. "You must realize, young lady, that you are making a motion picture he-re. You are not playing to an audience." . . .

Some 40 miles from Hollywood, on the road to Santa Barbara, there is a gambling house that is owned by a jovial Irishman. This bird has charitable tendencies, and he is always attempting to do a little something for some organization.

His last effort took place a few days ago when he turned his entire establishment over to a community congregation. He provided, at his own expense, a dinner for some 200 people. Tickets were sold to these people at $2 each, and all the money was to be turned over to the poor of the chruch. That meant, of course, the tidy sum of $400 for the poor.

You might consider a gambling house a poor place for a church affair. But it was all for the sake of charity. And when the night finally drew to a close, the congregation discovered that it had lost $16,000 in the gaming rooms.

I'VE heard all sorts of advertising on the air, but I hit a new one out here the other night.

I was fooling around with the dials when I suddenly heard a program announced as coming to the radio audience by courtesy of a cemetery on the outskirts of Los Angeles.

The attraction on the cemetery program was a jazz band. And the first number they played was "Design for Living."

Miss Harvey Ambitious

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 6.—Be it ever so amazing, Lilian Harvey says that if she loses her court fight against Fox, she'll go right back to Germany, get married and have a baby.

The dainty star won't name German actor, Willy Fritsch, as the prospective bridegroom, but she admits she talked to him 15 minutes on Christmas Day. She also displays a platinum and diamond wedding ring, which arrived as a Yuletide gift. The inside of the ring is inscribed: "IWSIL." The star won't translate the code meaning.

Blonde Lilian is nothing if not confident. She says she already has ordered a nursery to be built onto her villa outside of Berlin.

Meanwhile, the star soon will begin, under protest, dubbing her latest picture, "I Am Suzanne," into French and German. It is to test Fox's right to make her do these voice-dubbing foreign versions that Lilian will go to court this month against the studio.

Novelty Film Pleasing in Stanley

By ZORA D. UNKOVICH

Beautiful women galore sway sensuously to the blood-warming of the "carioca," new my-forehead-to-yours dance, in "Flying Down to Rio," entertaining extravaganza now making its bid for originality honors in the Stanley.

No skimping in scenic details in this production of RKO, which centers about a debonair young orchestra leader who flirts once too often with a hotel guest and finds himself entangled, quite willingly, in a love affair the outcome of which seems hopeless so far as he is concerned.

Exotically lovely Dolores Del Rio is the Brazilian cause of Gene Raymond and his orchestra being cast out of the Miami Date Grove to land, via luxurious planes, at the Atlantico in Rio de Janeiro. Raymond manages, incidentally, to trick the carefully watched Belinha (Miss Del Rio) into being his traveling partner. But, as is so often the case, the joke turns out to be on him.

Fred Astaire makes the show his own with a keenly directed humor that is only topped by his dancing. He dances, and how he dances, from Florida to Brazil, partnered by that more than capable youngster, Ginger Rogers.

The silent sufferer of the picture—there's always one around—is handsome Raul Roulien, who certainly deserves a little better treatment at the hands of the flirting Belinha.

The scenery is positively gorgeous in "Flying Down to Rio," the dancing so very different as to be sometimes just a little in need of a blue-nosed censor, and the ideas, especially the chorus girls doing their numbers in the blowing wind atop a fleet of planes, really new.

President In Hearst News

THE GLOBE TROTTER

Remarkable scenes of President Roosevelt appearing before and addressing the Seventy-third Congress are contained in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News. High lights of the President's speech are heard as he declares that the new deal is here to stay.

The first pictures from the flooded sections of Los Angeles County, California, caught in the worst rains in 57 years, are shown, with a vivid description of the destruction wrought, by the Globe Trotter. Part of Montrose is revealed as a sea of mud. Smashed automobiles litter the streets and workers dig in the mud for the missing.

Metrotone accompanies the six Navy seaplanes which are to attempt a non-stop flight from San Francisco to Honolulu, in their first practice spin at San Diego.

F. B. Opper is greeted by a score of other cartoonists on the occasion of his 77th birthday. Mr. Opper shows that he is still young as he rapidly draws an amusing picture of one of his most famous creations, "Happy Hooligan."

The fastest outboards in the country engage in a thrilling race for the William Randolph Hearst trophy on Lake McQueeny, San Antonio, Tex.

Babe Ruth starts training in Art McGovern's gymnasium in New York City, engaging in many kinds of reducing stunts.

Thrilling pictures are shown of the football game in the Rose Bowl at Pasadena, Cal., in which the Columbia Lions astounded the football world by defeating the Stanford Indians by a score of 7-0. There are pictures, too, of the Pasadena Rose Carnival with its gorgeous floats and pretty girls.

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

No Compromise on Ball. Older Loop Yields Again. Warburton Overplayed. ◆ Ruth Proposal Denied. Floor Teams Compared. Ban on Faded Fighters.

Remember the old gag about the man who was telling of a difference of opinion between his wife and himself as to where they should spend their vacation? He said that he had suggested the seashore but the Missus had expressed a preference for the mountains, and that after debating the question they had "compromised" on the mountains. The National League can file a report of like nature about its dealings with the American League for the adoption of a uniform ball for next season. Instead of getting a midway type of sphere that would have been neither too lively not too dead, as many senior-loop patrons had hoped it would be, the outcome of the conference between Presidents John A. Heydler and William Harridge, the National, it seems, agreed to "compromise" on the American League's ball.

William Harridge

That's not a compromise, but a surrender, the usual yielding by the senior loop to any stand taken by the younger one. It means, for the National, a livelier ball with a two-ply decrease in cover and stitching, fewer pitchers' battles, higher scores and more (not better) hitting. The American League has come home-run hitters to promote, and the National now goes along. The only thing gained is uniformity of ball in majors and minors, a most desirable condition, but one that could have been reached more happily by splitting the difference. But, as usual, the American League wouldn't play unless it could have its own way, and, also as usual, the National lacked the solidity to make a fight for anything like a fifty-fifty compromise.

COAST PROTESTS 'TOO MUCH WARBURTON'

Some football men say they will not be surprised if the continual boosting of Cotton Warburton has a harmful effect on the playing of the Southern California team next fall. They think the spirit of the other players on the squad will be hurt by the feeling that no matter what they may do the credit will go to Warburton, anyhow. Certainly there is plenty of resentment being shown right in Los Angeles at present toward what is termed "too much Warburton."

It isn't that they don't like Cotton. They just want a word for the rest of the hard-working crew. Coast fans always are gentle in their criticism. They say the sweetest things. A follower of one of Southern California's rivals suggests that the Noblest Trojan of them all is not Warburton or Rosenberg, but Referee Jim Blewett. Another wrote to a paper to inquire, solemnlike, if it were true that Blewett had been picked by St. Mary's and Washington players on their all-opponents teams.

DENIES THAT REDS EVER ASKED FOR RUTH

As pointed out at the time, the statement recently credited to Larry MacPhail that he had tried to get Babe Ruth from the Yankees for the purpose of making him manager of the Reds, and had failed only because of Col. Jacob Ruppert's "No," was absurd on its face, inasmuch as Ruth could not leave the American League without waivers and there was no chance that any of the seven other clubs would pass him up. Now it develops, according to Col. Ruppert, that even the reported effort to get Ruth was a bald fake, as no such attempt ever was made.

Jacob Ruppert

The owner of the Yankees declares that he has not seen MacPhail, that no representative of the Cincinnati club has mentioned Ruth to him, and that he never said he would not consider letting Ruth go. The colonel insists that no club has asked him to release Ruth so that he might become a manager. "Make that as strong as you like," Ruppert adds. "It sounds to me as though somebody is looking for some advertising." And evidently the winter romancing in baseball has not been confined to the new operators in Cincinnati. Or the big men of the A's appear to have their wires crossed. Jimmy Foxx, star slugger, informs the press that the money obtained for Grove, Cochrane, Earnshaw, Bishop and Walberg will be used "to carry on the job started last season, the building of another champion." If memory serves, Connie Mack said he had to sell those players to get money with which to pay off obligations to banks.

FAMOUS FIVES SEEN AS DIFFERENT TYPES

Commenting on Buck Gefsky's letter to the Sun-Telegraph, in which the former Coffey Club star ranked the Wilmerding Airbrake basketball team of war days above the old and the present Celtics, J. J. Freund, Jr., writes that the performance of the Celtics here recently was not a true criterion of their ability, as they had not shaken off the effects of two days of bus riding and Pete Berry was handicaped by an injury.

> "In regard to the old Wilmerding team," Freund continues, "everybody must admit that that was a great five and a power in the Eastern League when it joined that organization. But the fact must not be overlooked that the Celtics play a type of ball different from the Wilmerding system. They are more of a defensive team and play continually to retain possession of the ball. In this way they make their work easier, and do not have to go out and score 40 to 50 points to win games. Wilmerding, on the other hand, was a strictly offensive team, as were most of the quintets of that period. When the Celtics had to put on the pressure here recently they did it. They had the ability to step out and get the points when they needed them."

CALIFORNIA BARS WASHED-UP FIGHTERS

For the good of the game and the safety of the broken-down fighters affected, fistic powers in other parts of the country might well follow the lead of the California Boxing Commission. Washed-up, punch-drunk battlers, who willingly serve as human punching bags for the price of a meal, are to be barred from California rings. And so are the conniving, unscrupulous managers who take half of the meager earnings of the Queensberry derelicts for peddling the latter's pitiful services to equally unscrupulous promoters. The commission has appointed a committee, headed by Tom Cox, of Los Angeles, to stamp out the practice. It will be the committee's duty to report to the commission all fighters and managers who belong under that heading, and steps will then be taken to prevent further ring activity by the tottering veterans and their greedy pilots.

Jackie Fields

One former champion didn't wait for the ruling, even though it may be said not to apply to him. Jackie Fields, ex-welterweight king, will run no more chances of being rendered blind by punishment around his ailing eyes. He has applied for and received a California license as a referee, and hereafter will shelve his gloves and serve as third man in the ring.

By CARL W. SHATTO

The Yellow Jackets will be under at least two big handicaps when they strive to pad their North American Professional Lacrosse Association lead at the expense of the Buffalo Indians at Motor Square Garden at 8:30 tonight.

Handicap No. 1 is that tonight's battle will be the third for the locals in the last four days and the second in as many nights, they having met the Blue Ribbons in Chicago last night.

Odie Core and a surgeon's knife are responsible for handicap No. 2. The fiery red-headed stalwart, who can perform equally well on the front line or at defense, was stricken with appendicitis New Years eve, and had his appendix removed at St. Francis Hospital three and one-half hours after the birth of the New Year.

LOCALS SEEK RESERVES

Larry Welch, manager of the local team, is attempting to bring in one or more additional players to relieve the pressure until Core is able to return to action. He has under contract one Bucko McDonald, a lacrosse player of extraordinary ability, but McDonald also is a hockey star, and the Buffalo Bisons, of the International Hockey League, with whom he is playing, may block efforts to bring Bucko here.

The Indians, who really are Redskins and who make a practice of beating their opponents' heads much after the manner in which their ancestors massaged tom toms, put on the roughest, wildest show of the season on the occasion of their first visit here.

The probable lineup:

PITTSBURGH.			BUFFALO.
No.	Player	Pos.	Player	No.
1	Cordick	G	Little Elk	16
2	P. Langevin	D	Deer Foot	15
3	N. Langevin	D	Big Jack	1
10	LaFrance	C	Longboat	7
9	Vincent	F	Chief Martin	14
7	Bouliane	F	Young Deer	12

Pittsburgh substitutes—No. 4, McLean; No. 5, L'Heureux; No. 8, Jennings.

Buffalo substitutes—No. 5, Mt. Pleasant; No. 6, Tecumseh; No. 8, Silver Heels; No. 10, Running Deer.

Referee—Kalls, Buffalo.

PITTSBURGHERS BEATEN

CHICAGO, Jan. 6.—The Chicago Blue Ribbons boasted a tie with the Pittsburgh Yellow Jackets for top position in the North American Lacrosse Association today, following their second consecutive triumph over the Steel Citians. Last night, the Blue Ribbons defeated the visitors, 14 to 4.

Chicago stepped out to a 3-to-1 lead in the first period, added a point in the second when they outscored their opponents 3 to 2, made it 11 to 4 in the third stanza and then picked up an additional three points in the final.

LaFrance scored two of Pittsburgh's goals, with Bain getting five goals for the Blue Ribbons and White accounting for four.

The score by periods:

Chicago	4	3	4	3—14
Pittsburgh	1	2	1	0— 4

Scoring: Chicago—Bain 5, White 4, Barron, Baldwin, Stephenson, Kingdon, Sanderson.

Pittsburgh—La France 2, Vincent, M. Langevin.

Penalty—Jennings, Pittsburgh, 5 minutes.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: CHURCH BUILT IN A DAY—A remarkable parade in the history of Halifax was that of August 31, 1843. On that date, at 7:30 a. m., an overflowing assembly of parishioners gathered in and around St. Mary's Church for the purpose of offering a free-will gift of a day's labor to improve the land and to build a church in a single day. Detailed and complete plans had been made, each man attending to his own task, and, less than 12 hours later, the new church crowned the hillsides, ready for occupancy. MIGHTY MITES—Although most African natives are cunning and wary hunters of wild animals, none but the Manbutis pygmies will dare to attack the giant gorilla. The Manbutis are only 4 feet to 4 feet 6 inches in height and seldom weigh more than 100 pounds, while the giant gorilla is 6 feet 6 inches in height, and weighs from 400 to 600 pounds, being fierce and strong in porportion. This suggestion, and the photo from which my drawing was made, were offered to me in London by the famous African explorer, Gatti, who has headed a number of expeditions to that little known continent.

Temple and Pitt in the Stadium Pavilion, the Dukes and Valparaiso on the Bluff and Carnegie Tech and West Virginia in the Field House at Morgantown . . . there you have tonight's college basketball setup as it applied to Pittsburgh's three varsity quintets.

Supporting this card we have in the district Westminster and Glenville going to it at New Wilmington, where nothing but a sound licking apparently faced the touring West Virginians; the opening of the championship race in the Western Conference and a generally heavy program throughout the East and South.

The Pitt-Temple and Carnegie-West Virginia games are Eastern Intercollegiate Conference affairs. Pitt, holding first place in the conference, can enhance its position by beating off the Owls, who have dropped five straight games to Pitt quintets in the past. A victory for the visitors, however, will give them the lead and shove the locals down in the standing to a .500 rating.

PANTHERS FAVORITES

Having beaten such teams as Ohio State, Georgetown, Northwestern and Minnesota, while losing to Purdue and Butler, the Panthers, despite the fact they've not yet shown the flash that usually characterizes Pitt quintets, are favored to beat the Owls. Temple has defeated George Washington, Johns Hopkins and Michigan and lost to Indiana in its four starts.

The Dukes anticipate nothing but a victory, and probably another decisive one as they tackle the Valparaiso Uhlans. The Uhlans have been spending the past few days in this vicinity, and have one victory and two defeats to show for their efforts. They defeated Davis Elkins but lost to Marshall and last night, to Geneva.

Carnegie Tech makes its first start of the season tonight against the Mountaineers. A close contest is anticipated. West Virginia hardly will be at its best for the game, having come through a torrid session last night at Cumberland against the University of Maryland's Old Liners. The game was won, but not without the expenditure of considerable effort on the Morgantowners' part.

HANNUM SETS LINEUP

Coach Max Hannum, who has been in a quandary regarding his lineup ever since he first called his squad together, has decided to start a pair of sophomores, Macalka and Gibson, at the forwards, with Ewalt at center and Capt. Red Silvermand and Ted Rigg at the guards.

The Duquesne frosh team will take on the Boys' Club of Oakdale in a preliminary to the Dukes-Uhlan encounter. Pitt authorities are seeking to match their yearlings with a City League scholastic five for a Stadium appetizer. The probable starting varsity lineups follow:

PITT.	Pos.	TEMPLE.
McCamant	F	Rosan
W. Hughes	F	Messikomer
Cribbs	C	Brown
Ochsenshirt	G	Fox
C. Hughes	G	Frieburg

Officials—Bill Evans and Kenny Heider.

DUQUESNE.	Pos.	VALPARAISO.
Feldman	F	Bauer
Murphy	F	Glessing
Meyers	C	(C) Barnekoff
Reiter	G	Kowalski
Moore	G	Karr

Referee—Dr. Sykes Reed (Pitt); Umpire—J. L. Montgomery (Geneva).

CARNEGIE.	Pos.	WEST VA.
Macalka	F	Colebank
Gibson	F	Stydahar
Ewalt	C	Klug
Rigg	G	Mestrovic
Silverman (C)	G	Weine

Referee—Art Ward; Umpire — Ben Richman.

M'PHAIL PICKS BOB O'FARRELL

CINCINNATI, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—It looks like Bob O'Farrell will be the next manager of the Cincinnati Reds, but it's still up to St. Louis.

He hasn't been signed, but General Manager Larry MacPhail has announced that he isn't considering anybody other than the St. Louis catcher, and the home-town experts feel O'Farrell is just as good as hired.

After a conference here with Branch Rickey, vice president of the Cardinals, MacPhail announced:

"I've made up my mind. Now it's up to St. Louis."

The Reds' chief believes O'Farrell has every qualification to succeed in lifting the Redlegs from the National League cellar, in which they have lain for the last three seasons.

The St. Louis catcher was said to be eager to come to Cincinnati. He would succeed Donie Bush, who has returned to the Minneapolis Millers as pilot.

CARDS FAVOR MOVE

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—Indication that the St. Louis Cardinals, owner of Catcher Bob O'Farrell, won't discourage efforts to sign him as manager of the Cincinnati Reds, was apparent today.

After declining to comment last night on announcement of Larry McPhail that he wanted O'Farrell, and that it was "up to St. Louis," Sam Breadon, Cardinal head man, today spoke more encouragingly. He said:

"We won't stand in O'Farrell's way, if he has a chance to get the job of manager of the Reds."

Championship campaigns in the City Scholastic League and the W. P. I. A. L. got under way yesterday afternoon and last night with a sprinkling of upsets and evidence of intense interest along all fronts.

In the City League, a pair of favorites were toppled in Section I as Taylor Allderdice's fast-passing aggregation defeated Fifth Avenue, 25 to 22, and Westinghouse hung it on Peabody, 36 to 21. In the Allderdice-Fifth battle, the victors spurted to come from behind in the closing moments of the game to register the triumph.

CONNELLY WINS

In the third Section I contest, Connelley, a pre-season favorite to stay up at the top, defeated Schenley, 27 to 18.

Oliver, Langley and Perry scored triumphs in Section II. Langley recorded its fifth victory in a row by beating Carrick, 25 to 21, in a well-played contest. Oliver nosed out Allegheny Vocational, 23 to 20, and Perry dumped Allegheny, 42 to 32.

South High, not scheduled for City League competition, was nosed out by New Castle at New Castle, 27 to 26 in a hectic battle. New Castle came from behind in the final quarter to win.

Favorites generally came through in the W. P. I. A. L., the defeat of the highly touted New Brighton team by Butler being the lone upset. Butler won, 26 to 22, to get off to a fine start in Section III.

The defending W. P. I. A. L. champions, Duquesne, took things easy against McKeesport, winning 34 to 14 and indicated that once again it will meet all challengers for the crown on equal terms. Scott, of North Braddock, downed Edgewood, 42 to 24; East Pittsburgh defeated Pitcairn, 29 to 14.

BRIDGERS ON TOP

Ambridge downed Midland, 26 to 19; New Kensington started off on the right football by defeating Oakmont, 37 to 20; Charleroi trimmed Donora, 40 to 16; Aliquippa had it easy against Beaver, winning 40 to 10; Mt. Lebanon upset McKees Rocks, 27 to 23; Swissvale nosed out Wilkinsburg, 24 to 20; Hurst High beat Scottdale, 33 to 16; Uniontown battered Dunbar, 40 to 10; Washington crushed Trinity, 36 to 7, and Stowe beat Crafton in a low scoring contest, 16 to 7.

CHILLYSAUCE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Lloyd Waner's behaviour stands as an antithesis of chestiness, yet Lloyd last night issued a ringing defi to Manager George Gibson of the Buccos . . . The little outfielder challenged his big boss to a game of golf to be played on the mountainous terrain of Stanton Heights . . . Gibby finds it hard to take a dare so he accepted . . . Although he is said to be an apt golfer after two years of participation in the sport, Gibby probably is walking into a fast one when he agrees to battle Lloyd at Stanton . . . The outfielder recently negotiated the tough course in 86 and this with a handicap like Socko McCarey attempting to talk Lloyd out of his shots.

The Waner boys both hit from the same side of the plate, but Lloyd is a righthand swinger when he goes in for the Scotch game . . . He hits a long ball straight down the alley, but just a few days ago he found what kept him up in the high 90's consistently . . . It was his putting—and how do you think he cured it? . . . He got himself a southpaw putter, so now Lloyd plays all his strokes righthanded until he reaches the green . . . The finesse so necessary to putting was found in his lefthand stroke. Brother Paul is a lefthand socker all the way and he hits them "down town" from the tee.

Davis J. Walsh, sports editor of the International News Service, came to town yesterday and went into a two-hour huddle with Elmer Layden on The Bluff . . . The conversation revolved around the Notre Dame system and Layden in his demonstrations put Davis through so many jump shifts, the Hearst scribe had to be carted off the Bluff in one of Mr. Parmelee's hacks.

Layden's peeve on the Dukes-Miami battle on New Years was gone as he reached his office yesterday and the popular coach was able to hand out the inside story of his angle on the contest with a smile. . . . It seems that Bob Zuppke, Illinois coach who was giving a lift to Coach McCann, of the Hurricanes, was close enough to one official to prompt him. . . . Zuppke apparently was able to get the arbiter to fall for his ruse of calling the Dukes' shift illegal. . . . Layden kept his patience until the first half was over and then he took the officials to task. . . . When the whistle boys appeared for the second half they steered clear of Mr. Zuppke.

During my visit to Duquesne I discerned a strong undercurrent in favor of baseball . . . John D. Holahan, graduate manager of the institution, saw some promise in this writer's suggestion that the Dukes, Pitt, Tech, Wash-Jeff and West Virginia authorize teams to be knitted into a league whose games could be staged at Forbes Field.

Holahan pointed out that the Dukes' campus held so many good players last year they were able to hold their own with other school clubs in an unofficial way . . . On the Pitt football squad there are several potential diamond stars . . . The interest shown in the baseball fights staged at the home of the Pirates by the leading teams of the city's high schools indicates the game should be fostered by the high seats of learning.

MAX, KINGFISH BOUT CERTAIN

CHICAGO, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—A meeting between Max Schmeling and King Levinsky at the Chicago Stadium February 16 was a virtual certainty, and the Stadium Operating Company hoped today to line up Max Baer to meet the winner.

Joe Jacobs, manager of the German heavyweight, who will return to the United States to make another drive to recover the world title, agreed to the date by telephone yesterday. One of Levinsky's several shareholders did likewise. Jacobs is expected in Chicago Monday to discuss details, such as the financial terms and length of the bout. The Stadium has planned on 10 rounds, while Schmeling prefers 15, leaving a compromise at 12 likely.

Carl Snavely Set For N. Carolina Post

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—The Record says announcement is expected to be made Monday that Carl Snavely, football coach at Bucknell University, Lewisburg, Pa., will become coach of the University of North Carolina.

The paper states the announcement is expected after a meeting of the athletic committee of the southern university at Raleigh.

ELDRED TRAILS AT MIAMI

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 6.—(INS.)—With Charles McAllister, of Forest Hills, L. I., showing the way, the Miami open golf tournament entered its second 18-hole stage today.

McAllister jumped the field yesterday when he came through with a brilliant 66, four under par. Willie Dow, of Miami Springs, was second with 68, while Tommy Armour, of Chicago; Phil Perkins, former British star, and Ralph Stonehouse were tied for third with scores of 69.

Vincent Eldred, Pittsburgh professional, scored a 75 for the first 18 holes, with rounds of 40 and 35.

L. A. OPEN ON

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—Over the same course where the first money tournament of the Pacific Coast was held eight years ago—the Los Angeles Country Club—140 golfers set out today in quest of the Los Angeles open title and $5,000 in prize money.

Craig Wood, Deal, N. J., pro, the defending champion, faced probably the most imposing array in the nine years of the classic, for virtually the only big names missing from the starter's list were Gene Sarazen, national P. G. A. champion; Walter Hagen, Willie McFarlane and Ed Dudley.

Ben Pope, giant racquet instructor at the Keystone Athletic Club, will seek new honors in the National Professional squash racquets title tourney at the Penn A. C. in Philadelphia next week-end. Pope, who was runner-up to the famed Jack Summers, of Boston, about three seasons ago, recently trimmed the present champion, Johnny Skillmann, of Apawamis, in a three-day exhibition series here on the new Keystone gallery court.

WIFE IN TOURNEY

Meanwhile, Mrs. Mildred Pope, wife of the K. A. C. mentor, is in New York with Mrs. William D. Bickell for the National Women's championship event next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday at the Cosmopolitan Club and the Junior League. Susan Noel, English star, who annexed the American crown last year, will not defend the bauble. Margaret Anderson and Miss Bereford, Montclair luminaries, are rated among leading aspirants to the throne. Mrs. Pope has drawn Miss Beresford in the initial round, while Mrs. Bickell is paired off against another Eastern hope, Cecilia Segal.

Closer to home, the P. S. R. A. Inter-Club League continues action today with a full program, while the City Handball circuit resumes operations after a three weeks' holiday respite. In Class A, the Winged Headers visit a premier Pittsburgh Golf Club crew now depleted by the absence of Joe Oliver on his wedding trip. In Class B, the Red and Gray entertains an Edgeworth Club contingent blanked by P. A. A. invaders in its own bailiwick last Saturday.

K. A. C., ALLEGHENY MEET

Perhaps the warmest racquet rustle of the day involves Keystone No. 2 with Allegheny Country Club in upper sector fray at the K. A. C. Pittsburgh Golf Club and the Keystoners clash downtown in Class B engagement that offers the home team fine chance to profit by any P. A. A. letup.

Renewal of handball hostilities finds triple deadlock among Y. M. H. A., Downtown Y. M. C. A. and Keystone A. C. for the apex of the Class A group. Heat aplenty should be generated as the Keystone array treks to the Y. M. C. A. The tilted Y. M. H. A. squad should advance over its mutually embroiled rivals in home debate with the tail-end P. A. A. glovesters. In the lower section, the pace-making Downtown Y host journeys abroad for hazardous fracas with the rehabilitated Winged Head seconds, while Y. M. H. A. travels to the Keystone for clash with Westinghouse Club.

CENTRAL LOOP TEAMS MEET

By TOM BIRKS

Four games are carded in the Central District Soccer League this afternoon. The league-leading Arsenal eleven goes to Leslie Field to meet the Dunwick Rovers. Arsenal, although due for a tough game, should win.

Beltzhoover meets the Union Switch eleven. The Swissvalers appeared before the soccer commission Thursday night and were tendered a clean bill of health. There was a rumor going the rounds that the Switchmen were through for the season.

The Pittsburgh Rovers appear at the Westinghouse High School Stadium for a tilt with the Clan Douglas team, and Ambridge crosses the Ohio River to meet Aliquippa.

In the Panhandle League, the Fink A. C. makes the trip to Houston to meet the Merchants.

M'Larnin Refuses Bout With Dundee

VANCOUVER, B. C., Jan. 6.—(AP.)—Jimmy McLarnin, world welterweight champion, will not fight Vince Dundee, the middleweight king, in Madison Square Garden, New York, this winter, according to his manager, Pop Foster. Foster said:

"Dundee's too big, besides, there would be no money in a fight like that. Dundee holds a title too, and he'd want too big a cut."

Jaques to Remain As U. S. G. A. Head

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—More than 60 delegates gathered today for the annual meeting of the United States Golf Association, prepared to re-elect Herbert Jaques, of Boston, as president, formally approve many amendments and changes in the rules of the game, and hear numerous committee reports.

HARTNETT SIGNS

CHICAGO, Jan. 6.—(INS.)—Gabby Hartnett, veteran Chicago Cubs catcher, today held a contract for 1934, his thirteenth year with the Cubs. Salary terms were not revealed.

L. WANER MAY BE SENT BACK TO OLD POST

The return of many signed contracts for 1934 and the probable switch of Lloyd Waner to his old centerfield post were developments today in the camp of the Pirates.

Officials of the local club do not follow the routine of nearly all the other major league teams in announcing the signing of the various players, but it is known that quite a few of the Bucs already are safely in the fold.

LAVAGETTO SIGNS

One of the latest of the Pirates to affix his name to a document is the youngest and newest member of the Pirate family, Second-baseman Harry Lavagetto, recently purchased from the Oakland club of the Pacific Coast League. A news dispatch from Oakland states that Lavagetto has signed his first major league contract.

Manager Gibson's decision to try out his outfield with Brother Lloyd flanked by Paul Waner in rightfield and Freddie Lindstrom in leftfield will make a direct hit in Pittsburgh.

It was with inward misgivings that Lloyd switched to leftfield last season. True, the little fellow was a star in the left pasture before he moved the central patrol, but he prefers the middle spot and he says he will be tickled if Gibby puts him in this position.

WELCOMES LIVELY BALL

Things will be 100 per cent to Lloyd's liking in the event he is playing again at his old post. The decision of the two major leagues to adopt a uniform ball of lively substance is good news to all the athletes with the exception of the pitchers who are in for some dangerous moments.

Little Lloyd was good enough to lead the league in three-base hits not so many years ago. And when he is at his best he is playing a .350 tune. If he holds to that sort of a symphony during the next campaign, the Buccos are likely to go places.

Pitcher Steve Swetonic paid Manager Gibson a social call at headquarters yesterday.—CHARLES J. DOYLE.

HOCKEY LOOP OPENS PLAY

An old friend who has been absent from local winter sports circles for the last couple of years, will be welcomed back into the fold, very likely with much enthusiasm, at Duquesne Garden at 8:30 tonight, when the recently organized Pittsburgh Amateur Hockey League opens its championship campaign.

The J. Scott Morgans, of East Liberty, are to battle the H. J. Webers, of Oakland, in the opening encounter. The Red Ravens, of Sewickley, and the Pirates, the Duquesne Garden entry, who round out the circuit, will swing into action at the Craig street arena Monday night.

Games are to be played each Saturday and Monday night until March 26.

Yanks Drop Pennock, Keep Sewell as Coach

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—The New York Yankees formally have confirmed the unconditional release of Herb Pennock, veteran southpaw pitcher, with a 21-year big league service record, but softened similar notice to Joey Sewell, veteran infielder, by announcing his re-engagement as a non-playing coach for 1934.

Sewell will replace Jimmy (Sunset) Burke, who has been one of Manager Joe McCarthy's aides for the past two years and prior to that coach with the Chicago Cubs. Burke, said the announcement, has resigned.

Dormont High Club Gets Rifle Charter

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 6.—The Dormont High School Rifle Club, Dormont, Pa., has been granted a charter by the National Rifle Association, according to announcement made today at the headquarters of the association here. The club has a charter membership of 20.

LEE KEEPS TITLE

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—(INS.)—Edward Lee, of New York, is still the national amateur three-cushion billiard champion. Lee defeated Alfred De Oro, Jr., 50 to 45, in the final round of their challenge match last night. The victory gave Lee the match, 150 to 122.

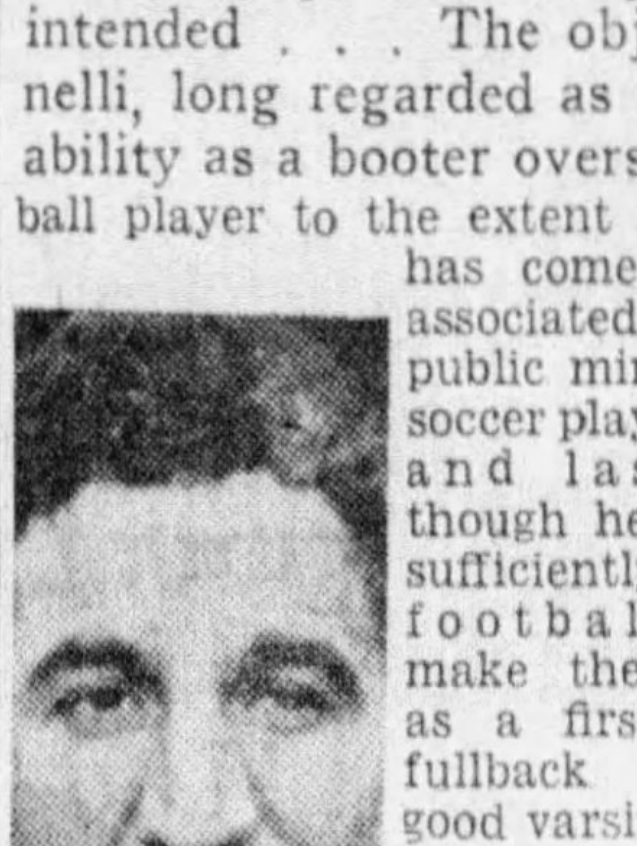
SPORT VIGNETTES

This is an out-and-out plug for a deserving local athlete, and we hope it is accepted in the helpful spirit in which it is intended . . . The object of our praise is Aldo (Buff) Donnelli, long regarded as the premier local soccer player, whose ability as a booter overshadowed his starring as a college football player to the extent that he has come to be associated in the public mind as a soccer player first and last, although he was a sufficiently good footballer to make the grade as a first-class fullback on a good varsity football team, that of Duquesne University.



Buff Donnelli

Since being graduated, Buff has served as the freshman football coach of his alma mater and strangely his name has not been brought out prominently in the discussion of the Dukes' football future now that Elmer Layden, the head coach, is leaving to succeed Hunk Anderson at Notre Dame . . . Countless applications are in for the job of succeeding Elmer, some of them prominent names in the gridiron realm, but the general impression is that Joe Bach, who has served successfully as Elmer's line coach, will get the appointment, which brings up the question of who will coach the backfield . . . Why look further than Donnelli?

To tell the truth, this writer didn't give Buff much of a tumble, along with the others, until night before last, when he had Buff as a speaker on a radio program, in which both soccer and football were discussed, and he was amazed at Donnelli's adaptability and intelligence in answering the rapid-fire quiz to which he was subjected by Tom Birks, the soccer authority, and your humble servant . . . Buff did a swell job of ad libbing, proving one of the easiest and most lucid persons to interview who has faced the WCAE microphone in the more than two years of these weekly sports programs, and his answers were of an enlightening nature. They revealed a clear-thinking and fast-working mind. . . . He was little short of a revelation, and if he can express himself as well in teaching or coaching athletes as he does with the ease and skill of a veteran on the air, it seems the Dukes will be making a mistake in not availing themselves to the fullest extent of their own homegrown product . . . To keep him on his present job as coach of the yearlings would be to hide his light under a bushel, if we may be a bit trite about the matter.

Hence consider this the launching of a Bach and Donnelli boom for the Dukes . . . Bach has proved that he can turn out great lines, and Donnelli certainly knows his backfield stuff, plus kicking . . . Their names may not be big in football just now, but they are two bright young men of great possibilities, and the Dukes would not have to offer any apologies to the fans in announcing their selection.—HARRY KECK.

TITANS DEFEAT GROVERS; W. VA., GENEVA WIN

GROVE CITY, Pa., Jan. 6.—The Grove City College basketball team today was smarting under the sting of one of the most decisive defeats ever suffered by the Crimson five, served here last night by the powerful Westminster College varsity. The Titans won, 50 to 15.

The Grovers managed to make a contest out of it for the first half, and were behind by only 12 points at half time, 22 to 10. In the second period, however, the rangy United Presbyterian five, paced by Bennett at forward, stepped out and piled up point after point. Bennett scored more points than the entire Grove City team, getting 22 on nine field goals and four fouls. The Grovers were limited to one field goal and three fouls in the second half. The lineup:

WEST VA. TRIUMPHS

CUMBERLAND, Md., Jan. 6.—A crowd of 1,000 fans saw the basketball varsities of Maryland and West Virginia stage a nip and tuck battle here last night, with the Mountaineers emerging on the long end of a 26-to-24 score.

It took a last-minute rally by the West Virginians to stow away the game. With only six minutes left to play, the Mountaineers put on a scoring splurge that netted 13 points and the game. Joe Stydahar, towering center, was the high point man of the contest, getting four field goals and as many fouls for a dozen points. The lineup:

STOCK MARKET SHOWS SOFT SPOTS

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—The stock market developed a rather spotty appearance during the first hour today. Soft spots included some of the motor shares and tobaccos. Metals showed some improvement while rails were steady to a little higher.

United States Smelting cancelled an opening dip and advanced more than a point net. Union Pacific gained as much. Steady to slightly higher quotations prevailed in American Telephone, United States Steel, American Can, New York Central, Pennsylvania, American Smelting, United States Industrial Alcohol and Western Union. Chrysler, a soft spot yesterday, lost more than a point and American Tobacco "B" and du Pont showed similar recessions. General Motors, Liggett & Myers "B" and Public Service of New Jersey worked slightly lower.

Foreign exchanges showed some resistance at the opening of trading here as the familiar domestic gold rate of $34.06 an ounce was again posted by the RFC. The British pound recovered ⅝ of a cent at $5.11⅛ and the French franc rallied .01 of a cent at 6.15 cents. Other leading European currencies were slightly higher in terms of the dollar.

Bond dealers were heartened by word from Washington that the President would recommend legislation to guarantee treasury payment on $4,000,000,000 of Farm Credit Administration and Home Owners Loan Corporation obligations whose issue is proposed. The treasury now guarantees the interest but not the principal of these two classes of bonds. Under a blanket guarantee, the loans would have virtually the status of treasury bonds, including the privilege of borrowing at face value from the Federal Reserve banks.

If Congress adopts the President's recommendation, it was pointed out, the bonded indebtedness of the United States would be technically increased by a potential $4,000,000,000, or to around $35,000,000,000 on June 30, 1935, instead of $31,000,000,000 as estimated in the budget. The new bonds, however, would have behind them the security of both home and farm mortgages and the maximum liability of the government actually would involve only deficiencies due to depreciation of mortgage values.

GRAIN PRICES SHOW GAINS

CHICAGO, Jan. 6.—Grains went upward in price early today. Trade estimates were current that supplies of domestic wheat totaled about 150,000,000 bushels less than at this time last year. Opening unchanged to ⅛ up, wheat later scored an all around advance. Corn started unchanged to ¼ higher and subsequently showed a general upturn.

Montgomery Ward Sales Up for Year

CHICAGO, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—Sales of Montgomery Ward & Co. for the 11-month period ended December 31 were 8.79 per cent above those of the same period in 1932, officials of the company said.

The sales figures for 1933 were $182,820,093, as compared to $168,041,185 for the 11-month period last year.

December, 1933, sales were reported at $25,021,715, a gain of 18.84 per cent over the December, 1932, figure, $21,055,133.

Mail-order business in December showed a gain of 34.61 per cent over last year, while the retail figure was 7.76 above.

World Cotton Crop Estimate Smaller

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—The Bureau of Agricultural Economics tentatively estimates the 1933-34 world cotton acreage to be 74,500,000 acres, compared with 76,500,000 acres the previous year. This is the smallest acreage since 1923-24. The bureau attributes this decrease to the decrease in estimated United States acreage of 4,795,000 acres below last season and the smallest since 1921-22.

Jersey Head Lauds Plans for Workers

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—The facilities which employe representation plans provide for joint cooperative action between workers and employers demonstrate the value of such plans to industry, Walter C. Teagle, of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, states in a report on collective bargaining to the Commerce department.

Corporate Earnings

John Morrell & Co. and subsidiaries for the year ended October 28, 1933, shows net profits of $1,409,095 after depreciation, interest and federal taxes equivalent to $3.60 a share. This compares with net profit of $420,101 in the year ended October 29, 1932, equal to $1.08 a share.

Hy-Grade Food Products Corporation and subsidiaries for the year ended October 28, 1933, shows net loss of $55,981 after taxes, interest and depreciation. For the year ended October 29, 1932, the company reported loss of $229,195.

I. C. C. Likely to Insist on Amortization of at Least Part of Rails' Debt

Evidently it is the intention of the I. C. C., judging from its annual report, to see to it that the railroads, either voluntarily or by compulsion, provide for the retirement of at least a portion of their funded debt prior to maturity. The railroads have gone merrily along financing themselves and letting their obligations run to maturity to be refunded in most instances. The net result has been a constantly mounting debt structure, increased 22 per cent in the period from 1919 to 1932, and a corresponding piling up of fixed charges on earnings. Provision for a sinking fund in such obligations would serve far more than the securities act of 1933 to obivate duplication of present conditions in the future.

Dealers who have been following the action of German dollar bonds this week are anxious to have a look at the Reich foreign trade figures for December. They hold that exports for last month must have registered very substantial expansion, for it is with funds realized from that source that repatriation of external German obligations is financed. Reich exports are under obligation, it is said, to leave 40 per cent of their balances outside Germany to be used to purchase bonds at the enormous discounts ruling on most of them. These bonds are then returned home and, through the operation of intricate machinery involved, serve as a means of subsidizing German exports. Recent demand has been largely German in its origin, dealers here contend.

Sears, Roebuck & Co. sales showed a 25.6 per cent gain over 1932 in the twelfth period of its 13-month year, from December 4 to 31. The total was $34,482,615 against $27,343,971 in 1932. It was the seventh successive period in which Sears' sales had gained over the previous year. December brought the total for the 12 periods 3 per cent above the same periods of 1932. From anuary 30 to December 31 the sales totaled $268,903,072 compared with 0261,052,780 a year ago.

Second-day study of the President's budget message furnished no new inspiration to the securities markets. The financial community admits that the prospects of government expenditures of a billion dollars a month for the coming six months should lift the business level, but it is inclined to wait and see what Congress plans to do, and what effect it would have on business and markets, before it decides on a course of action.

The sharp increase in the Southern Pacific System's December carloadings over the comparable 1932 period probably will enable the carrier to report an increase of approximately 10 per cent in gross revenues over the $9,718,466 registered in December, 1932. Net operating income for December, 1932, amounted to $107,254 and net loss after taxes and charges was $1,216,692.

The American Glass Review tomorrow says, in part: "Flat glass generally will see further advancement during the course of 1934. Producers and distributors in strategic positions in this branch of the glass industry concur in this belief. In conservative estimates, leading producers of plate glass forsee gradual and sustained gains which will carry the gross percentages of activity in the plate glass market to a valume at least 10 per cent above what it was in 1933. Such expectations, coming as they do upon the heels of a year which saw an increase of approximately 45 per cent over the production of 1932, indicate a good volume of business for the year."

OREGON CURBS UTILITY PAY

SALEM, Ore., Jan. 6.—(AP.)—Charles M. Thomas, Oregon Public Utilities Commissioner, has ordered a reduction in salary of all Oregon officials of the Pacific Power and Light Company, the Portland Gas and Coke Company and the Northwestern Electric Company, and refused to allow payment of $100,000 by the three allied firms to the Electric Bond and Share Company.

The three utilities had protested against the Commissioner's passing upon their budgets for 1934. Thomas insisted he was empowered to do this by a legislative act of 1933.

Thomas ruled that donations of the Gas and Coke Company, listed in the budget as totaling $14,980, would be approved if charged against stockholders, rather than against operation of the company.

The Oregon law gives the state Utilities Commissioner power to regulate and supervise rates, services and practices of all utilities except those municipally owned.

GOLD PURCHASE PRICE SAME

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—The government held its domestic gold price steady today at $34.06 an ounce. This figure for newly mined metal was maintained despite some strengthening of the dollar on the London market after weakness which attended America's budgetary developments earlier this week.

Sterling opened at $5.10¾ to the pound and at that level bar gold was worth $32.38 an ounce.

Continuance of the dollar's $34.06 figure for the fourteenth successive business day was not unexpected.

With the government facing a huge financing problem it was considered any action tending to cause fluctuation in the government bond market would be avoided.

Canada Business 38% Above Bottom

OTTAWA, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—The Dominion Bureau of Statistics in an economic review said today the lowest point of the depression in Canada was reached in February, 1933, and that last year will be remembered as a period of recovery.

The bureau said the index of industrial production was 83.9 in November, compared with 60.9 in February, representing a gain of nearly 38 per cent.

Sun Drug Elects Officers, Directors

William J. Hug has been elected president of the Sun Drug; James C. Sim, vice president; Mark K. Solomon, treasurer; A. E. Holland, secretary, and M. C. Murray, assistant secretary. The following directors were named: Thomas Lynch, C. McK. Lynch, Thruston Wright, John Gibson, Jr., William P. Witherow, Wallace J. Smith, James C. Sims, Mark K. Solomon and William J. Hug.

Continental Life License Revoked

HARRISBURG, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—The Pennsylvania Department of Insurance has revoked the licenses of the Continental Insurance Company and about 110 of its agents in this state.

The action was taken upon advice that the superintendent of insurance of Missouri had petitioned a St. Louis court for an order permitting him to take possession of the company.

News and Views

WORLD TIN PRODUCTION

The International Tin Research Council estimates world tin consumption for the first 10 months of 1933 at 108,655 tons compared with 83,080 tons for the corresponding period of 1932. The United States used 52,251 tons in this period compared with 29,397 the previous year.

SOUTHERN ICE

Southern Ice Company stockholders will vote January 26 on a plan of readjustment of the capital structure. The plan was formulated by holders of a substantial amount of first mortgage Series A 8 per cent bonds of the Carolina Public Service Company, an assumed obligation of Southern Ice.

PIECE GOODS MARKET

Both manufacturers and retailers are making plans for increased business in piece goods during the coming spring season. Early indications are that styles for spring will be favorable toward increased home dressmaking.

READY-TO-WEAR SALES

Although retail volume in general has felt the usual post-holiday reaction in buying, a fair response to fur and ready-to-wear promotions is reported.

COLON OIL CORP.

Crude oil production of Colon Oil Corporation's subsidiary in Venezuela for the four weeks ended December 22 was 566,800 barrels, compared with 583,800 barrels in the preceding four weeks and 571,644 barrels in the four weeks ended December 23 last year.

WHOLESALE GROCERY MARKET

Wholesale grocery markets are showing post-holiday sluggishness and many establishments are devoting the week to mapping spring sales campaigns.

LOCAL MARKET STEADY AT WEEK END

Securities were quiet and narrow in the short week-end session of the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange. Early transactions reflected a steady to firm tone in the general list, with most issues coming into the market at figures showing only a nominal variation from the quotations prevailing on the close last night.

United Engineering and Foundry scored a half-point upturn in the early market with a block of 50 shares changing hands at 16½ as against yesterday's price of 16. The other heavy industrials were dull, with bids and offers unchanged. Fuel issues were quiet. Lone Star Gas and Western Public Service displayed a steady tone, but changes were narrow. Brewing preferred was unchanged, as was D. L. Clark.

World Wheat Crop Estimate Revised

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—World wheat production for 1933-34 is estimated by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics at 3,528,214,000 bushels, due to the upward revision in the crops of several European countries.

This estimate is but 5 per cent below the production in the same countries in 1932-33 which include all the major producing countries except China and Russia.

A. M. Byers Deficit Larger Last Year

The pamphlet report of A. M. Byers Company and its subsidiary, Orient Coal and Coke Company, for fiscal year ended September 30, 1933, shows net loss of $1,044,056 after taxes, depreciation, depletion, amortization of patents, etc., comparing with loss of $922,353 in the preceding fiscal year.

DROP IN STEEL PRODUCTION SLIGHT

By B. E. V. LUTY

The slump in steel production after the turn of the year expected by various observers did not occur, the official forecast of steel ingot production this week being 29.3 per cent of capacity, which is merely under the rates of the last three weeks and only about three points under the average of those weeks, while it is four points above the recent low rate, in the week ended November 11.

By reason of provisions of the code shipments against contracts at lower prices than those recently ruling had to be completed by December 31. These contracts were for bars, shapes, plates, tin plates and wire products. Tin plate contracts had to be quite old; bar, plate and shape contracts had to date from before September 30, and wire product contracts from before December 1.

In some quarters the influence of these contracts was fancied to be quite important, some points being overlooked. While tin plate shipments were heavy through December 31, steel for this tin plate had to be made earlier and in general before the rate of ingot production reached its high point, in the next to the last week of the year. In the case of plates and shapes buyers could not specify in advance of their requirements to any extent, not knowing what sizes to order, and in general buyers had to take cognizance of their financial resources.

LONG RANGE IMPROVEMENT

In this review two weeks ago this matter was referred to and it was said that the price deadline explanation of the reversal of precedent, in steel production increasing at such a time of year, was not adequate. The statement then made is now fully vindicated.

There has been in fact a long range improvement in steel during the last two months, an improvement which will continue and be reinforced by seasonal improvement now and by the filling of railroad orders in the not distant future.

The influence of the December 31 price deadline was a double one; it swelled steel production last month and now that influence has not only disappeared but must be compensated. The influence may now be estimated at least roughly. With a decrease of three points in steel production from the average of the last three weeks of the year it may be taken that production then was one and a half points above, and production now is one and a half points below, the rate that would have prevailed otherwise. With this adjustment, steel activity in general may be set at about three points, or 10 per cent above the November average.

The long range improvement of the last two months has been due to two influences, depletion of stocks of steel and manufactures of steel accumulated during the phenomenal bulge in steel production last summer, and to improvement in general conditions affecting the consumption of steel. These influences were so forceful that they offset the usual seasonal influence and caused a 10 per cent gain in addition.

NEW YEAR STARTS WELL

The seasonal influence, by a holiday slowing down in some manufacturing activities and by reduction of stocks against annual inventories, was at work in sheets, strips and tubular goods, yet the pipe and tube mills had a slightly larger tonnage in December than in November. Figures up to the middle of the month foreshadowed a December loss but there was such a pickup in the latter part of the month that the early loss was offset. Both sheet and strip mills had fairly heavy operations in late December.

The new year has gotten off to a good start. Present indications are that production in the third week of the year will be above production in the third week from the end of last year. No large gain is to be expected until automobile and railroad steel moves in volume. Automobile production has been so light, due to mechanical difficulties, that the industry still has a large stock of steel and will not need heavy deliveries before the early part of February, at best. While inquiry for railroad steel has been widespread, from railroads and from equipment builders, it is problematical when orders will be placed and rolling of steel required. When these two outlets are functioning steel production will be between 35 and 40 per cent and a rate somewhat above 40 per cent may easily be reached before the summer lull.

NATION'S BANK CLEARINGS

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—Bank clearings again make a rather unsatisfactory showing, and the report continues somewhat mixed. The total for the five days of this week for all leading cities in the United States, according to Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., was $4,793,150,000, a slight increase, compared with the record for the same week a year ago. New York City clearings were larger, amounting to $3,394,524,000, the increase being 2.9 per cent, while the total for all centers outside of New York of $1,398,626,000 was 6.3 per cent lower.

The week this year includes two days of the heavy bank settlements incident to the opening of the new year, whereas a year ago there were three days. This would affect the report unfavorably, to some extent, at most centers. Quite an increase, however, continued to be shown at some cities in the South and the West, notably Kansas City, Omaha, Minneapolis, Atlanta, Dallas, San Francisco, Portland and Seattle. On the other hand, bank clearings for the five days this week exceed those for the five days of last week by $1,263,820,000, while a year ago the increase of $1,353,694,000 for the same comparison. The difference clearly reflects to change in January settlements, both this year and last, and the reduced amount this year undoubtedly measures the restriction to only two days this week.

Figures for leading centers, showing increases and decreases as compared with those of last year, are printed herewith; also, daily bank clearings for the year to date:

CLUB TO HOLD 'HOBBY' SHOW

The second annual industrial and hobby exhibit of the Westinghouse Club, to continue through January 12, opened today at the club headquarters, Pennwood avenue, Wilkinsburg.

Included in the exhibit are electrical phenomena, including a portable oscillograph, which enables one to "see" the human voice, and the new infra-red lamp, which operates without visible rays; an international display arranged by consuls of various nations, a Boy Scout and Sea Scout exhibit, collection of rare coins and stamps, tropical fish, antiques, handcraft, photography, boat and airplane models, microscopic and astronomical displays.

F. R. Kettering is chairman of the exhibit committee, assisted by D. R. Dohner, P. H. Grunnagle, N. A. Wahlberg, S. A. Lynch, F. N. Marcley, S. Q. Hayes, B. Hantman and H. L. O'Donnell.

Farmer Wins $4,700 In Pymatuning Suit

MEADVILLE, Pa., Jan. 6.—(AP.)—A jury verdict returned here ordered the state to pay John Floyd Lee, Crawford County farmer $4,700 for 35 acres of land seized in the construction of a roadway across the Pymatuning Dam.

The verdict was read shortly after the second case of similar nature was begun. The sum verdict was said to be $2,700 more than the department of forests and waters offered Lee for the land.

Nelson Gehr, another western Crawford County farmer, is plaintiff in the action now being heard before Judge O. C. Kent.

NEW DEBT PRICE OF VICTORY IN SLUMP 'WAR'

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—The President's budget message makes us face certain facts.

There is no longer any pretense of "balancing the budget."

At last, the administration has stated that it is going to borrow the billions considered necessary for the new deal. We the people can't or won't spend, so the administration is going to spend for us.

There is a suggestion that the nation's budget will be balanced in 1936. Let us hope so. But note that if prices soar as a result of the inflation which now seems certain, government expenses will be increased accordingly. Also note that the members of the CCC and CWA regiments may not want to disband.

BONDS NO PROBLEM

Some observers have suggested that now the government will be forced to stabilize money in order to float the 10 billions of bonds.

Not at all. The administration will not have the slightest difficulty in putting out this amount of bonds, or a larger amount. It will not need to rely upon the subscriptions of private investors. (It has a surer way to get their money.) It will merely go to the banks—chiefly the Federal Reserve banks, at first—and say:

"Here are the bonds, give us your notes."

It will simply swap government debt for bank debt.

This is the surest way to inflation. Government debt has always been the broad and easy way to great issues of paper money.

Under the Thomas amendment, the reserve banks are authorized to take three billion dollars in government bonds. So the government prints that amount of currency (notes) for the reserve banks. It also prints its bonds. Then the trade is made. Then the government spends the notes—incidentally paying some of them as interest on the bonds.

So that is three of the 10 billions.

THREE MORE BILLIONS

Then the government forces the price of gold up by forcing the value of the paper dollar down. Thus the gold reserve can be "written up" on the books to the tune of another three billions. The government then takes that amount either in reserve notes or by issuing its own notes. These it spends.

So there is another three of the 10 billions.

This takes care of the six billions of new bond issues. It leaves only the four billions of maturing old bonds to refund.

More difficulty will be met here, but not much. The old bonds are largely held by banks, insurance companies, etc. They will have to help. Some tax-exempt short-maturity paper can always be floated. Some additional swapping with the Federal Reserve Banks will do the rest.

When a government takes charge of the banks, as ours has done, there is never any difficulty in "floating" government bonds!

ALL WITH MONEY PAY

Who pays? That is also easy to answer. All those who have money pay. To some extent they pay directly in taxes. More largely they pay through the decline in the purchasing power of their money.

When the government gets prices up to the 1926 level, your money will be worth only half what it was a year ago. The difference will have gone into the billions of depreciated paper currency which will have been issued.

Of course the reason for all this government debt and inflation is found in the idea of "a war on depression," and it all goes back to the World War. Wars always lead to government debt, and large government debt usually leads to inflation.

We borrowed and inflated to win the war, and the post-war crashes of 1920 and 1930 resulted.

Now, we are said to be waging a war on the depression which followed. We are lined up in alphabetical regiments, and are floating huge government bond issues much as in 1918.

We will doubtless win this new war. And we will have piled up an even greater debt.

What price glory?

LACLEDE ISSUE WITHDRAWN

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—The Laclede Gas Light Company yesterday withdrew its offer of a $3,000,000 bond issue, which was the basis of the first action by the Federal Trade Commission under the "truth in securities act."

The federal commission announced today at Washington it had cited the company to show cause at a hearing in Washington, January 12, why the issue should not be stopped.

The bond issue was authorized last May by the Missouri Public Service Commission and the company registered it with the Federal Trade Commission under the new securities act by filing a questionnaire giving information about the company.

The questionnaire asked for a statement of "all litigation pending, if any, that may materially affect the value of the security to be offered." The company answered "none."

The Federal Trade Commission learned that a rate and valuation case pending before the Public Service Commission of Missouri was not mentioned in the company's answer to the questionnaire, and instituted the action.

E. L. White, secretary and treasurer of the Laclede firm, said he did not understand the questions to mean rate and valuation cases, and that the citation resulted from his misunderstanding.

Power Commission To Protest Code

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—Frank R. McNinch, chairman of the Federal Power Commission, said last night the commission would enter a "vigorous and earnest protest" against adoption of the electric light and power code proposed by the Edison Electric Institute.

Stock Exchange Asks Accountants' Help

By GEORGE H. SNYDER
Business Editor

THE CHICAGO STOCK Exchange has launched a campaign to make reports of listed corporations more intelligible to investors. The organization has written to public accountants in this state asking their co-operation in these efforts. This follows similar action under way during the past year by the New York Stock Exchange.

The fact that the Chicago Exchange has asked the co-operation of accountants in this state has been made public by Adrian F. Sanderbeck, president of the Pennsylvania Institute of Certified Public Accountants.

During the past year the Chicago Exchange has been engaged in a detailed survey of all financial reports submitted to it. The purpose has been to enable it to offer suggestions that will aid in the preparation of reports which will give securities holders the greatest possible degree of clarity on conditions of corporations in which they are interested.

* * *

Good Will to Be One Of Considerations

THE STUDIES MADE by the Chicago Stock Exchange have disclosed several respects in which many corporate reports fall short of giving a reasonable degree of clarity.

One of these is the practice of not segregating good will from other assets. Several Pittsburgh corporations lump good will in with plants and machinery. This leaves the investor in doubt as to how much of the item is based on property and equipment and how much is based on the purely intangible worth of good will.

Another ground for complaint is found in the failure to tell how the value of fixed assets and inventory is determined. In conservative practice, inventories are valued at cost or market, which is lower. Fixed assets, meaning real estate, buildings and machinery may be valued at cost or at an appraisal made at a certain date. If accounting is handled properly, a charge should be made against their value for depreciation. A report should state how the original value was reached and just upon what basis allowances for depreciation are made. Wide variations in charges for depreciation made by some companies indicate that set policies are not always followed and that the public should be informed of the systems used.

Securities Held Provide Puzzles

SOME COMPANIES make advances to officers, directors and officials. In recent years these have been made to assist them in carrying blocks of the companies' stocks in some cases. Often these notes are lumped with other notes payable. The Chicago Stock Exchange believes that these should be shown separately so that stockholders may know whether receivables of this type represent regular commercial transactions or special accommodations to those close to the companies.

Some balance sheets show marketable securities owned. These figures usually are meaningless unless their market values at the time of the statement are given. Marketable securities may be worth about what they are carried on the balance sheet or they may have a market value of only a fraction of their original cost.

The exchange finds that contingent liabilities also are not always shown. As an example, a corporation might indorse the note of another organization with which it is doing business. This would not appear on the balance sheet as a regular liability and it is not a liability if the note is paid. But, in the event of a default, the indorsing corporation would be liable. There should be a foot note to explain that this possible liability exists.

The exchange also has found that depreciation should be shown separately in profit and loss accounts and financial income, that is, return from investments, should be shown separately.

CONSTABLE JOB SOUGHT BY 5

Five candidates are in the field for the lucrative post of constable of the First Ward, to succeed Andrew M. Maloney, now the ward's alderman.

Latest to file applications in Quarter Sessions Court are former Alderman Thomas A. Flanagan, said to be backed by the Coyne organization, and John J. Mobrey and Alfred A. Goldstein, independents.

Petitions had previously been filed by Frank Casilli, having the Verona backing, and Deputy Constable William J. Duncan a Mackrell man. Judge Sylvester J. Snee will accord them all a hearing next Friday.

MANCHU ROBES BRING RICHES

PEIPING, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—Those Manchurian robes that American tourists bought for a song—well, they would have to hire Maria Jeritza herself to sing that song today.

For Henry Pu-Yi is to be crowned King of Manchukuo and where there is a Manchurian king Manchurian robes must be worn.

The former attaches of the Chinese imperial household here are ransacking bazars, pawnshops and second-hand stalls for Manchu robes bearing imperial insignia and for other ceremonial attire. Prices of all such habiliments have jumped sky high.

Kentucky Whisky Dollar Tax Urged

FRANKFORT, Ky., Jan. 6.—(INS.)—Whisky made in Kentucky will be taxed $1 a gallon, if a bill being drafted with reputed administration support is passed by the State Legislature next week.

The license levy would replace the present tax of two cents a gallon on newly-manufactured whisky. There is also a 50-cents-a-gallon withdrawal tax on liquor made before 1928.

Cambria Co. Lacks Vote Machine Funds

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Jan. 6.—(INS.)—Cambria County Commissioners today had informed Secretary of the Commonwealth Richard J. Beamish that the county lacks $170,000 necessary to install voting machines before the next primary. If the machines must be purchased, the Commissioners said, Beamish would have to furnish the money.

BUDGET PLEDGE BY PRESIDENT SPURS U. S.

By MERRYL S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—President Roosevelt has at length given reality to the phrase "balance the budget."

Mr. Rukeyser

Toward the middle of last year, the public became elated over the balancing of the budget, but it soon became apparent that there had been no real balancing of the budget.

Mr. Roosevelt acts on the newer economic doctrine that it is important to balance a budget through a business cycle, rather than necessarily in a single fiscal year.

In this spirit, Mr. Roosevelt indicates that the country may not expect to cover both normal and emergency expenditures with public revenues until after the fiscal year ending June 30, 1935, though he promises greatly to reduce the deficit after extraordinary expenditures in the fiscal year beginning next July. After that, he proposes that both the regular budget and all other expenditures be held within the limits of actual receipts.

Thereafter, he promises 'an actual reduction in the national debt, which means that taxation will be sufficient not only to meet all operating and capital expenditures, but that there shall also be a surplus, out of which existing indebtedness can be reduced. Prior to the depression, it will be recalled, Secretary Mellon was reducing the national debt at the rate of about 1,000 million dollars a year.

This presidential announcement of a definite time limit on the policy of increasing public indebtedness is a concession to the viewpoint of Lewis Douglas, director of the budget and watchdog of the public treasury.

NEW FORMULA

In his program of unusual spending during the depression, followed by a definite pledge for debt reduction in subsequent years, Mr. Roosevelt is following the formula of the newer economists, who regard public spending as a balance wheel in prosperity and depression. According to this doctrine, the government in time of business boom should spend lightly, tax heavily, and reduce indebtedness so that in time of depression it is in position to spend heavily, tax lightly, and increase indebtedness.

This newer view envisages the task of balancing outgo with income in terms of a whole business cycle, with its flood tides and its ebb tides.

The doctrine is sound only if politicians have the courage to cut down drastically at the proper time in order to get a genuine balance within a business cycle. President Roosevelt pledges himself to such a program of economy after the period of heavy spending on which he has placed a definite time limit.

Loadings Off for Week, Year's Total Higher

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—(INS.)—Loading of revenue freight for the week ended on December 30 (Christmas week) totaled 450,622 cars, the American Railway Association reported today. This was a decrease of 76,445 cars below the preceding week, but an increase of 45,321 cars above the same week in 1932. Both 1933 and 1932 included the Christmas holiday.

Reports for the year show that 28,960,910 cars were loaded with revenue freight in 1933, an increase of 780,958 cars, or 2.8 per cent over the number loaded in 1932.

Miscellaneous freight loadings for week of December 30 totaled decrease of 23,431 cars below preceding week, but 30,355 cars above corresponding week 1932.

Loading of merchandise less than carload lot freight was 124,361 cars, decrease of 30,818 and 2,667 below 1932.

Grain and grain products loadings for week totaled 30,325 cars, decrease of 4,098 cars below preceding week, 1,657 cars below last year. In western districts alone, grain and grain products loadings for week ended December 30 totaled 12,911 cars, decrease of 515 cars below last year.

Forest products loadings totaled 11,695 cars, a decrease of 6,182 cars below preceding week, but 2,250 below same week 1932.

Ore loading, 2,078 cars, decrease 1,658, but 645 above last year.

Coal loading 114,284 cars, decrease of 7,366, but 15,299 cars above corresponding year 1932.

Coke loading 7,100 cars, decrease of 3,249 cars below preceding week and 1,693 cars below last year. In western districts alone, loading of livestock for week ended December 30 totaled 8,503 cars, a decrease of 1,742 cars compared with same week 1932.

RIDERS ON BUS BEAT SLASHER

STROUDSBURG, Pa., Jan. 6.—(AP.)—Taking a penknife from his pocket, a passenger on a bus slashed a fellow-rider 11 times, attempted to attack other occupants of the vehicle and in turn was badly injured by passengers who caught him after a chase.

The assailant, in a hospital with a possible fracture of the skull as a result of the beating administered by the passengers, gave his name as Rosario Emilio, 50, of Chicago. State police are guarding him.

JUNIOR PATROL

More and more men are going to work, fellows!

The government is making many jobs, and that means that times will be better for lots of people. And when more men go to work and make money, fellows, then everybody is happier and more prosperous. That is because everybody who earns money spend some of it to buy things that other men work to make and sell. And so it goes all the way through the country.

One of the ways the government and President Roosevelt is making jobs for thousands of men is the "forest army." More than 300,000 young men are working in the woods, making roads, planting trees and building camps.

We call their work "conservation of the forests." You see, fellows, during the past hundred years or more, the people have been cutting down the great forests that used to cover this country. Now only a few forests are left, and the time will soon come when there won't be any trees for lumber at all. Lumber is very important . . . to build houses, furniture, to make paper, and to make hundreds of other useful things.

The "forest army" is trying to plant new forests and preserve the ones we still have so that there will always be enough lumber in this country. A tree takes many years to grow big enough to cut down and we must plant the trees now that we will cut down 50 or more year from now.

Forest fires destroy many forests, too, and that is waste. No one likes a forest fire. The "forest army" men are making trails and clearing away brush in the woods so that it will be easier to fight the fires and easier to put them out if they start.

Here's a letter today from Robert Neil, of 30 Columbus avenue, Belle Vernon, Pa.:

"We have 10 members in our Junior Patrol now and we have elected officers. I am wishing we will make good."

Okay, Robert, we will send you a captain's badge right away. Write and let us know how you get along—especially what you do to help others.

Official Ousted, Books Demanded

An alternative writ of mandamus was filed in Common Pleas Court demanding that R. B. Yeaney, deposed secretary of the Board of Education of East Pittsburgh, turn over the books, papers and seal of the board to his successor, Miss Mary McCann.

The petition filed for the board and Miss McCann said Yeaney was elected for a four-year term from the first Monday of July, 1933, but was removed from office by resolution of the board, December 8.

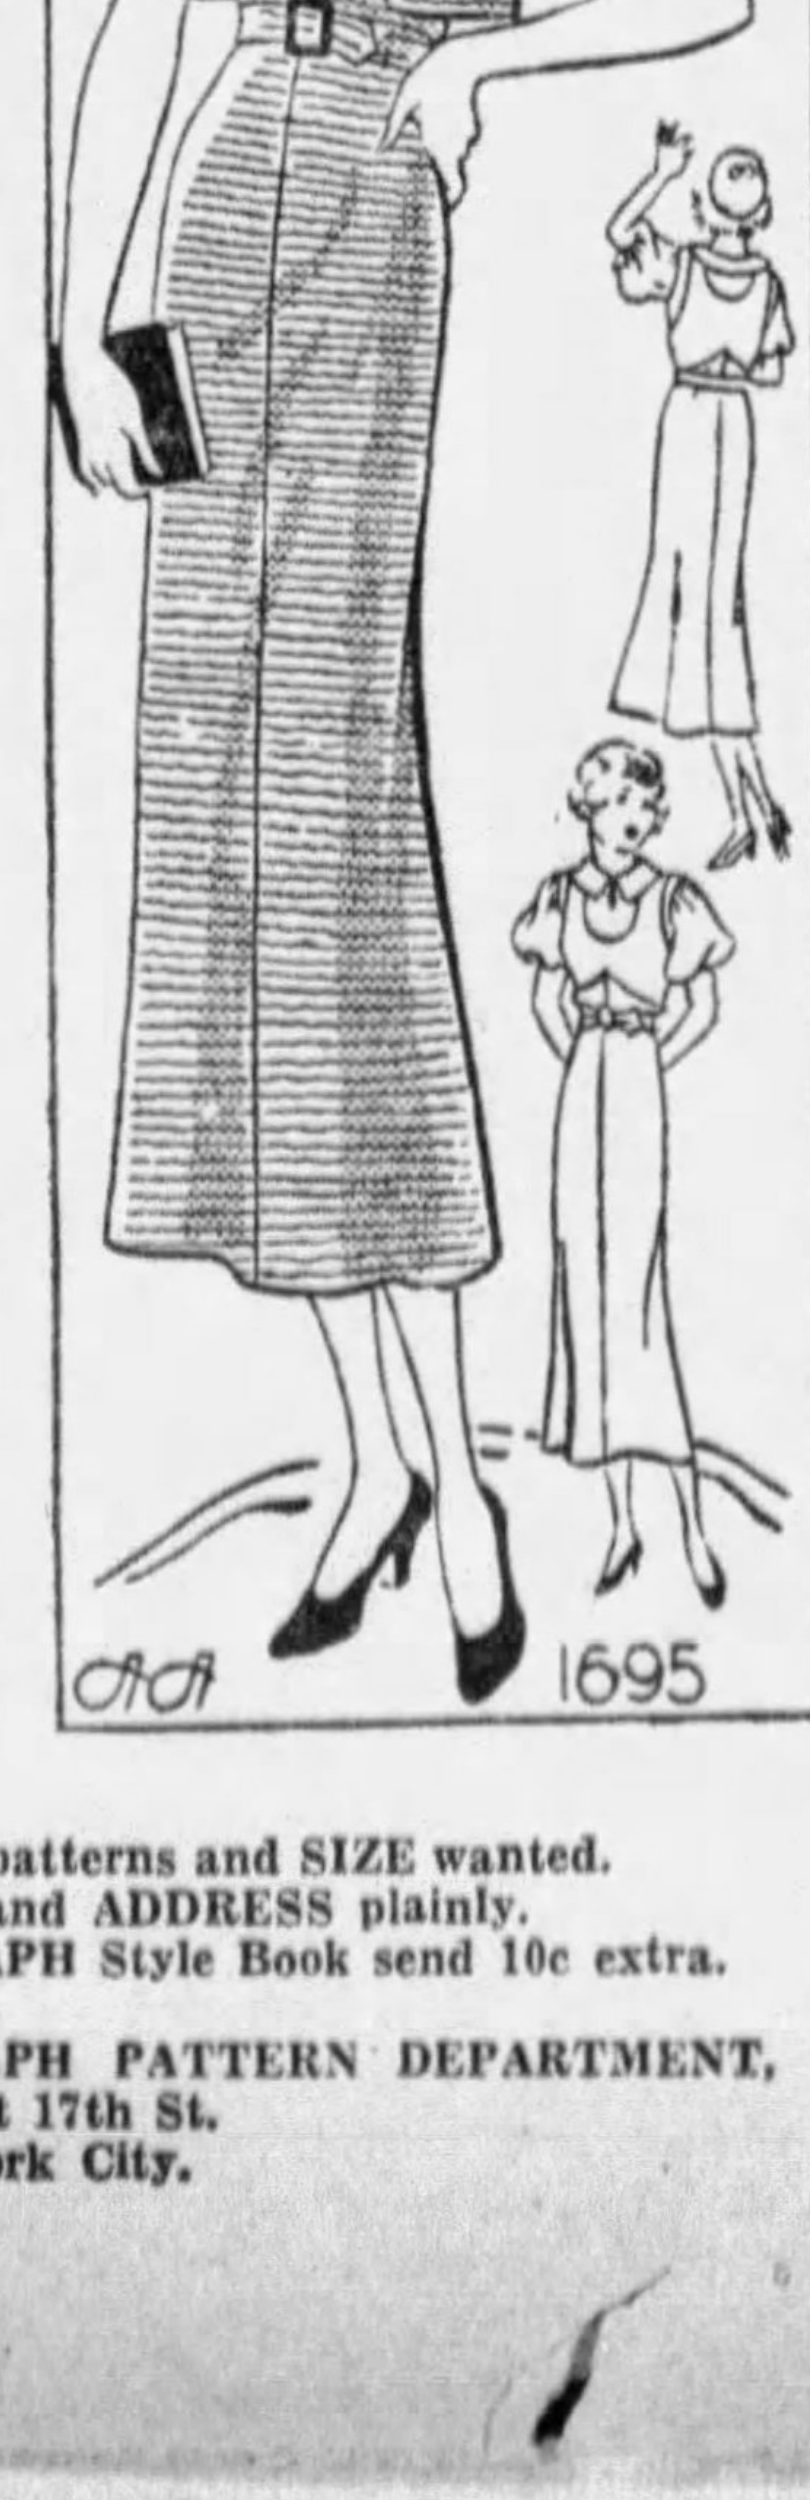
Dashing Three-Piece Model!

Pattern 1695

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern



When the smart sub-deb sets her eyes on this stunning model, her fingers will itch to start sewing immediately! It's the most adorable ensemble ever—a chic little bolero, smart jumper frock and a guimpe. Sheer wool and cotton make an excellent combination—or all cotton, for the new ones look like wools, are all the rage and terribly inexpensive. She'll love the perky epaulets on the bolero, the smart seaming of the jumper, the fetching sleeves and close-to-the-neck collar of the guimpe. And, too, the illustrated sewing instructor will make the work so much simpler.

Pattern 1695 is available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 16 takes 2¼ yards 54-inch fabric and 1⅝ yards 36-inch contrasting.

Send 15 CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

FRANCE PROBES HUGE FRAUD

International News Service.

PARIS, Jan. 6.—Premier Camille Chautemps announced this afternoon he has ordered a sweeping investigation into the crash of the Bayonne municipal pawnshop and the disappearance of its founder, Alexander Stavisky, accused of frauds ranging from $25,000,000 to $60,000,000.

After a conference with the heads of the Surete Generale, the French secret police, Chautemps set in motion an inquiry which will embrace the "negligence of the police, courts and the government itself" in connection with Stavisky's operations.

FOURTH DEGREE

CHAPTER III.

The body of his young wife was dangling from the end of a yellow cord attached to the chandelier.

She was dressed in a yellow silk afternoon gown, and it was the silk belt of this dress that she had used to accomplish her purpose. One little gilt slipper was still on her foot, the other had fallen to the floor. Directly beneath her was an overturned straight chair.

Ranny knew at once that she was dead, for her face was blackened and swollen, her eyes protruding, her tongue, three times its natural size, hanging from her mouth. Upon her breast glistened a handsome pearl pendant, set in 34 rose diamonds, once the property of the late Czarina of Russia. It had been given to Mrs. Paige as a wedding gift from her father.

Synopsis

Police Officer Dickey Carroll, young college graduate, had made two indiscreet arrests which brought reprimands from his superiors. Therefore, when he saw a stranger emerging from the Paige estate, in Baltimore's exclusive residential section, at 2 o'clock in the morning, he failed to make an arrest. Carroll did not know then that stark tragedy had invaded the home which Randolph (Ranny) Paige shared with his popular young wife, Sonia. Returning from business in Washington, Ranny found his wife hanging by her silk dress cord from the chandelier in her boudoir. Robbery was not the motive, for her diamond and pearl pendant still hung around her neck. The Coroner returns a verdict of suicide.

Now Go On

With what was almost miraculous coolness under the circumstances, Paige had drawn out a pocketknife and had cut her down and laid her on a daybed. He had bent over her and touched her hand and had called her name but had made no effort to revive her, knowing well that she was beyond help. Instead he had rushed to the telephone and sent his frantic call to the Towson police station.

After listening to this story and making an examination of the body and satisfying himself that there had been neither assault nor robbery, Coroner Mason announced that he would bring in a verdict of suicide. By a rare stroke of good luck, however, he summoned a professional photographer from Towson and had two official photographs made—one of the body itself and one of the death chamber.

Mr. Paige, almost demented with grief, closed the house and moved his quarters to a Baltimore hotel. Mrs. Paige's body was removed to a local undertaking establishment and plans were well under way for the funeral.

Curious System

Here the case threatened to close, and here, indeed, it would have closed had it not been for Patrolman Carroll. This young officer, recalling the man he had seen emerging from the lane the night before at a time closely approximating the moment of Sunny's death (Dr. Mason estimated that she had been dead not more than an hour), went to the office of Chief-Inspector Everett A. Anderson in the headquarters of the police department in Baltimore.

Now a rather curious state of affairs prevails among the police force of the State of Maryland. The Governor not only appoints the Commissioner of Police but the entire state and city departments as well. This means that the detectives of Baltimore are at the beck and call of any Maryland county to aid in the unraveling of a crime.

It is easy to see what a hardship this works upon occasion. The detectives do not approach a case until the local force has failed in its efforts to solve it. Sometimes this is a matter of weeks. Then the witnesses have scattered and the scene of the crime has been disturbed with the consequent loss of any vital clue. People who might have come forward at the time with information are now as dumb as oysters, for it is a well-known fact that persons who will give information gladly at the time when the crime is hot and the newspapers are full of it, a little later cannot be induced to recall a single thing in connection with it. These points all retard the working out of the case.

Unwelcome Advice

Hence Carroll, in going to the inspector instead of to the local Towson police, was well within his province.

Anderson listened to the officer's report carefully.

"There's not a thing to it," he said when the story was ended. "Two o'clock is not so extremely late. Lots of people are abroad at that hour. It might have been a late caller, who actually was enjoying a short walk, and had intentionally parked his car some distance from his destination. Much more likely, however, that it was a visitor of one of the servants in the big houses. You might report what you know to Sergeant Williams, if you like, and he may feel inclined to look into the matter."

"I don't believe she did it herself," persisted Carroll. "She wasn't that kind—had too much spunk. How do you know Paige didn't kill her himself? The way he's been running around. Surely that ought to be looked into."

"The child certainly had enough provocation to take her own life," replied Anderson. "Now, listen to me, Carroll, you've stirred up enough trouble in this department already. Don't start anything else for the papers to get hold of, for God's sake. The coroner has already brought in his verdict and the case is closed. We have enough work on our hands right now without trying to create mystery where there isn't any. Let it alone!"

"Well, I think you are wrong, sir," answered Carroll doggedly. "I know I've made a lot of trouble, but this time I'm certain we're making a mistake. We could look that man up anyway. If he had nothing to do with it, he won't mind coming out and saying so."

"Let it alone, Carroll," said the Inspector sharply. "You attend to your own job and let the Towson police handle this. I couldn't do a thing about it anyway, because you know very well that this office can only enter a case when requested to do so by the county authorities. Tell Williams what you know, and then, for God's sake, shut up!"

He rose with finality, and a moment later Carroll, flushed and angry and still arguing, found the interview at an end.

However, he sought out Sergt. Williams, although he was certain that if the Inspector laid no value upon his clue, the Sergeant would lay even less.

That was exactly the way it worked out. Williams was affable, pleasant, interested in the story, but he attached not the slightest importance to it.

"There was no motive for a murder," he told Carroll. "All the doors and windows were locked. Not a thing was disturbed. Death was due to strangulation."

"How do you know it was?" argued Carroll. "She was hanging to the chandelier, of course, but there wasn't any autopsy performed. You could re-open the case and have that done, anyway. Paige may have killed her and hung her there himself."

"Are you crazy, boy?" cried the Sergeant, whistling with surprise. "For heaven's sake, don't go around suggesting things like that. Why, the Paiges are among our oldest and most aristocratic families. You'll get the Department into no end of trouble."

"I don't care how much trouble I get the Department into. I'm not saying that Ranny Paige did kill his wife. I'm just saying that I think the case ought to be properly investigated, as it has not been done up to the present time. I'm making a formal demand upon you to reopen it."

Given Pictures

"You've been reading cheap detective fiction, Carroll," replied the Sergeant laughing. "Go home and forget it. You aren't connected with this particular investigation and it isn't up to you to make any report concerning it. I have no doubts in my own mind as to what occurred and I'll take care of it. That's a good boy. Now don't stir up any more trouble."

"I have just this to say," answered Carroll, his voice trembling with indignation. "If I can't persuade you to listen to me, then I shall have to go about reopening the case in my own way. I have no intention of letting the stigma of a suicide rest over Mrs. Paige's name unless some actual investigation is made into the matter. By the way, could I be allowed to see the photographs which were made at the house this morning?"

"You sure can," responded Williams agreeably. "Not only see 'em but have these copies, if you want." He took two pictures from a folder on his desk and handed them to Carroll.

"Thanks," said the officer briefly. "I'd like to study these. You're sure I can't persuade you to reconsider your decision?"

"Not a chance in the world."

But that wasn't the end of the Paige case, not by a long shot. It was just the beginning. It would have been difficult for Inspector Anderson and Sergt. Williams to have made a worse error.

Goes to Newspaper

For Carroll, with murder in his heart and a burning conviction that the case was being whitewashed, determined to present his story to the largest and most important afternoon newspaper in Baltimore.

The newspaper which he approached, scarcely an hour after his interview with Anderson, happened to be mine.

And the reporter to whom he told his theory was none other than myself.

How well I remember the day that the real story of the Paige case broke! A case which is the most singular and the most dramatic of my entire career as crime reporter.

It was a rainy, misty morning and I came to my desk in the ramshackle old office overlooking the harbor, with a grudge against every living thing—murderers in particular.

I had just returned from the Blair case at Havre de Grace, the one in which Mrs. Blair was found guilty of poisoning her 15-year-old boy. A gruesome case, that! My head ached and my shoulder ached and every bone in my body ached. I had just spent two nights with Bill Clayton, the photographer, sleeping on the mounds in the graveyard, trying to get a story and some good pictures of the burial of the lad.

I got the story all right, but some fat country cop caught us and gave us the threshing of our lives and then chucked us over the fence, breaking Bill's camera to smithereens.

(The pictures weren't so bad, even at that—especially the one of Mrs. Blair toppling over the coffin. It had a good many cracks in it, but we labeled those "the iron pulleys that were erected to keep back the pressing crowds.")

THEODORE ROOSEVELT AS LABOR MEDIATOR

Vice President Roosevelt assumed the Presidency after McKinley's death (1901). Important events of his first administration: General adoption of McKinley's policy concerning insular possessions; acquisition of territory and rights for Panama Canal construction; he improved national defense (army, navy); established Department of Commerce and Labor; negotiated in the Anthracite Coal Strike of 1902 and created an arbitration commission. He opposed combinations of railroads and other big enterprises as restraint of trade. Theodore Roosevelt's dynamic personality won him a second term in the 1904 election. (U. S. History)

SMUGGLER HATTERAICK KILLS GYPSY MERRILEES

Merrilees, a masterfully characterized Gypsy woman in Walter Scott's "Guy Mannering," is implicated in the abduction of Harry, son of Godfrey Bertram. Harry's mother dies of grief; so his father after years, impoverished. Lucy, the daughter, is left in care of her old teacher Dominie Samson. Col. Mannering, who as a youth was guest of Bertram and foretold his troubles in a horoscope, invites Lucy and Samson to be companions of his daughter Julia, who is attracted to Capt. Brown, antipathetic to Mannering. Happy ending is brought about by discovery that Capt. Brown is Harry Bertram, brother of Lucy, abducted as boy by Hatteraick, accomplices.

ALEXANDER II RESTORING OSMAN PASHA'S SWORD

After the Treaty of San Stefano (1878) ending the Russo-Turkish War, the captive commander of the Turkish Army, Osman Nuri Pasha, was set free by Czar Alexander II. Disintegration of the once-powerful Mohammedan empire progressed quickly. The former Balkan provinces, Montenegro, Albania, Greece, Serbia, Bulgaria, Rumania, emerged as independent nations. They became hotbeds of unrest through desire to expand at each other's cost. Each lined up with some European power. The terrible conflagration of the World War started in this ever-burning volcano. GRAPHIC FORMULAE

Kekulé and Couper advanced the theory (1858) that carbon atoms in organic compounds have valence 4 and may be attached to other carbon atoms. Kekulé represented valence by dashes — valence bonds — and showed constitution of organic compounds by structural or graphic formulae.

Above: Structural formulae of lower methan series. Butane and isobutane molecules contain same atoms in different arrangement; thus they are different materials, although having the same empirical formulae. Such compounds are isomers.

DISTRIBUTION OF ELECTRICITY FROM POWERHOUSE TO CONSUMER

Electricity, a form of energy and the ultimate constituent of matter, serves us everywhere; it propels trains and cars; it drives household appliances; it communicates messages, music; it changes night into day. Diagram above shows the steps of distribution of alternating electric current from its source to places of use. In contrast to direct current, the voltage of alternating current can be changed at will by transformers; thus it can be transmitted at high voltage to great distances with little loss, and transformed to low voltage for safety to the consumer. Where direct current is needed (trolley cars, electrolytic cells, etc.) a direct current generator is installed, driven by an alt. current motor (combined: rotary converter).

MAMMALS, THE HIGHEST CLASS OF VERTEBRATES

Mammals are warmblooded animals, having mammary glands which secrete milk for nourishing the young. Their bodies are covered with hair in varying degree. Blood circulation is completely double. The heart has two auricles and two ventricles; a diaphragm separates the thoracic and abdominal cavities. Mammals are divided into sub-classes and orders: Insectivorous, primates, rodents, carnivorous, herbivorous, animals with even numbers and with odd numbers of digits and marine mammals. The body structure of monkeys and apes, order primates, is closest to that of man. Some species of mammals are shown. (General Science)

We Will Get Darrow For You

Best barometer of business revival is that Pullman porters are using their whiskbrooms again.

During the last five years it seems that passengers could do without the luxury of a dusting off on an oil-burner.

There is also jubilation among the hotel props and waiters. Things are so good in the big dining rooms that they are putting the gold fish back in the bowls. The guests no longer scoop them up and cook 'em in their rooms.

It's also good for the cloak rooms. The man who comes in with an expensive fur coat and a fedora is willing to go out again into the stormy night wearing a linen duster and a straw hat.

We don't claim that repeal is responsible for all this. But, if you started saving your empty bottles 14 years ago you would be rich now.

Whatever the cause, we are glad of it. People are traveling more. The railroads are getting the transportation business away from the ambulances and police vans.

This doesn't even make the drys sore. After all, the prohibitionists are in business too. The railroads are serving it in their dining cars. But the conductor can put you off the train if you get soused and noisy. That brings up a fine legal point.

STARTIN' T' LOOK LIKE OL' TIMES
P

If you get stewed on a train can the conductor put you off in a dry state? The law says he can if he gives you food and water. But who wants those?

Lawyers for the defense claim this is cruel and unusual punishment. It may bring Clarence Darrow out of retirement. He is a demon on intricate legal points. When Clarence gets through the jury will burst into tears and give the defendant 60 days on a side track of a large brewery.

We are just mentioning this because it can happen. It will probably result in the railroads replacing their water tanks with something more taxable.

If there is any man who wants to make a test case of this we will meet him in Grand Central near the information booth. You can always recognize us. We wear a three-button overcoat with two safety pins.

You will have the Civic Rights Bureau in back of you. The railroads are willing to do their share in solving the problem.

The president of the largest line has informed us that he will personally handle the eviction and has promised to slow the train down to 50 miles an hour.

Home Market Must Not Benefit Defaulter Nations—Americans Should BUY American

THE OPENING day of the new session of Congress witnessed the introduction of a bill proposing triple tariff duties on the goods of all nations which have defaulted to the extent of more than 10 per cent on their debts to the United States.

The sponsor of the bill, Representative Knutson, of Minnesota, made a speech in which he singled out France for particular criticism.

"Instead of keeping her solemn obligations," said he, "France greets every debt-paying period with a thumbing of the nose. Now she would step in and capture our wine market by the exportation to us of something like 175,000,000 bottles of champagne and great quantities of other wines and liqueurs. If I had my way I would prohibit the issuance of passports to France and place an absolute embargo on all her products until she pays."

THIS SPEECH was noteworthy, not alone because of its vigor and directness, but because of the promptness with which the speaker seized the first possible moment for its delivery.

It undoubtedly reflects a sentiment which is widespread in the present Congress and—what is more to the point—a public opinion which is unanimous from one end of the country to the other.

The American people are only too well aware that owing to the defaults of our European debtors, we are paying, through taxation, the interest on eleven thousand million dollars, the face amount of their borrowings, and in addition, hundreds of millions per annum in veterans' pensions to American soldiers who sacrificed their welfare to save France from destruction.

As an offset to this huge burden, we are receiving some paltry token payments from some of our debtors and from others, notably France, NOT EVEN A TOKEN OF ITS ACKNOWLEDGEMENT THAT ANY OBLIGATION EXISTS.

THE ENTIRE and unshared cost of saving our allies from destruction is apparently the portion of the United States, and that our disillusionment shall lack no element of bitterness, France sees fit to flout us openly by refusing even to discuss her defaults under the refunding agreement as they periodically occur.

The speech of the Minnesota Congressman had an ominous sound. It truly voiced the rising indignation of a great and generous people who find themselves singled out as the victims of a flagrant international cheat and fraudulent default.

The American people do not fancy, however, the role assigned them by their debtor!

IT IS DANGEROUS TO PLAY THIS COUNTRY FOR A SUCKER. THE DEFAULTERS WILL FIND THAT OUT—AND SOON!

And in the meantime, we can at least—

"BUY AMERICAN, AND NOT BUY FROM DEFAULTERS."

Where the Fault Lies

Extravagance and Duplication of Work Are Largely to Blame for the City's Financial Plight

The Western Pennsylvania Branch of the National Economy League has placed its finger on the sore spot in Pittsburgh's municipal government when it says, in a letter to Mayor William N. McNair, that blame for the city's financial predicament "lies in the operation of unnecessary departments, the duplication of work in other departments, and in extravagant methods which . . . have crept into the management of the municipality."

Very impressive is the case of Baltimore, cited by the Economy League. Baltimore finished 1933 with a budget surplus of $950,000, as compared with a deficit in Pittsburgh of about three million dollars. Yet Baltimore had a deficit of $2,300,000 in 1932. It pulled itself out of the hole by the adoption of businesslike methods of transacting the municipal affairs. Pittsburgh must follow this example.

The new administration has done no more than was expected of it in declaring war on commercial vice and racketeering of all kinds, but it is none the less gratifying or commendable on that account. To be effective, however, it will be necessary to conduct the warfare with unremitting vigor throughout the Mayor's term of office. At the least sign of weakening the racketeers will reopen.

Gov. Pinchot appeals to the people of Pennsylvania who use liquor to buy it by the bottle and case from the state stores, or by the drink from licensed hotels and restaurants. There can be no excuse for doing otherwise. In addition to the desirability of upholding the law, a good motive for patronizing the state liquor stores can be found in the fact that the profits go to humanitarian purposes such as old age assistance and unemployment relief.

City Chemist F. C. Buckmaster has analyzed the liquors handled in the state stores and finds they are "just what America was buying before prohibition." But to make assurance doubly sure, the State Liquor Control Board has arranged to have labels placed on the bottles giving an accurate description of the character of the liquor. This, too, is a reason for not purchasing the bootlegger's wares.

Dr. W. W. McFarland, who retired last week as Director of the City Health Department, has an article in the current number of "Pennsylvania's Health," the State Health Department's magazine, in which he expresses the opinion that the remarkable improvement in health in the last two years has been due to the fact that people, unable to finance a hectic life, were compelled to live simply. Let us hope the lesson will not be forgotten.

The announcement is made that a 120-foot sailing vessel is to be towed to Pittsburgh, re-registered as of this port, and then to depart from here with 20 passengers for a cruise around the world, at the end of which it will return to Pittsburgh. What an adventure that will be! And how interesting it is to think of Pittsburgh once again becoming the home port of an ocean-going vessel! Several deep sea ships sailed from here a hundred years ago.

In 1797, when our relations with France assumed an alarming aspect, Congress, preparing for war, ordered some new ships built for the United States Navy. Two of them, the President Adams and the Senator Ross, sea-going vessels, were constructed in Pittsburgh and sent down the Mississippi. Pittsburgh boat builders are still known throughout the nation.

The Altoona Tribune reports that schoolboys are much interested in the proposal that a statue of "Little Jakey" Negley, Andrew W. Mellon's great-grandfather, shall be erected in Pittsburgh. The monument is to commemorate the courage that he showed at the age of 12, when he held a party of hostile Indians at bay, to give his mother and little brothers and sisters time to take refuge in Fort Ligonier.

An Altoona boy is quoted as saying: "'Little Jakey' Negley is our hero; we want to show that boys can fight and what they can do to protect their families and homes in time of need." The resurrection of this dramatic incident from the musty archives in which it is recorded has done a lot to increase interest in Pennsylvania history.

Pennsylvania's colorful history has been neglected, even in Pennsylvania schools, because New Englanders dominated our literature for many years and wrote our textbooks. Lately, however, historians have arisen in Pennsylvania. The Historical Society of Western Pennsylvania has become very active, too. These things lead to the hope that our children and grandchildren will be better acquainted with the story of the state than we are.

That our climate is slowly becoming tropical again is asserted by a writer in tomorrow's issue of the American Weekly, the magazine distributed with the Sunday Sun-Telegraph. The article is beautifully illustrated and is replete with interesting information. Another interesting feature of the American Weekly is a new serial starting tomorrow, entitled "Love, Honor and Deceive."

Barney Google is studying to be a ventriloquist. He has a lot of fun with it, and you can share in the fun by looking at Billy DeBeck's inimitable pictures in Puck, the Comic Weekly section of the Sunday Sun-Telegraph. The funnies of many other celebrated humorists and cartoonists also appear in Puck.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—Purely personal piffle: Every fellow I've known who talks to you with feet on his desk suffers a pronounced inferiority. And some of the most intelligent letters have come from butlers.

When I watch an expert tap dancer I like to imagine it is I. Nothing is quite so fascinating as Joseph Hergesheimer's protruding tooth. When my dad used to swing me up for a goodnight hug, he'd yell "Whoopee!" My evening collar wings are minstrel sized. Edna Ferber can dish up the best dialogue.

John Erskine's piano playing suggests wild horses down a sun-baked plateau. Wonder what Ogden Reid carries in that omnipresent brief-case—editorials? No writer can zing you between the eyes like Sinclair Lewis. In "Main Street," when the doctor was gone he spoke of the house as "listeningly quiet."

Far back as memory goes I wanted to be a writer. I regard Robert Rubin as the most astute of all judges of moving picture technique. The grandest description of interior decorating is the Perleman's: "A bit of late Gen. Grant and early Pullman." I've never been sued.

* * *

Nothing frightens me like the tinkle of a bicycle bell suddenly from behind. I can't keep from calling an admiral an "admirable." How conspicuous to walk through a large hotel's busy kitchen. The only address to stick in memory is Sherlock Holmes': 221 Baker street. All my letters of courtship were written on stationery swiped from the Gibson House in Cincinnati. My favorite small town editor is Squire Mauck.

* * *

During executive newspaper days I fired three Harvard men. With a mean sort of sadistic glee. Cuba is the only foreign country I never cared to visit. Dickens is the most exquisitely articulate of all authors. The bravest I ever felt was walking through the vicious red-light of Havre late at night alone. P. S. I had lost my guide. Chauncey Depew was the best dressed of all elderly New Yorkers.

* * *

Lee Tracy's breeziness would be a great loss to the screen. Three nights of grand reading: "The Man of the Renaissance." Arthur Somers Roche is the only person I know to quit drinking who doesn't try to convert others to teetotalism. Passing the George M. Cohan Theater somehow always recalls the throbby quiver in Wilda Bennett's throat when she sang. On slaty, drizzly days I think of Gloucester wharves. Something nice about the companionship of Burns and Allen. The most piercing voice over the phone is Roy W. Howard's.

* * *

Vivid first impression of a big city: the revolving door. Only the near poets have been poseurs. They are going to hear from Chic Sale's sister Virginia, as an impersonator. Reno, to the stranger, is America's most surprising small city. Sometime passing over West Fifty-seventh street notice the tall studio building marked "Chalif." He survives nearly all the instructors, teaching only simple folk and interpretive dances. Never a suggestive wiggle.

* * *

The most finished amateur magician is Hamish McLauren, the writer. Nobody ever put on a stage boo-hoo comparable to Bert Wheeler's in "The Follies." Roy Atwell is the only person to touch me off with a laugh out loud on the radio. I hate surprises, beets, new shoes and people who are familiar on short acquaintance. My father weighed 286 pounds.

* * *

I can on a typewriter imitate the clickety-click of a dinky French train passing Rouen and Nantes. And I feel myself slipping over Joan Bennett's grand movie acting. Oppenheim can turn out more exciting tales and trash than any mystery writer of the day. Never knew an undertaker who didn't reach a ripe old age. The only city editor I remember with affection is Robert Emmet MacAlarney. Hope Williams plopped off her high pedestal for me with that ranch-house subtlety in her play. After all! Favorite all time stage name—Truly Shattuck. I've never indorsed an advertised article for money.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

Hate, Envy, Gossip, Spite—They're All So Old Fashioned

Katherine's back. That isn't her real name, of course. You've heard her real name a hundred times, for she has been a famous national leader in great causes for the last 12 years. Now, for six months, she has been traveling, making a survey of industrial conditions for the President—going into the poorest homes—battling her way through riots and strikes. Studying conditions abroad, too. Before that she was doing special investigation for Congress.

Now she's home for the holidays. Hanging holly wreaths, stirring up hard sauce, hugging the newest baby. And part of her letter will interest you:

"Have you ever had an experience like this, Elsie?" she writes. "Actually, in point of time, I've only been away nine months, but it seems an eternity. Perhaps it is because life has changed so tremendously in the outside world!

"You remember how it was at Congress last year? Everyone so rushed and worried that we hardly stopped to eat. And no matter how petty or self-centered we were, we couldn't think about ourselves. It simply wasn't possible. Life, everywhere, had become so overwhelmingly impersonal. You couldn't think of one person's problem any longer, not even if that one person happened to be yourself. You thought in terms of millions—starving millions, unemployed millions—a whole world reeling.

"And now here I am in my little home town and—it seems incredible, but it's almost like trying to adjust myself to another universe. For, though our town is the suburb of a big city and we should be in touch with the times, things are going on here just as they've gone on since my grandmother's time.

"There's the same small-town gossip—the same amazing fuss over personal scandals—the same petty malice and spite. I remember I thought this was amusing once; even delightful. I actually boasted about our 'simple life.' But now it seems appalling. Here are intelligent people, living in the most critical time in the world's history, and they can't lift their minds above these—spit balls!

"I'm sure I never realized before how stupidly provincial it is to live like this; how old fashioned. Why, it's like trying to keep house by candle light, without any modern convenience—like going to witch doctors to cure you of a sore throat. This sort of thing belongs back in the 18th century. There simply isn't any place for it in 20th Century America!"

* * *

Petty gossip, trivial grudges—"old fashioned," "18th century stuff." That's a new angle, isn't it? But sit down and think about it.

Think how the world has changed during these last few years. Think how the radio and telephone, the aeroplane and automobile have broken down the walls between human beings—demolished time and space—turned the world into one big family living in the same room.

Think how you'd laugh at someone who insisted on living as a great-grandfather did, without a 'phone, car, newspaper or a modern machine; doing things in the old, clumsy ways; thinking the old, limited thoughts; ignoring all the changes—THE NRA, the crises in Russia and Germany, Austria and our own America.

AND YET, RIGHT AMONGST YOUR OWN FRIENDS, PEOPLE ARE LIVING LIKE THAT! GIVING ALL THEIR TIME TO PERSONAL GOSSIP, GETTING ALL STEWED UP OVER PERSONAL GRUDGES—WHILE THE WORLD TURNS SOMERSAULTS BETWEEN THE STARS!

Like some funny old lady who insists on wearing knee-length bloomers and a muffler among a bevy of bathing beauties!

So what? So let's snap out of it, you and I! Let's PROVE, by the way we think and act, that we're living in the 20th century and not way back in the hoopskirt era.

The Semitic Races Might Have Ruled All Europe

One Battle Decided Against That. Another Saved the Germanic Races From the Control of Rom

GET AT THE public library, or better, BUY, KEEP AND READ a small inexpensive book, "The Fifteen Decisive Battles of the World From Marathon to Waterloo," by E. S. Creasy.

The historian believes that the fifteen battles, beginning with Marathon, which preserved the Greek nations from conquest by Persia, and ending with Waterloo, which established and perpetuated the British Empire by the overthrow of Napoleon have been "DECISIVE" in their effects on human history. Creasy died long ago, never knew about the "big war."

Two of the most important of the fifteen decisive battles you will find reviewed very briefly in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph tomorrow, in an article at the bottom of the editorial page, by Arthur Brisbane.

ONE OF the decisive battles to be dealt with in the Sunday Sun-Telegraph "March of Events" section tomorrow is the battle of the Metaurus, in which the Romans fighting on their own soil, conquered Hasdrubal, courageous Semitic general, cut off his head and threw it into the camp of his brother Hannibal, who for seventeen years, represented the Semitic city and power of Carthage, had ravaged the Italian peninsula, carrying war to the very gates of Rome, almost destroying the Roman power in its infancy.

YOU will be interested in that great military genius Hannibal, and his brother Hasdrubal with his long row of fighting elephants.

Of the battle in which the Romans conquered the sons of the great Semitic leader Hamilcar, preventing Semitic control of the whole of Europe, Byron wrote (you will bear in mind that the Nero to whom he referred had nothing to do with the later and monstrous Emperor Nero):

"The consul Nero, who made the unequaled march which deceived Hannibal and deceived Hasdrubal, thereby accomplishing an achievement almost unrivaled in military annals. The first intelligence of his return, to Hannibal, was the sight of Hasdrubal's head thrown into his camp. When Hannibal saw this, he exclaimed, with a sigh, that 'Rome would now be the mistress of the world.' To this victory of Nero's it might be owing that his imperial namesake reigned at all. But the infamy of the one has eclipsed the glory of the other. When the name of Nero is heard, who thinks of the consul? But such are human beings."

IN THAT battle of the Metaurus which led to the conquest and final complete destruction of the great Semitic city of Carthage, the French historian Michelet wrote:

"It is not without reason that so universal and vivid a remembrance of the Punic wars has dwelt in the memories of men. They formed no mere struggle to determine the lot of two cities or two empires; but it was a strife on the result of which depended the fate of two races of mankind, whether the dominion of the world should belong to the Indo-Germanic or to the Semitic family of nations. Bear in mind that the first of these comprises, besides the Indians and the Persians, the Greeks, the Romans, and the Germans. In the other are ranked the Jews and the Arabs, the Phoenicians and the Carthaginians."

FURTHER Michelet writes:

"The conflict between the two races then became the conflict of two religions. Fortunate was it that those daring Saracenic cavaliers encountered in the east the impregnable walls of Constantinople, in the west the chivalrous valor of Charles Martel, and the sword of the Cid. The crusades were the natural reprisals for the Arab invasions, and form the last epoch of that great struggle between the two principal families of the human race."

IT IS doubtful whether any general in all history exceeded in ability the sons of Hamilcar, and especially the great Hannibal, who crossed the Mediterranean from Carthage, to Spain, marched his troops over the Pyrenees through Gaul down over the Alps, and held Rome at his mercy for almost a generation, was a marvelous genius. It is certain that there were never two braver men than those representatives of the Semitic race.

YOU WILL find also in Brisbane's brief review of "Fifteen Decisive Battles" an account of the victory of the greatest of Germany's heroes, Arminius, in which he defeated and destroyed the Roman legions led by Varus.

But for the victory of Arminius, according to Creasy's estimate of the importance of that victory, there might exist today no English nation or people, no independent Germanic races, and the descendants of the Romans might govern all Europe.

YOU WILL be interested in the lovely Thusnelda, whom Arminius married, and in her little boy, 4 years old, led through the streets of Rome in a conqueror's "triumph" after his mother had been made a prisoner by the Romans, before the baby was born.

The article on these two battles in tomorrow's Pittsburgh Sunday Sun-Telegraph may persuade you to buy Creasy's book. If you do that, and read it, you will be glad.
